

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Official Group\] Dawn - Recruitment | SRPP](#)

Mr.Cat - August 8, 2018, 7:24 am

"The first rays of light that sustain a new day."

Dawn is slowly transitioning into a Science, Religion, Philosophy, and Politics (SRPP) group and is now open for recruitment. We are looking for people who are interested in debating or simply discussing various topics but are also capable of acting mature, calm, and respectful towards other members of the group. We expect our members to be active, but most importantly, we want them to enjoy themselves and have fun! Dawn will be a group with a limited member count. Quality members are much more valuable to us than a large influx of members, and we prefer a family environment where everyone's views can be expressed and heard better. With a close group, our members will be able to get to know one another and form bonds or friendships rather than stay in the anonymity that bigger groups very regularly develop. There are a limited number of open positions available, so we will be very careful with our member selection. We will mainly focus on SRPP-related topics, but we might allow some out-of-topic discussions.

[img]http://www.thednastore.com/images/separator.png[/img] Requirements: You will be expected to post 1 thread every 1 month and 1 post every week minimum.

No legitimate/valid scam reports.

No ban history.

While negative reputation is most likely to not affect your chances of success, it might be considered.

Application:

You will have to answer the questions below in order to apply for our group, and we will later evaluate your answers. You will receive a PM if you are successful. Good luck and try to be creative!

Behavior It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Information about you How would you describe yourself to someone?

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn?

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

If you have any questions you can either contact me, Night Fury or DerMensch24.

ItsJigSaw - August 8, 2018, 7:28 am

Good luck with your group, w/o any offense, as far as i saw SRPP section is full of quite ignorant ppl so again, good luck finding hq members u desire.

ETH - August 8, 2018, 8:48 am

Behaviour:

1. if it's worth topic within period less than 3 months I will reply
2. I'm try to apologise or else I didn't talk to anyone for 5 minutes it will solve debate
3. I learn if I have any mistake on me or else I will do it
4. I will prove myself as right

Information about me:

1. I'm talkative person
2. I'm interested on politics and religion but less aware
3. Tiger
4. Didn't know answer or can't answer (sorry)

Other questions

1. To get friends
2. General topics
3. My friendship and character

Wake - August 8, 2018, 9:53 am

Looks like a good group to be a apart of. I also like the Userbar. Good luck with recruitment.

Beamer Boy - August 8, 2018, 9:58 am

Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would most likely just let that topic die, and focus on other topics.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I always debate in a nice tone, and never use excessive language, if someone starts doing it towards me, I usually just point out to them what they are doing and how they're acting. If they continue, I just ignore them.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I generally just tell people to explain their point of views, and turn over the conversation, so I am in control.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I provide links to sources, where he can find the correct claims.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

Really dark humor, but with a genuine understanding of the world and how it functions.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Not really besides Facebook, where I am in a political group mainly for young people, and then I run an anarchism group.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A sloth, but with short nails.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Around 6PM, sun is shining so bright that I am smelting, and I see Monica Lewinsky feeling on Bill Clinton's nutsack.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn?

Seems like a serious group with space for peoples opinion, rather than oppressing them.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I believe in Anarcho-capitalism, so I usually like to discuss the state and how it would be more effective if we don't have it. I believe in a gradually transition, and I like to hear other peoples opinions about it.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Free will. Most important thing in the world for me. Everybody should be totally free and not oppressed by anybody.

.fury - August 8, 2018, 10:05 am

Behavior! I'll ask for a response in my thread and i'll try be as clear as possible when asking the question.

I'll wait 5 to 10 mins because it will help the "other" person to calm down and after he's calm , i'll re-start the debate in a good way.

I'll ask the person why is he insulting me and if it was my fault (i'll accept the fact that it was my fault) and if it wasn't and he just did that of angers , i'll ignore him or just make sure that he knows that he's insulting me out of nothing/anger.

I'll answer positively and show him his mistake.

Information about you! i'm very positive and i love helping out people.

I have never been on forum focused on "Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? " but that is why i'm applying for this group. I'm mainly focus on Science and Philosophy.

A cat

Water and twelve o'clock in the night

Other questions! I really want to share my thought about the things i focus and hear others people thought. Just like debating in a positive way (for sure).

Science and Philosophy because both will tell you "What" and "How"

Freedom

Kosmos - August 8, 2018, 12:49 pm

Behavior! It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

If there is no response, I would let the thread die. I would not want to gravedig a subject.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Keep a calm, level head and just try to continue the debate with logic. Never let your emotions enter the debate.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I would at first debate why they are insulting me, and if it doesn't lead to intellectual discussion, they're on the block list.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

You correct them kindly, with sources on what is true. The goal is to educate, not bully.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I would describe myself as a fair guy. I love to debate, to educate, and to inform others on various subjects. I'm 22 years old, I plan to go to school in the fall for astronomy/astrophysics.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I have been in the groups Logic and Void.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I'd pick the cat. I'm lazy, grumpy, and always hungry.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see lots of trees, dirt, and I hear a lot of animals. It is a tiny bit past noon. It feels like it is about to rain.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I have been waiting for an SRPP group for some time now and this feels like a great opportunity!

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Science, politics, and very little religion/philosophy.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Life itself. It is beautiful. It is extremely rewarding. No matter what you do, it always usually turns around. I value my family the most.

DerMensch24 - August 8, 2018, 3:18 pm

Goodluck on your apps peeps! ;)

.fury - August 8, 2018, 3:21 pm

(Aug 8, 2018 03:18 PM)DerMensch24 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Goodluck on your apps peeps! ;)

Thanks mate , really hope i can get into this group. ?

iKinky - August 8, 2018, 4:54 pm

Great group. Good luck to all those that apply.

scam. - August 8, 2018, 10:04 pm

Oh wow dawns still around can I join again @night fury @ikinky

Mr.Cat - August 9, 2018, 6:21 am

I see some promising people already. Keep it up guys!

(Aug 8, 2018 07:28 AM)ItsJigSaw Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good luck with your group, w/o any offense, as far as i saw SRPP section is full of quite ignorant ppl so again, good luck finding hq members u desire.

(Aug 8, 2018 09:53 AM)Wake Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Looks like a good group to be a apart of. I also like the Userbar. Good luck with recruitment.

Thanks for the support guys. I am sure we will find what we are looking for regardless the recent SRPP quality drop.

bzr? - August 9, 2018, 8:33 am

Looking forward to meeting new people and seeing some great applications. Goodluck.

hash - August 9, 2018, 9:52 am

Goodluck on the recruitment. Seems like an amazing group!

Night Fury - August 10, 2018, 4:33 pm

Looking forward to seeing some new faces. Mr. Cat is an interesting guy with some interesting ideas. :)

prada ? - August 10, 2018, 5:54 pm

(Aug 8, 2018 10:04 PM)mael Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh wow dawns still around can I join again @night fury @ikinky im getting real sick of your shit

you say youre down to start a private group between us and maybe a few friends and then you go switch up like this? asking to join mr cats group? are you shittin me?

Pronouncer - August 10, 2018, 6:00 pm

!

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Bump it, find similar threads and see people with similar topics, PM them

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? If you check all my.posts in the appropriate section, you'll see I never get heated, always calm, I mean hey if I get triggered by something online, I'm the one with the problem.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Ignore them, there will always be haters.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Pm him, or quote sections and post it.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone? Calm

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
no

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? Sloth

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?trees and bushes, mid day

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn? it would be fun to have a debate section without idiots trolling

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? I have a very broad enjoyment of topics, I rather keep away from politics, but debates on ethics is interesting.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? companionships, money is one thing but without companionship you will literally go mental. (Companionships = Relationship/Friend)

Any ETA on when we will be hearing back?

Mr.Cat - August 10, 2018, 7:05 pm

(Aug 10, 2018 06:00 PM)Pronouncer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Any ETA on when we will be hearing back?

