Securifier - July 31, 2018, 7:53 pm

Alpha Crypter allows you to protect your data against reverse engineering and false positives. The whole executable you send us strongly encrypted and integrated into our unique stub.

The role of the stub is to decrypt your data, and inject it directly into the RAM using reflections and RunPE methods.

These security measures assure you to keep your source code secret, and keep your file fully undetectable by antivirus at scantime and runtime.

No, it is scantime and runtime crypter. Using .NET reflection, your code is silently injected into the RAM.

I will provide a runtime scan soon !

I did not see a video anywhere, but I used Resource Hacker to change the icon to some FUD icons best I've gotten so far is 2/30 on antiscan (Avira/Norton) and Run4Me Runtime scan was 3/12 (Windows Defender/Norton detected on drop), Avira on Execute. Is it possible to get this FUD with WD runtime or does WD just flag everything on drop.

Still pretty impressed for price. I would rate it 8.5/10 would like the ability to clone assemblies etc.

Contacted Alpha via email, within 10 minutes he tweaked my stub and had it basically FUD the only one that picks it up at scantime/runtime is Norton. I tried many crypters and pretty much all of them were Detected on drop for Windows Defender but Alpha's flies by everything.

Well done Alpha solid product I'd give it a solid 9.5/10. Pretty much works right out of the box where other crypters can require major tweaking and testing shitloads of icons and assemblies to finally get it working.

As it stands my Revenge RAT quick crypt with an icon edit in Resource Hacker is:

Antiscan Scantime: 1/30 (Norton)
Run4Me Runtime: 1/12 (Norton)

Are you unhooking clr.dll/mscorwks.dll? What is your anti-memory like?

Since your selling a crypter you must know this but I'll remind you anyways. Using assembly.load() will put the PE file in a RW memory section just sitting open. Any half decent AV will find the payload sitting in memory. You need to apply pre-crypt obfuscation to the payload and or mutilate the PE file in memory to stop ESET fucking you. This crypter looks like a bit of a joke imho. Send me an old stub and prove me wrong.

I dont use anti memory scanner methods. This is a $10 crypter !

I sell it to people that just want a basic FUD crypter, without spending $300 in a private crypter.

I dont have same options and methods as a pro crypter, but for the price, this is the best crypter you can find on the market.

I dont hide it, i use a simple .NET reflection to inject payload.

I get a 1/12 runtime result, with RevengeRAT. Av's are shitty, you don't need pro methods to bypass them.

For sure, we provide a Runtime Undetection Look at the main page of the thread the runtime results on RevengeRAT (well known by av's) !

Alpha .NET Cyper works with all .NET apps, like Orcus, NJRAT, IM5, RevengeRAT, PlasmaRAT.... DarkComet will not work.

Scatime results are the same for all applications you encrypt.

For the runtime. Using a basic RAT (RevengeRAT), you will get 90%FUD (see runtime results).

If you use outdated malwares, AV's may trigger some actions, like editing startup in registry, or trying to kill AV with old methods.....

Hello

It's normal ... ?

Detected 14/30

nod32 detected + Windows Defender when i exécute

Without any modification as icon/assembly info, i'm getting 3/32.

Your 14/30 is just impossible.

I'm going to refud to erase theses 3 detections.

Please contact the email support if you need help.

You can edit it with RessourceHacker.

Maybe you need help to use ressourcehacker ? If you need, contact me by email.

I'm adding assemblies infos to bypass generics detections, and dont sell a 70% UD stub, even if the user can easily bypass it by himself.

Double encryption may beak your file.

Alpha Crypter is using EOF method to store your encrypted data, so 2 EOF at same time will cause bugs.

No options to change icon or assembly on the website, you have to do it manually but the exe is not working after its crypted!

The crypter only encrypts, does not bring options.

You have to use your Rat's.

The .exe is not broken, at least the one I use, alpha recommends plasma or revenge Rat.

Yeah I requested refund from him but he is still not replying, he didnt even mention that nanocore is not supported, but it says .net rats in general are supported which nanocore is!! I even tested the exe file for compatability on his website and it says its supported.

While you were fighting on my thread, i modified the stub.

I do not use EOF. Your encrypted data in incorporated into the stub source, and compiled at each crypt.

There says no where or states that Nanocore is not supported, please check your own damn website where it says it crypts all .Net based exes which Nanocore is! I even used your website check for compatibility option and it approved my exe. But your crypter broke it because now you say it does not support it! How can that be???

Nanocore is .Net RAT

Hi SkyrimModding, I understand that you are upset if the cripter does not work with your RAT, but I'm sure OP has not lied to you at any time.

The compatibility test is only to determine if your file is .net or native. However, even if your .net file is specified in the TOS that does not work with some .net.

Keep in mind that no coder will return the money except if they have made the mistake, and some even not.

Personally I think that OP offers a service at a good price, maybe if the service cost $ 200 per month you would have asked OP or read the TOS.

Stubs sources are randomized, and recompiled at each crypt.

I'm working on a random assembly, and a random icon generator to improve the Unique Stub generaor.

Stub are recoded from scratch when they goes over 3 detections. (every 2 - 5 day).

The current rate is 1/23.

FRESH REFUD + NEW FEATURES

Allways in the same mindset, cheap basic crypter, but high quality, i added some features to the Unique Stub Generator to avoid detection as much as possible.

Now, at every encryption :

Your file is downloaded by our services, and encrypted into a byte array

The stub source is randomized, and your byte array is incorporated into the source

The stub is recompiled for you. (In a near future, i will add random assembly/icon to the stub)

This output file is obfuscated by our build server (NEW)

The delivery file is encrypted into a zip to avoid browser detections, and privatize your download link (NEW)

BuilderClient is 90% ready.

Authentification server is 20% ready (will not take much time)

Stub Features are 10% ready (may take time, but crypter will be released with not much options, and they will come after).

All current customers of the V1 will be credited on the V2 the amount of their current subscription.

The V2 will include a credit system.

does not work

I tried my file - it does not work

I tried notepad, calcs, from windows - not work

Scanner - not work

owner answer something

Securifier - October 18, 2018, 7:08 am

Notepad and Calc are native files.

Alpha Crypter V1 is only compatible with managed ubobfuscated.

I'm on the way to release the V2 (next week), you will get a full refund of your spent dollars on the V2.

V2 will be native compatible.

Alpha Crypter is switching to V2.

I do not create the thread for the moment, because i dont want too many users, on the first version.
After aplying bugfixes, i will create sales thread.

You can download it at : <http://alphaproducts.online/>

All users that paid for Alpha Crypter V1 has been refunded in credit on the V2, don't worry :).

This thread will be closed soon.

Can I purchase a subscription for v2? With paypal

The Jack Software - December 13, 2018, 1:03 pm

No, it is scantime and runtime crypter. Using .NET reflection, your code is silently injected into the RAM.

I will provide a runtime scan soon !

As i said, Alpha Crypter V1 is DISCONTINUED.

All V1 users that had a subscription has been totally refunded.

I now focus on the V2.

Alpha Crypter V2 is available on this URL : <http://alphacrypter.online/>

This is the sales thread : <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5907808>

I'm now closing this thread.
