Thread: All the popular RATs? What happened to them?

Kyotokatrov - August 1, 2018, 8:16 am

I remember seeing rats such as nanocore (yeah, ik what happened), Luminosity Link, Imminent Monitor, and much more amongst this forum.

What happened? ?

Dont think you are looking hard enough or paying attention.

Nano and Luminosity authors were arrested for various reasons.

Imminent Monitor, Orcus, Web Monitor, and others are still around.

I apologize, I haven't been on here in ages, Armada! ?

It's pretty fucked that they did get arrested. I hope the rest of these don't die like they did.

Both KFC and Aeonhack got nailed with some rather screwy charges that got the conviction...

Vous me conseiller d'utiliser quel logiciel de rat ?

Vous me conseiller d'utiliser quel logiciel de rat ? Moi qui voulait faire sur nanocore c'est mort

Je rectifie ; quel rat open source vous me conseiller ? Moi qui voulait faire sur nanosciences mort alors

Fuuuck. KFC was a cool guy. Never knew much about Aeon, but fuck.

Sometimes I wonder what the future of this forum will look like. If one thing's for certain, though, it's got to be that anyone who plans on selling rats/crypters better know that the authorities will get involved eventually, especially if the product will get big. Personally, I just use the free rats to pentest, although it's obvious that many others have other nefarious reasons with their usage ? ?

What a fucked state we're in.