Probably between 1-2 weeks max if everything goes well in order to get everything ready and look at all the applications.

Wake - August 11, 2018, 3:15 pm

Was talking with Mr.Cat earlier he was more than happy to talk me through anything i needed answering. Seems like a great group to be a part off.

RAT - August 15, 2018, 2:57 pm

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I would post another post if enough time has passed by & give extra information. Maybe PM a couple of members who I think would be interested in it. However, if there is no audience for my thread and people aren't actually interested in it - I won't be forcing it and I'll just let it vanish into the void of HF.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? Keep debating while using arguments. I would also ask them to kindly share their ideas & support their statements with facts. If shit gets way too heated, well... there's no point of arguing there anymore, right...? I mean if I have tried to keep the discussion running professionally & they just keep getting emotional.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Be open-minded. If there is something more than an insult, I'll try and answer it. If one simply insults me - I'd say let's just agree to disagree and will ignore him (unless his post is against the rules of HF - in that case I would report the post on top of the ignoring).

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? I will bring out all the arguments which will be supported by facts & sources: why that person's statements are false. I will be professional and kind & just let him know politely that the things he said aren't 100% the way he expressed them.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone? A friendly lad with great humor & great ideas. Oh... I'm also a great listener.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Not here on HF though.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? A dog - it's loyal. Or a wolf...

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? Around 11 am, there's nature everywhere... a river is flowing nearby. Everything is peaceful and quiet.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn? A place where I could actually debate & express my thoughts. Not there for politics, but more for philosophy tbh. I love philosophy.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Existence, Life, Human behavior, Economics, metaphysics also...

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Life & Happiness.

Doni - August 15, 2018, 3:04 pm

SRPP quality really has dropped, and maybe a group like this can help increase its quality. Good Luck with the group Mr Cat.

?lex - August 17, 2018, 3:53 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

- Try to approach it from a different point of view and possibly attract their attention.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

- Turn down the heat. If I can't, I would eventually leave the topic and move on.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

- I don't. My views are mine and I don't care if one agrees with them or not.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

- Point the obvious with proof, obviously. Else it's pointless to do it if you don't have proof that your statement is correct.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

- Kind, positive, sometimes competitive, but overall I think of myself a nice person.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

- I haven't, and that's why I think this is gonna be a good group for me.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

- A lion.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

- Just before sunrise, walking down an empty road on a summer day.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

- I wanna meet new people and explore what Dawn has to offer.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

- Pretty much anything.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

- The freedom of choice.

Two-Ton 21 - August 20, 2018, 5:02 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would find something similar and work it into another thread or simply bump the thread asking if anyone has any input, for or against it. Depends on what I was talking about. More than likely I'd just let it die though.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I'd stop responding and find something better to occupy my time with.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I'd either ask them to explain their argument further or simply let it go and just ignore it. Big fan of providing resources as follow up.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Using their argument, I would show that I understand their points and provide a counter argument.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm an easy going guy, I love music and art, I genuinely enjoy talking about history, politics, philosophy. Kind of hard to keep up with me, and I can tend to be a space cadet at times.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I'd like to think I'm a panther, but a rat would be the better answer.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Shadows pace across the walls, surrounding a dimly lit path. They appear to be reaching for the setting sun, visible just at the far end. The wind whistles from the top of the wall creating a bellow below.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I'd love to take place in more discussion surrounding topics like, politics and philosophy.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Philosophy is my favorite topic because it can be applied to everything, often holding a deeper meaning, that changes how I think in general.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I value my experiences, including those with people I love. Not sure if I'm referring to my own memories or the emotions tied to them.

.fury - August 20, 2018, 6:26 pm

Great group to be in , good luck !

int - August 26, 2018, 10:59 am

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? Find someone not on hf to discuss it to

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? Leave the debate

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Ignore them if the insult has nothing to do with the therad

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? Post links to proof showing it is not true (from reputable sources)

How would you describe yourself to someone? occasionally funny
Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
Not really
If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? dog
You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? a futuristic city, 13:25

Why do you want to join Dawn? meet other HQ members
What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? probably debates of conspiracies
What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Money and Money. Money runs literally everything

RAT - August 27, 2018, 2:18 pm

(Aug 26, 2018 10:59 AM)Jukeboxhook Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? Find someone not on hf to discuss it to
You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? Leave the debate
Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Ignore them if the insult has nothing to do with the therad
Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? Post links to proof showing it is not true (from reputable sources)

How would you describe yourself to someone? occasionally funny
Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
Not really
If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? dog
You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? a futuristic city, 13:25

Why do you want to join Dawn? meet other HQ members
What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? probably debates of conspiracies
What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Money and Money. Money runs literally everything
Vouch for Jukeboxhook.

int - August 27, 2018, 2:23 pm

(Aug 27, 2018 02:18 PM)TrustWoofer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Vouch for Jukeboxhook.
Thanks fellow millionaire ebook user!!

Traum - September 3, 2018, 11:13 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?
If the thread isn't older than one or two weeks I would post in it again to bump it up, other than that I would let it die. If the members aren't interested in it I don't want to push the topic onto them. If I know a few members of the group very well I'd ask them for their opinion on the topic.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I take a break and try to reflect on it from a neutral position. Were my actions right? Was I being reasonable? If it was my fault that the debate got heated I'll apologize and try to explain why I got worked up and how my opinion has shifted since I put more thought into my actions.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recepic. How do you react?

I understand that they have different political views and try not to take it personal. I'm not going to try to push "the right" political view onto them as I know that would be useless but I'll show them that there are other viewpoints and that those can be valid aswell.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I provide the facts and actual references that make his claim invalid. Only stating that it's not true doesn't prove anything.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I try to be the best person I possibly can be.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No, I haven't been to any forums or groups that focus on SRPP.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I'd choose a pigeon as they are outcasts, known as "rats of the air" but still very interesting to me. They can fly which is still a big dream of mine, they don't care about others opinions and just live their life as good as they can, even if they have to eat crumbs off of a train station.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's night and I'm in a forest. I'm walking up a mountain to enjoy the view over a city engulfed in the light of the street lights. Next to the path are old trees, mostly common spruces and a few common beeches, casting strange shadows on the path, only illuminated by the moon.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I'm looking to discuss my philosophical viewpoints with more people.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

The subject I enjoy the most is the theory of our existence. How did we get here? Why are we here? What is the purpose of our lives? How should we live our lives? I've talked hours about those topics with my best friend and I'm looking forward for far more as I really enjoy those discussions.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

The thing I value the most is my family, especially my "little" brother. I try to spend as much time as I can with them and make every experience unforgettable. Losing my grandparents very early made me realize how important family truly is.

I spent a lot of time thinking about all the questions and I'm very thankful that this recruitment made me think about a lot of stuff I didn't think about in a long time. Good luck to all the other applicants! ?

->Behavior<-

1.Q It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

1.A I'd ask of opinions on the matter and follow their answers up with various question to get the debate or conversation going.

2.Q You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

2.A i'd continue the debate, and focus on way i present my point of view in a way so i don't come off as an idiot nor a troller. if the debate continues to heat up and i see no progression, id take a moment, smoke a cig and come back to the debate with an open mind and hopefully the other part, have had time to cool off, so we can continue.

3.Q Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

3.A I'd analyse the comment and take a closer look, If the comment contains an opinion or a statement, i'll reply in a way i see fit with a possible outcome of a debate in this matter.

4.Q Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

4.A I'd bring my evidens to the tabel and shot down the persons false statement with solid proof.

->Information about you<-

1.Q How would you describe yourself to someone?

1.A I'm a danish student with an attitude that makes some people hate me just by the sight of me. I'd never share false infomation and i'll always do my very best to make people share my opinion and "Point of View".

