Yeah, probably because whichever moderator/admin figured out your ass was fake and you were shadowbanned. It just means you can keep posting and commenting and all that and it will seem fine on your end but nobody else will be able to see/interact with it. It happens often in the more NSFW subreddits for people who are creepy, spamming, fake, or generally trying to game the system.

The subreddits are either cracking down with shadowbanning or creating tougher verification rules.

Mainly because of scammers and the cheap bastards that feel they deserve free porn. The funny thing is that I know some real women that left subreddits like SexSells because the new verification was crazy.

If ewhores could be trusted not to fuck things up, I'm sure people would create subreddits with ewhore friendly rules. But we all know how that would turn out. It only takes one scammer to ruin it all.
