aruba for spoofing, uh no, just no

just go to ampnode

ive spent years searching for spoof providers, including on hf, and they all die out i found ampnode a couple of years ago and it solved every problem just stop with these threads and use the one solution that works people

Amp node is s-h-i-t.

you're post spamming that ampnode is shit but you're not saying one single thing as to why it's been around for years and has 100% business rating such as?

there aren't any other providers of quality like amprnode that ive come across and i constantly look everyday they have support, hardware and more.

im just saying, typically a host has one thing going for them, not everything low price usually means shit support or shit quality on a shared network etc

Aruba isn't a good hosting for spoofed servers, nor for scanning or hosting nets.

Aruba is valuable for RDPs though, if you're interested in researching that.

"Probably" Well rather, it's not. Do your research on ports and server monitors.

You are right about the fact AmpNode has good quality. The issue is that people do not want to pay their extremely high prices.

I've had some really good luck with bestwest.host. Server was quick and setup wasn't too bad (took 2 days if I recall). I have an affiliate link that you can use (PLEASE, lol) bestwest[.]host/aff.php?aff=4

t.me/rdpac

I got a 1 day trial from here and it's what it says it is, pricing is what should be expected for something that allows attacks but it's quality.

I'm actually looking for a server now. Was told about offshore. Running 20$. Is that reasonable?