2.Q Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

2.A I've not participated in other online groups or forums. But i do organize one night of the month, at my school named "Debate night" where we come together 20-30 people for 3 hours and debate about recent topics concerning the danish goverment.

3.Q If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

3.A An eagle, they're cool as fuck. and it depends only on it's ability to survive on it's own.

4.Q You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

4.A I'm surrounded by trees in a forrest but i'm still close to the public street. the weather is nice, some clouds but no rain, temperature is 10-12 degrees. like an october day in Denmark.

->Other questions<-

1.Q Why do you want to join Dawn?

1.A I would like to just dawn because we share same intrest in some way. I enjoy debates and have been looking for somewhere to go and share and talk about my and other opinion on different matters. Debating is my drive in a sad world, i use every opportunity to have a discussion with other people. i enjoy learning about others political and religious values in life.

2.Q What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

2.A I enjoy social matters, like New feminism Vs old Feminism. I enjoy matters like "When should violent actions be considered criminal" and "What are racism and sexism. and where is line between joke and pure hate drawn.

I've lately been participating in debates about the Zir and zhey pronounces. And wether we should use them or now.

XeCheats - September 11, 2018, 4:55 am

To be honest all I want is a different userbar I haven't had yet

s1nister - September 14, 2018, 7:03 am

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I am quite straight forward with my interests , but if no one seems to be interested in discussing the topic then I'll most probably move on to something else. Because there's no benefit in grave digging a dead topic and if it was interesting then it would have already received some hype.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I am usually calm during debates and I try not to mix our opinions with our relationships but if something like this ever happens I'll try to calm him down and apologize him from my side.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

First of all to be frank I don't give least of my care to insults. But if someone does give some personal remarks then I'll try to convince him for a formal debate with opinions not slangs. If he doesn't agree for that I'll simply ignore his posts.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

For me it certainly depends on the situation. If someone claims that his religion/political party is the best or something abstract, then I'll try to have a healthy debate with him. But if it's something factually wrong then instead of publicly condemning him I'll try to PM him to modify the post.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

To be frank I am not the best person who can define his entire life to someone using a few lines. I believe that my actions speak for me.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? I have been to my local debate clubs. So, does that count?

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I am an ant. I have always admired them for their hard work, team spirit and will to survive against all odds. And I try to adapt their traits in my life. I am an under dog seeking and hunting for the status I deserve.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I am visualizing all the people around me ,during the rush hour, belonging from different creed, color, race and religion but yet with the same dreams, "To become the best" , "To support their families" , "To pay the debt and loans they have taken" , but yet everyone seems aloof to each other as if some dark spirit have isolated them from the rest and make them sleepwalk their life in a rat race.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn?

I am always ready for a healthy debate as it gives me a methods of expression and helps me widen my knowledge and presentation skills. And I guess being in a serious group like "Dawn" will help me carry out the discussions in the best possible manner.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I guess "Abstract Ideas" like religion, psychology and ethics are something I love to explore and learn about, though science has been my strong point always.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Being yourself. I believe that being myself and behaving with everyone like I will really want to is the key to a successful relationship.

I don't believe in "changing myself" because what's the benefit of wasting your life to live the life of someone else?

First of all thanks a lot for this series of questions. I found them very thought provoking and they helped me to understand my feelings better.

It took around 30 to 40 mins to write this down but it was worth it ?

Traum - September 15, 2018, 4:54 am

Great group to be in! If you're interested in SRPP it's definitely for you!

(Sep 14, 2018 07:03 AM)s1nister Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) -

You only need to answer once. ;)

s1nister - September 15, 2018, 6:04 am

(Sep 15, 2018 04:54 AM)Hellwach Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Great group to be in! If you're interested in SRPP it's definitely for you!

You only need to answer once. ;)

Hmm, I don't know what happened I guess some kind of bug or something ?

Anyways thanks for informing me ?

Dredd - September 17, 2018, 11:28 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I would talk about another topic, you can't please everyone.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? If I'm in the wrong I'll walk away and leave the conversation, but if I'm in the right I will battle my way to glory.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Take it like a man, everyone's entitled to an opinion at the end of the day.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? If I believe they've made a genuine mistake contact them privately first. If they've done it on purpose I'll call them out publicly.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? Outgoing friendly guy, who is loyal and has a heart of gold.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Previous groups on HF yes.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? A dog because they have life so easy.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? I see lots of modified cars it's around lunchtime.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? Seems like a cool group I can get back into after my 6 month vac ban.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Politics, Science and Cars.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Family.

?--? ??? ?x? ?? ?? - September 23, 2018, 1:58 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I will not bump my thread and focus on threads in which most people are interested.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I will try to calm down and behave in a calmer way.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I will ignore and get going as insults take place when you accept it and fight for it.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I will try to discuss and ask him reason for it. It can be possible that my views are not clear.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am a normal CEH certified guy who believes in exchanging knowledge and views.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No this is my first time.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A Monkey.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I will see lights and hear music and happy people, It should be evening 8 around.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

It seems like an interesting group.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?
More of I like IT and Security.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?
Most important thing will be my self respect and I value my family and friends the most.

VulnTutorials - September 23, 2018, 8:47 am

Are you guys still Accepting Requests?

Mr.Cat - September 23, 2018, 8:52 am

(Sep 23, 2018 08:47 AM)VulnTutorials Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you guys still Accepting Requests?
Yes we still do

VulnTutorials - September 23, 2018, 9:54 am

Behavior:

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I think everyone should get an answer on something he really is interested in ! I would try to make my thread more attractive

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would stop the debate and try to calm down. If I hit someone with my words I would apologize

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I would confront him in a calm way why he is talking bad and try to start a debate without being toxic

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would first pm him and try to correct him before exposing him in the public

Information about you:

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am trying always to bring my own opinion into a discussion and to win a debate. I always love it to have multiple views on a topic

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No never been but would like to be a part of group

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I pick the Dog because he is loyal, friendly and he love to cuddle xD

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It is an autumn day with brown red leaves on the ground the sun is shining through the trees to the ground. Before it was raining and there are some puddles on the ground

Other questions:

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I love it to show people my point of view to topics (especially Science and Philosophy) and try to make them think on something I tried to figure out

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I love Science and Philosophy because these topics are always going deep into human and makes us think about something that we don't realize/think nowadays

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I think the most important thing is that all humans have the same right and we should hold on something that mighty.

I thing what I Value most is loyalty and to be the one you really want to be don't let the people influence you or try to change you because you are who you are only you can change yourself not someone else

Looking forward to Join this amazing Group Regards Vuln

Yu Yan - October 4, 2018, 5:34 pm

Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I'll bump it and if it doesn't work I'll DM people who I think that could be interested in contributing to the thread or joining the discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I either say that he's right and I'll cut the debate off or i explain that I'm not attacking him personally and everyone has the right to have his own opinion.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I would state out that everyone has the right to have his own opinion but that insulting others doesn't bring you that far.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would explain him very detailed but in a polite manner why it's not true and provide proof aswell.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

A guy who enjoys life, his family and his wife but is interested in new knowledge alot and loves to work aswell.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No, but I realy hope to become part of Dawn to participate in a group aimed for Politics, Philosophy and especially Science and Religion.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A cat, they are smarter then they look.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's a sunny midday, walking down a path in the woods close to my house together with my wife and my dog towards the lake where friends of mine are waiting and enjoying a barbecue and some blunts.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

At first I was looking for a cool user group until a member on this forum PMed me that there are groups out here that aren't only interested in hackers, he referred me Dawn after we exchanged a few PMs and I glad he did, realy hoping to get in because I know that dawn could offer me alot more then just a cool userbar.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Most of my interest would go towards science but tbh I would also enjoy religion alot and politics aswell, most likely philosophy aswell but I'm not sure what to expect in a forum regarding this subject at this point.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Love.

Love towards my wife, love towards my family, love towards my dog and love towards my friends, love is in my opinion the most important thing in life.

Ømen Xiii - October 4, 2018, 6:01 pm

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? If it was brought up before then I would just let it be, no sense in causing a ruckus. But if it was not mentioned before then I would, hoping we could talk about it in a calm and civil matter.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? honestly I've found if you're in an argument on the internet then you've already lost so I always try to ease a tense situation as soon as it starts getting off track or heated.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? I just brush it off and send them good vibes, I could really care less if someone's not being rational I don't have time for it.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?provide sufficient evidence to back my claims of it not being true, without causing any conflict most importantly.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?I would have to say I'm pretty chill and super down to earth. I just wish everyone the best.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? I took a couple philosophy classes in college but that's about it, but I've always had an interest in all the topics.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? the cliché side of me would say lion because I have long poofy hair but I would have to say a bengal cat.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?I see clear skies with a ton of palm trees walking down a dirt road to get to the nearest beach to catch the sunset.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?I see you guys as people of reason and I would love to be involved in some of your guys's conversations.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?honestly the philosophy and religion because there's just so much to talk and learn about when it comes to those two topics.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?i value my overall well being and mood as well as the ones closest to me.

elterco - October 6, 2018, 2:49 pm

1) It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I'll try to post it again (letting it cold for couple of weeks) from a different angle in order to create a more interesting thread.

2) You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I'll try to keep my good manners and explain my view with respect. Anyway, the big problem is when you receive a personal insult but here, we are all anonymous

3) Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I'll try to see if the insult comes with an explanation. If it is nonsense insult, i'll ignore it

4) Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I'll explain with respect and try to give him some proof of the truth i see.

Information about you

5) How would you describe yourself to someone?

I like to wonder everything. I like to think the future, to remember the past and live the present.

6) Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Not on internet but I've been on the university and in my country, they are full political so we had several forums.

7) If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Like my nick, I like the Salmon. It always runs againsts the flowing to acomplish what he wants. I'm not that ugly though

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's high noon. I see a jungle around. I'm tempted to jump in.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I want to read different's opinions from differents countrys. I love to discuss about the topics you've mentioned

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Politics and filosofy

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Love > all. Love exists. I've seen it. (I'm not a hippie though)

JTMBoss - October 7, 2018, 6:32 pm

Behavior

Q:It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

A:if it is a majority of the group remove the thread and find someone like minded to talk about the certain topic with.

Q:You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

A: Simply try to deescalate the situation and assure the person that everything is okay. (After all we all are entitled to our own opinions.)

Q: Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

A: Not get mad and simply ask for more reasoning behind their opinion, as well as value their thoughts.

Q: Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

A: By providing him with a place that shows the facts and information.

Information about you

Q: How would you describe yourself to someone?

A: Shy, Awkward, Just my own person.

Q: Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

A: Sadly not but we all have to start somewhere.

Q: If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A: Probably a owl just because they mind their own yet still make their presence known.

Q: You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

A: Trees, nature, and the outdoors in the mid afternoon.

Other questions

Q: Why do you want to join Dawn?

A: Would like to join a group and find some like minded individuals to have fun with and make some new friends. Also have some great conversation.

Q: What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

A: I enjoy pretty much every subject and topic just because although I am shy I like to engage in online conversations and gain more knowledge of things.

Q: What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

A: The most important thing of all is family and respect, what I value most of all is family respect and honesty.

Clarence - October 8, 2018, 1:48 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested in a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Find someone who does want to talk about it with me or see if I can see why they don't like it and see if it's something I can fix.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

personally leave it.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Either laugh or ignore them or see what's up and why they got offended.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

PM them with proof of what I'm saying, so they don't feel I'm calling them out or putting them down

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

pretty pessimistic and depressed

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy, and Politics?

No.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Probably something like a sloth or something.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Tree's and leaves on the floor and a low sun and about 4-5pm.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

want to talk more about SRPP and be a part of something.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I don't really have a favorite

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

To be fair probably money, Because without it you won't eat drink be able to wash or be warm. But other than that probable friendships or family.

Business - October 8, 2018, 3:24 am

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

You never want to grave dig a dead topic. A better idea is to check the thread and see who DID respond to it, and contact them directly to see if they'd be interested in further discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I don't think any good comes from fighting fire with fire. I would keep my calm, and kindly explain the logic behind my POV.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

There's a huge difference between insulting someone and insulting their point of view. I have zero tolerance for people who belittle and/or degrade others. I doubt the group has any tolerance for it either. If you want to insult my ideas, let's debate... but I'm not going to argue with a bully.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Explain to them that the claims they made are false, and provide the reasoning and sources that explain why. I never have the intention of making someone feel bad about being wrong. We're all here to learn.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm laid back and open minded. It's hard to get me mad, and I'm always down to hear what you have to say. 100% loyal, almost to a fault.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
No, none of the groups I've been in were SRPP related.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?
A snow leopard. They live really independent lives, and they're not aggressive like other predatory cats. They only unleash aggression when they or their family is in danger.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?
It's past midnight, it's warm with a cool breeze. I'm in a jungle I've never been in... but I don't feel lost. I know exactly where I'm going.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn?
I'm a firm believer that knowledge is power. The more you collect, the stronger your mind is. So in short, it's all about the information exchange for me.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?
Right now my favorite topic is the impact of technology on morality. This is just the most recent of many topics to spark my interest. I can dive into many philosophical topics. I am hoping that the group will give me the opportunity to gain some knowledge regarding politics, an area I am lacking in compared to many of your members.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?
As I said earlier, it's all about the information exchange. Besides your life, knowledge is the only thing no one can take away from you. Well, without severely damaging your mental and/or physical state...

Traum - October 8, 2018, 8:57 pm

Good luck to all new applicants! ?

Fein - October 9, 2018, 2:45 am

Application:
Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? -
I would discuss privately among my peers or incorporate it in a relevant on-going topic.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? -
Be the bigger man, just suck up your pride and agree to disagree. You don't have to win them all.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? - I do not get offended on things like this, people are entitled to their own opinions on politics just like everything else in this world.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? -
I would simply give my input on the situation in a mature manner, I am not going to indefinitely snap on somebody for saying something with no truth. They may be mislead.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? - Intelligent, Persistent, Ambitious and Humorous.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
- Negative.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? - A lion.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? - It is 5 PM, I see a beautiful lake with a stone pathway to an island. In the center of the island there is a statue of a dragon in the middle.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? - I would like to join Dawn because I like to be surrounded by intelligent individuals like myself who have common interests. I also really enjoy expanded thinking and intellectual conversation.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? - Topics on Science or Pharmacology fascinate me as it is the field I am currently in.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? - I value relationships with friends and family more than anything in the world, without them can you really consider yourself to be happy?

savaged. - October 13, 2018, 2:00 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I'd bump the thread if possible and discuss it with other users on the forum. If the other members don't want to discuss it I won't be pushy and it will be their choice.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? I would end the conversation politely and give it some time for them to calm down and return to the topic if they wanted to.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Ask them for reasons for their opinion as I have been seen doing in one of my previous debate threads.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? I would try to understand where he has got his view from and show the facts against it, with the sources I have used.

Information about you How would you describe yourself to someone? Relaxed, thoughtful and patient.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
No

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? Lion

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? It's a sunny summer day, the sun is shining and Summer of 69 by Bryan Adams is playing.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn? I would like to discuss some of my political views with other users and see if I can find any like-minded people. I'm also more than happy to have my opinions changed on different topics.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Immigrant laws, US/EU politics, conspiracy theories and historic events.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Being open minded, if you want to debate but don't want to change your opinion on something there is no point, you can always be proven wrong if you open your mind to someone else's way of thinking. This will make you learn a great deal more in life if you don't only stick to your own ideas.

32x0LF - October 14, 2018, 5:35 am

I like the userbar and I think more interesting people with different interests are in here. learning not just hacking but how to live day to day with our lives. definitely one of the quality group here on hf

Elysium - November 5, 2018, 5:04 pm

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? In a situation such as this I would probably bring up the topic with colleges or family vice bumping or grave digging a post. If there were some users who were interested in the thread however it hasn't been active for a while, I would probably invite those users to a group chat to continue with the discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

This seems to happen more often than not in my career field. I believe that it is heavily dependent on the situation however I always try to diffuse the situation and continue the debate in a calm and collected manner. If we are not able to calm down and debate rationally, I would tell the other person that we will have to 'agree to disagree'.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

That is really dependent on the situation at hand and how the person was insulting. If they managed to insult me with a logically or factual based argument I would probably to continue to debate my point of view with more fact-based information. If they were simply there attempting to antagonize me, I probably would not feed in to it. No sense in starting a flame war with a user when I am sure there are plenty of other level-minded users who would be happy to have an actual debate.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

For me, being tactful is a very important attribute. I would probably present them with evidence showing that what they are describing isn't necessarily true, however I would not do it in a malicious manner.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I am a very calm, collected, and thoughtful person. Most people who know me personally would agree that every decision I make is a well thought out and calculate decision. I always try my best to be helpful and courteous to others.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Unfortunately, I have never been a part of other groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy, or Politics. The reason I say it is unfortunate is because I tend to have very knowledgeable opinions on most of these topics. Sometimes I drive my wife crazy by giving her an overload of information regarding politics or science.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

If I had to pick an animal, I would most likely be a Hawk or an Owl. Owl's calm and insightful nature speaks volumes to me. I tend to be very observant, and sometimes quiet while listening to others.

The reason I also picked a Hawk is because despite being very quiet and observant at times, when it comes time for me to 'chime in' on a subject, I have a very known presence.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?
It is 6:30 in the morning, just as the sun is coming up and it is still cool outside from the night before. It is quiet, refreshing and allows me to plan for the remainder of the day. I am walking down a narrow path surrounded by trees on both sides, listening to the birds chirping and the sound of the water running in a nearby creek.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn?

I enjoy meaningful discussions where I can learn from others however I also enjoy giving back to the community, helping others, and teaching whenever I can. I am interested in this group because I have grown an affinity for the personal life, SRPP, and social aspects of this forum. I am regularly posting in these sections and feel that I would best be able to represent this groups high standards within the these sections.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy any intelligent discussion however I have grown to enjoy discussing more social of issues, and politics. I enjoy hearing others' viewpoints as well. Anything that makes me think more about what I previously thought is fair game for a discussion.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

The most important thing to me is family. I know that even if everything else in my life were to disappear (my home, my vehicles, my job, my health, etc), that my family would still be there to support me. Because of that, my family will always come first for me.

aggh465ddd - November 6, 2018, 1:47 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?:

A forced discussion is not one that I will get anything out of. If someone or a group of people don't want to talk about something then it is just that simple. I'd adjust my original proposal and post it again down the line when it is either more relevant or I feel it is more interesting.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?:

A debate is never really a debate without disagreements so I think this should be expected. The best way to cool down someone you are having a discussion with is to ask questions and find out why they are getting annoyed. Maybe they are passionate about the subject and simply want there opinion heard. There is nothing wrong with this but it needs to be done in an orderly fashion so you both feel satisfied with the outcome.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?:

I am not one to post political views. If I was insulted for doing so then it goes to show my audience isn't really one that wants a discussion but instead a brawl.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?:

'The proof is in the pudding'. Don't slander anyone's name without proof. Post evidence of any claims and stay on the sidelines.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?:

Motivated, curious and easy to get along with. I would never instigate an argument but I am happy to get stuck in with discussion. Discussion is how we learn and learning is one of the most important things you can do day in and day out.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?:
I have not.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?:

Good question. I'm going to go with a Chameleon. Bright and happy, always ready to discuss something. However, when needed I will hide in the shadows and gather information to come up with my own, educated comment on a topic at hand.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?:
It's 10am, the path is full of other morning dog walkers.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?:

I think being part of a platform that promotes discussion and encourages debate is important. It is healthy and helps you learn.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?:

Social Engineering. It is the one element of IT that lets you drill down into why and how humans do what they do.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?:
Integrity.

Wolf - November 6, 2018, 6:50 am

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I'd control my impulses, try to see why members don't find my thread interesting and move on with a lesson learned.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I feel no urge to prove myself to others. I'd try to diffuse the situation in calm and collected manner and extend my apologies for making someone upset.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Shame on them. I'd let them know it isn't okay to insult someone, but I'd express my empathy towards their acts of aggression. I'd try to understand what made them tick off. Although, I'm fine with not being able to please everyone.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

It isn't about the content, it's about the context. If I were to do it, I'd point out their mistakes in a manner that they would be most likely to accept.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm passionate, extroverted person who loves life in general. As for my other side, I act calm around things that are new to me even though I'm burning with desire to explore them. I've stopped rushing through the minefields, so I'm rather diffusing them one by one to get the full experience.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

As for my online activities, no, I haven't. I did attend Petnica science school for 3 years and we had a lot of debates going on.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I'd pick a roe deer. They are graceful, observant and fragile. I find it important to be aware of human fragile nature, so we can live our lives to the fullest.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's dark, I'm in surrounded by trees. I can see the moon up in the sky. A pack of wolves approaches me and instead of attacking me, they start playing with me.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I like connecting with people and learning/sharing how human mind works. I also find that userbar very visually appealing. Greed is strong in this one.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I'm a fan of religion, philosophy and psychology topics. Spent a couple of months in a monastery and that changed my approach towards life.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I value life experience the most. Going through things, no matter how hard or easy they are is what I value.

skull - November 14, 2018, 11:29 am

Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would let it go cause it should not turn me into a spammer or a shameless self-dumper.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

If I don't have anything nice to say, I leave the debate. We don't want to become animals like the politicians. I don't "win" a debate.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I was a teacher once, every one insults the teachers, "he doesn't know anything", "he is so unfair", "... weird looking" and so on. Let kids be kids, tell them that it's not nice to talk like that and hurt someones feelings, but don't judge them or start fighting over it.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would try to find sources to backup my point of view in order to let the user learn from my sources, I would not directly provoke him to think my sources are any better than his sources, since no one know whats "real" on the internet.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I am a software engineer with many years of experience, I really enjoy the science behind computers and I also enjoy the philosophy topic.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Not anything besides "computer science" groups.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A ant. Ants are hard workers and the ultimate team player.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

5PM when I get off work I usually go by the park on my way home. There are always plenty of different groups hanging out, all from families on picnic and kids playing soccer to alternative goth-a-like teens drinking their low-percentage beers and smoking cigarettes. I enjoy watching out and seeing all of those different groups so close in the same park, that leaves me with the hope that we can all be together without being scared of other kinds, races and ages. So many people leave in fear I believe.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

Seems like a serious group that has space for different people and their opinion.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I am mostly interested in computer science and philosophy.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

The most important things is my life out of the computer, so even that I use my entire work day and some extra night hours online. My favorite time is when the computer is off I can just enjoy live with my girlfriend, friends and family.

Crypt - November 14, 2018, 10:58 pm

Application

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I would discuss it directly with members I feel would be interested in the topic at hand.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? Tell them that I'm calm and that we should be able to have a mature and factual conversation without getting angry.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? I never let insults hurt me so I really wouldn't care if someone didn't agree with my personal beliefs. All I could do is try an persuade them in a mature and respectful way.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?With facts and evidence. You need to point out what isn't correct and back it up with proof.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? Someone goal oriented, mature, confident and likes to have intellectual conversations.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? No I have not.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? I would say a lion

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? I would say around 3 PM, I see a lake, street lights, grass and people walking/jogging

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? I really like the SRPP section and want to be around other members that also like these topics and can have mature conversations about real world problems.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? I am very political and like to defend my point but am also openminded and like to understand why people feel the way they do and think the way they think.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Honestly, loyalty and standing up for what you believe in.

Business - November 28, 2018, 10:36 pm

I need more people to debate with! Let's see some new applications!

Bacardi Cola Lime - December 3, 2018, 4:01 pm

BehaviorI won't grave-dig my thread by any means. If no one has shown interest I will reevaluate my facts and ask any questions as clear as possible, before making another thread or discuss it privately with someone.

Time can bring the heat down, so I would give some time to both of us and start debating again by showing my goodwill for a healthy conversation.

Insults are not welcome to any type of conversation and what's the best way to show it, other than ignoring suck kind of behaviors. I would accept insults only if I had done or said anything wrong and/or insulting myself by mistake and without my knowledge. In that case I would apologize and end the subject.

I would present the facts that I believe are true in a polite way and hold a mature conversation while trying to show where and why one is wrong.

Information about youI would describe myself as a down-to-earth guy with knowledge and opinion on tons of stuff. Of course I love debating and sharing what I know, otherwise I wouldn't apply.

I've been to one of the first HF groups, called The Wraith.

A wolf is my pick

I'm in the woods, I can see shadows of probably animals around me and it's midnight.

Other questionsI've been active again on the forum for 2-3 weeks now. I'm now a 21 year old, mature individual with hunger for knowledge about endless subjects. A SRPP group, in my opinion, can be a "home" to my excitement for knowledge and conversation with other people.

Science and philosophy are what I'm interested more in, because I believe they are connected. There can't be the one without the other. Politics is something I gain interest as I get older. Religion has the last spot for me.

The most important thing of all is life if you ask me. I wouldn't write this right now if life didn't exist.

hash - December 4, 2018, 12:47 am

BehaviorIf I see my thread doesn't bring up any discussion I have to accept that. I'm not gravedigging threads and I will try to reformulate my theorem and hope I can discuss my topic later.

A heated argument doesn't mean it's bad. Sometimes emotions regarding a personal topic can get heated indeed. When it turns bad I will speak that out and that I do not want to engage in a bad way since it will affect the whole group/discussion.

I will tell that person this is not the way we have a discussion. Everyone can have their own view and opinions (good discussion topic) and people should respect that. If that person disagrees with me, I would love to hear his/her view regarding the topic.

Searching for trusted sources regarding a topic and quoting parts of it and elaborate why his/her theorem is not true. The most important thing is that it's meant in a good way.

Information about meI am a calm, friendly male studying information engineering. Besides that I work at a big IT company working on IoT architectures. In my free time I run a small hotel and doing personal IT projects. I am part of a student association and often have a discussion evening with my friends. With a beer discussion recent events in the world.

I have not been in any groups regarding these topics. I do post on subreddits regarding these topics.

I would be an owl. I often watch from a distance and in groups I like to listen and after evaluating my thought speak that out. Owls are intelligent, calm, insightful and often like to be in a quiet working environment. They only venture out when needed.

Owls won't hesitate to use their sharp tongue to settle and argument and fight for their survival and honor.

It's 7:30 AM, I see the sun coming up and wind is blowing through trees. Next to me is a really old canal with beautiful dock cellars. With boats navigating through the narrow canal and store owners getting their shop ready, I am getting out my camera and capture this beautiful day. Thinking about what happened here 100 years ago when our country was one the richest in the world. Where am I?

Other questionsBesides the fact that I love meeting new people on this forum and being active in a group, I would love to engage in some quality discussions. I think everyone can learn from one another and it's fun to see people their mind changed. I would love to have some real conversations about real problems, I hope I can be a contribution to your group.

I am most interested in political and religion topics. I am fascinated with politics especially internationally. Politics are basically a spectacle/play and everyone is trying to give their own performance and playing along with the game. Raised in a Christian school I gained the knowledge about various religions and always gave a lot of presentations regarding my own views (agnostic), that was many years ago but I am grateful that I went there and gained knowledge about religion.

Respect

Sixen+ - December 4, 2018, 1:36 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Conversation is a two way street, if people seem disinterested in what you have to say then it's best to move onto a new topic. As the original poster, you set the pavement for the discussion so there should be no reason as to why you can't develop a new argument. You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?It should never get to this point if you continue to debate in a logical manner. If one person is being personally insulting, and the other continues to post with poise, then eventually the person that is getting heated will likely realize that the aggressive comments are doing nothing for him/her. People that insult, are likely doing it just to get a rise out of the other person. If you remain calm, it will never hit the boiling point. Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? These are the types of responses that I ignore. I'm sure many other people will be posting and I will just choose them to have a conversation with over the person who is insulting. Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? I think this is the best part about SRPP. This is where people get to exchange knowledge and if done in a tasteful manner, people can actually learn a lot from the section. When claiming that someone is wrong, it is important to let them know that they are misinformed and then explain fully in detail why they are wrong. Just claiming someone is wrong without any evidence is irritating and that is the fastest way for people to get defensive about their stance.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? I would say for the most part I'm very passionate. Everything I say and do I go over the top and sometimes people can be intimidated when I get really animated in a subject that I really enjoy talking about. Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? I have not, HF has been my only outlet of speech besides being in lecture halls. If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? I would say a Bear. I'm extremely persistent and strong. What I envision in my mind is what I set out to achieve and I won't stop until I get there. You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? It is dusk (6-7 pm), I see an extremely straight, narrow, dirt path with low hanging shrubs on the sides of me and in the distance.. a massive green forest and a large shadow being cast in front of me from the setting sun.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? I think it's great to be a part of a group that prides themselves on spreading and receiving knowledge. This move to the SRPP allows the members of this community to connect on a deeper level outside of business and tech. What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? I've likely stated this before somewhere but I'm currently at university studying biochemistry. So as you could guess, I have an extreme passion for science and I also enjoy the world of tech. What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Education is what I value the most. Whether it is formal (University) or self taught, the mind craves the process of learning. People who are willing to listen and understand from those who succeeded before them will piece together the future with others who do the same.

Business - December 4, 2018, 10:11 am

(Dec 4, 2018 02:36 AM)Sixen+ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) -Sixen has my complete vouch. He's online daily and has some really unique perspectives. Let's pull the trigger on this application. ?

phr3ak_ - December 5, 2018, 11:49 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

If the thread is worth to me I would try to reach out to fellow members who are having a bit amount of knowledge in that particular domain, instead of simply bumping the thread. I would try to start a meaningful conversation with them and then would persuade them to take part in the discussion on the thread so that everyone can share their views and opinions.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would simply try to understand what made the debate to a heated fight. After that considering his valuable points I would like to let him speak his mind after that would simply apologise if I had offended him in any way and would try to make him understand my point of view. It is not always possible for people to agree with you every time so I wouldn't stress it too much.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I wouldn't necessarily react. Instead, if his points are valid and he is insulting me for that I would appreciate his straightforwardness. But if the member is trolling or just insulting without a proper valid point. I would present him with the facts and points supporting my thoughts and would try to avoid any spamfest if he still doesn't understand the thought of my mind.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Forums are for discussing and learning and sharing. If what he claims is not true I would present him with the facts and data and would report the thread also to avoid wrong sharing of information across the board.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am a person who is keen to learn and share his knowledge with his fellow members. I am looking forward towards the betterment and help towards the community and its members. I am a bit new to this forum but I am sure I can prove my worth given the opportunity.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Unfortunately no. I have been around HF community only.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Lion. Since it would represent the royal and humble nature of me.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's dawn in the middle of a green forest where the leaves and flowers are covered with mist and a thin ray of light is coming through the forests above.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I want to be a part of Dawn since I have a keen interest in science and religion. I love having some intellectual debates with other fellow companions as well.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Almost anything related to Advanced Physics or maybe even Sci-Fi. Topics like time travel, Paradox and Thought experiments pique my brain and my interest.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

My family comes before everything to me. And I value their love and support before anything else.

Spoiler (Click to View) Had a really wonderful time answering these questions. Best of luck to all the participants.

BlackFriday69er - December 8, 2018, 5:07 pm

(Aug 8, 2018 07:24 AM)Mr.Cat Wrote: (CITE) "The first rays of light that sustain a new day."

Dawn is slowly transitioning into a Science, Religion, Philosophy, and Politics (SRPP) group and is now open for recruitment. We are looking for people who are interested in debating or simply discussing various topics but are also capable of acting mature, calm, and respectful towards other members of the group. We expect our members to be active, but most importantly, we want them to enjoy themselves and have fun! Dawn will be a group with a limited member count. Quality members are much more valuable to us than a large influx of members, and we prefer a family environment where everyone's views can be expressed and heard better. With a close group, our members will be able to get to know one another and form bonds or friendships rather than stay in the anonymity that bigger groups very regularly develop. There are a limited number of open positions available, so we will be very careful with our member selection. We will mainly focus on SRPP-related topics, but we might allow some out-of-topic discussions.

[img]http://www.thednastore.com/images/separator.png[/img] Requirements: You will be expected to post 1 thread every 1 month and 1 post every week minimum.

No legitimate/valid scam reports.

No ban history.

While negative reputation is most likely to not affect your chances of success, it might be considered.

Application:

You will have to answer the questions below in order to apply for our group, and we will later evaluate your answers. You will receive a PM if you are successful. Good luck and try to be creative!

Behavior It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Ask if there is anyone that would like to discuss it with me, and if not then just forget about it.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Either try and calm it down or leave it and walk away, best thing to do in some cases.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Just ignore them, people are allowed to have their opinions

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Go and find evidence that shows that what they are saying is wrong

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I never do like these parts in interviews

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I have a post in amongst the section on this forum that has had a lot of interest in

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

White leopard (my favourite animal)

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

darkness and trees, early hours of the morning

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I want to join a group/crew that i can participate with and be an active member within this forum

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I dont really have a favourite, im quite open to a lot of things really

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Honesty and respect, without that you dont have anything

If you have any questions you can either contact me, Night Fury or DerMensch24.

please find all questions answered whit3 - December 11, 2018, 3:09 am

Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would probably wait a while, then maybe ask it more clearly and would connect it to an up to date discussion. I would clearly state why I want to discuss it, reasons in a chain maybe :) Then, still no chance, I would let it go.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would probably try to calm the debate because according to me, you can only make others understand you while you are acting calm and reasonable.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I just read the comment and do as Community Guidelines (Code of Conduct) says. It can be HF CoC or Dawn CoC.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would first mention about the point that I agree with him and why. Then, state the point that "I think" it is wrong and why with reasons and proofs if any.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

How would you describe yourself to someone? I think I am a helpful and debatable person. I generally search first, then ask, and expect people to do so because I generally won't debate with a person out of knowledge. I also love to teach and learn.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? There is a society in my country which is about science and philosophy I attended its meetings and camps. We had a great time and debated a lot.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?
Beaver.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?
It is dawn or sunset, there is a sun but not shining very well, but it let me see around. There is a bay, lots of seagulls and ships, I think it would be from the 19th century because ships have sails and in the shore lots of fishermen and traders. Also, there is an island, and stones in a circle figure. I think there is intelligentsia, who decide about the city and country. And houses are little old but seem cozy and warm.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I like to talk, debate and learn. I think every mind is a unique world, and I want to explore them. I think there are more like me, like-minded people in Dawn.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Science and philosophy because I mostly enjoy the topics that I can't figure out. I am looking for reasonable explanations for my questions and curiosity.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Time, the only thing we can't manipulate and can't recover.

S2K - December 12, 2018, 5:31 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? If there is no response and interest after some time, I may comment something in different ways to attract people's interest. If still no interest I don't reply or bump it again. And next time I'm going to open a thread on same field/topic I consider much more.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I may get angry depends on the topic, but I never wanted to offend someone in any ways. I can try to smooth that over and end the debate before it is getting much more ahead.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

From my previous experiences, I have been in such situations before and I have taken a dislike to/those communities. If people don't respect each other's opinions there is no reason for me to stay there.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

If that is a something harmful to the OP in any ways I pm him and correct his claims and make advice about removing/deleting that. Otherwise, I can post his thread with reasons/proof and try to correct him in a kind way

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

Hmm, that's a tough question for me. I'm not a very social nor antisocial guy, somewhere between them. Clever, ambitious.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Not specifically, but I have been posted time to time on other boards before I came here. I like to talk about politics but not others that much.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Tiger

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Far away, there are great mountains. And gray clouds, not a shiny day so I can't see the sun. Wind is blowing warm. Long pine trees around, I can see various shades of green and breathe that wondrous air.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

Something on the cover image forced me to that. I'm so much impressed by that scene. I feel something interesting and beautiful inside me when I look at it but can't describe. And this: Spoiler \(Click to View\)and we prefer a family environment

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Politics and then religions. For religions, I like to know more about how other people see things differently from me/others and want to understand them better. I also read holy scriptures of the biggest religions in order to understand them better. So why shouldn't I discuss about it

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

My happiness. I want to be happy, that's all I want in my life

Spaark - December 12, 2018, 8:37 am

I've applied through PM to Mr.Cat. Love the look of this group.

I'll be waiting petrified for a response. Wish me luck :)

overlude - December 21, 2018, 9:39 pm

I don't know whether you consider on the actual criteria written, or on elitist principles of group / reputation, but either way here are my answers.

These aren't really philosophy-style questions tbh. The answers seem pretty simple. You guys could've come up with a far better application template.

Quote:It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Find someone to discuss the topic with, somewhere else (reddit, Discord, anywhere else). You can't force someone to be interested in something they're not, so obviously that thread just naturally dies.

Quote:You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Usually when a debate gets heated, there is no further value to be gained from the discussion since people are going to be too inclined to stick with their own opinion rather than engage in any meaningful discussion. I'd summarise my argument and exit the discussion by this point.

Quote:Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Ignore it? There is no meaningful discussion to be had by engaging in this discourse.

Quote:Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Summarise my argument for why I believe it is not true.

Quote:Why do you want to join Dawn?

Hopefully there are some meaningful topics to discuss within Dawn. SRPP is probably one of the main areas of interest I have on this forum, so membership of the group could be interesting.

Quote:What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Anything interesting - a very diverse nature of topics. I like the sciences generally.

Omitted some questions, I honestly can't come up with decent answers to those, and I don't really find them to be interesting questions as it is. As I said above, you could've come up with a far better template.

Wave Digital - December 22, 2018, 3:40 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Review the scope/ phrasing of the question to make sure it's not a "loaded question". Should I find my question to be reasonable I'd invite peoples opinion I respect and ask for their opinion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

In debates I ignore attacks and remain on point and stay away from making ad hominen based attacks myself.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I don't. Waste of time and effort. Attacking ideas should be encouraged. Not individuals.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him/her. How do you do it?

With logic and reason and if I can see a logical fallacy I'll point that out.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

A mixed bag that doesn't fall into any one box as a result of independent critical thought.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Not online

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Orca

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

[When I first read this question my immediate reaction was that this was a waste of time. How do I respond politely saying I refuse to answer? etc?

Then I realised that I have visualised a number of different paths so I may as well answer with what they all had in common.

They were all of nature, rainforrest, beach, gum trees. They were all during the day.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I enjoy the subjects of discussion that the group is focused on.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Politics due to the fact I support policies of both sides of politics sometimes on the far right and left which has lead to me thinking about politics a lot in my day to day life.

Some examples:

I'm an advocate of environmental protection and relaxation of firearm laws (in Australia).

I'm pro Socialised healthcare and higher education but against unemployment benefits.

I could go on but my stances see myself being disliked by most if not all political parties in general which I think leads to more critical thought about politics without any form of tribalism impacting my opinions.

Psychedelic drugs and lucid dreaming. I believe that these topics hold the clues to existence/consciousness and have a passion for learning more about them.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Potential.

Sombre - December 30, 2018, 10:46 am

I've applied through PM to Mr.Cat. This group would be great for me!

Wish me luck ?

Pray's Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

If the topic is not interesting to others, then it's not interesting to others. I won't annoy people or force them to engage with me. I would try to think of another great topic that I think would be interesting and move on from there.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

First, I would do everything possible to calm and de-escalate the situation. Heated debates almost never end well and the parties can almost never find common ground when emotions are high. If I am unable to de-escalate, then I will try to move on to a different point where there will be less emotion. If that still does not achieve my goal, then I will conclude the debate, kindly wish the other person a good day, and move on.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I'll ask for their point of view and ignore the insult. I won't point it out to them (unless it's in a PM and I'm genuinely trying to help them improve their etiquette) as I don't think public confrontation will ever move the discussion to a good place. If they ignore my attempts to create a discussion, then I will ignore the use completely.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I explain why it's incorrect followed by sources. I would do it in a non-deragatory way, because most of the time (at least I'd like to believe) people are not being malicious and dishonest, it's usually just a misunderstanding or ignorance on their part. If we can discuss it and both learn from it, I think that's a great success in it of itself.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

Caring, honest, and funny. I have a dark humor but I am professional when talking with people who I do not know well.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I spend a lot of time on various subreddits (Reddit) discussing science, politics, and economics. I have an education in economics, so I try to use my knowledge in that as much as possible when discussing politics, which I believe provides a lot of knowledge when discussing policy and how something could be improved. For philosophy and science, I'm more of a learner rather than a debater.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A lion.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Around 9 PM or so in my neighborhood, when it's dark. I like the cool weather and the fact that there aren't many other people walking around. It's quite and very peaceful.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I want to spend most of my time on here in the SRPP section, however it's not very active at the moment - usually a thread or two a day and only a few posts. Thus, I'd love to join Dawn so I can be a part of an active community of individuals who want the same thing and are looking to gain and share their knowledge.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I'd be most interested in creating topics about politics, especially those with close ties to economics and how the policies at hand could work. I would also be very active in philosophy and science topics, but mostly asking questions and trying to learn on those fronts.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Knowledge and the ability to learn. I believe this is the core thing and what drives me the most in life.

Night Fury - January 22, 2019, 5:38 pm

All members that have applied thus far have been accepted. Thank you for your patience and interest in joining Dawn.

@overlude

I rarely respond to individual applicants in a public setting, but I do have some feedback regarding your recent application:

Spoiler (Click to View)

Mr.Cat - January 22, 2019, 7:02 pm

(Dec 21, 2018 10:39 PM)overlude Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't know whether you consider on the actual criteria written, or on elitist principles of group / reputation, but either way here are my answers.

These aren't really philosophy-style questions tbh. The answers seem pretty simple. You guys could've come up with a far better application template.

Find someone to discuss the topic with, somewhere else (reddit, Discord, anywhere else). You can't force someone to be interested in something they're not, so obviously that thread just naturally dies.

Usually when a debate gets heated, there is no further value to be gained from the discussion since people are going to be too inclined to stick with their own opinion rather than engage in any meaningful discussion. I'd summarise my argument and exit the discussion by this point.

Ignore it? There is no meaningful discussion to be had by engaging in this discourse.

Summarise my argument for why I believe it is not true.

Hopefully there are some meaningful topics to discuss within Dawn. SRPP is probably one of the main areas of interest I have on this forum, so membership of the group could be interesting.

Anything interesting - a very diverse nature of topics. I like the sciences generally.

Omitted some questions, I honestly can't come up with decent answers to those, and I don't really find them to be interesting questions as it is. As I said above, you could've come up with a far better template. Why do you think philosophical questions would be better than behavioral and personality oriented questions? Your philosophies are shown in your actions and behavior anyways. Also, we did not ask for any feedback or opinions about our questions from any applicant. We only asked for our questions to be answered with creativity. Next time (and that goes to all of the rest), please send me a personal message regarding feedback, improvement suggestions or any complains that you have and we can discuss it there.

=====

Behavior:

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I wouldn't grave dig a thread as it's against the rules so I would maybe take a look at who did comment on it and maybe send them a PM that way we can discuss the thread but not break any rules.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would stop responding to the person I am having the debate with and will wait a few hours before replying to see how they reply. If it still stays heated, I would send them a PM to work things out with them, and if they weren't interested in resolving things - I would just ignore them and the thread, possibly closing the thread to avoid any other future arguements.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

If it was against the site rules, I would send them a PM asking them to remove their post and I would explain to them what rule/s they are breaking. If they refused to remove their post, I would ignore them and notify the group leader/s and/or report them to the staff members of the website (depending on the issue).

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would reply on the thread in a calm manner, giving my thoughts of the thread and showing proof/sources if I possibly could to back up my post. I would never flame someone or try to start an argument with anyone, just would try and start a debate.

Information About You:

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am a very laidback person who gets along with almost EVERYONE. I like to think I am a happy person and I am always willing to help anyone who is in need of it. I am an active user who enjoys making new friends and talking to all sorts of new people. I am friendly and always willing to not only learn new things about anything, but also teach things to other members.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
No I have not.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I would pick a tiger and the reason why is because a tiger is usually a calm animal, however if need to be can be a dangerous animal when needed to be. I love how a tiger protects their entire family from predators.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It's dark out, but not too dark and it's a little cold. The wind has a chill to it and ,y hands are in my jacket pockets and I am walking at a fairly slow pace. I am looking around at all the lights from the shops and buildings and can hear the very faint sirens and beeping in the background.

Other Questions:

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I would love to join Dawn as I really like the idea of the group. I feel like I would make a great addition to the group with my knowledge that I have and with my user activity. I am a friendly user who is always willing to learn new things, teach things to others that I have knowledge of, and to always have a good discussion with other members about all sorts of different topics.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy all sorts of different topics, anything is great to be discussed with fellow members. However, if I had to choose it would have to be science. I enjoy learning new things relating to science and being aware of all science related topics that are happening around the entire world.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Knowledge and kindness to one another.

Spaark - January 30, 2019, 6:35 pm

(Dec 12, 2018 09:37 AM)Spaark Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've applied through PM to Mr.Cat. Love the look of this group.

I'll be waiting petrified for a response. Wish me luck :)

I've been in Dawn for the past few months and can't stress how good of a group it is. Lots of very HQ members with lots to talk about.

Anyone with their head out of their ass would enjoy this group, if you've got a hunger for good conversation and debate I'd recommend applying.

RedCupcake - February 6, 2019, 4:02 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I've actually had this happen to me a few times in the past. I simply brought up the conversation and asked for the other members opinions on the group subforum lounge. I also asked the members to give me feedback of what to improve on for my future threads.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I try very hard to control my anger, however I'll admit I do have some anger issues but I mainly try to remain calm and positive or just let the person win the debate if it's not worth arguing. I do my best to keep my composure.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I usually respond with the fact that everyone is allowed to have their own opinions and beliefs.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I'll give my advice that they should research their information again, then let them know their information is incorrect and back up my reasoning with sources and links providing evidence this person is writing a false thread. Personally though I don't enjoy making someone feel uneducated by belittling them so I'll possibly send all my opinions in a personal message to avoid making them look or feel foolish.

Information About You

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm very kind but weird.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
I have not, but I am a division leader for the Anime Addicts in Samaritans.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I would say either a dog or a wolf. I'm overly kind and I'm told often I have a big heart, I tend to be a bit of a loner but I keep my circle small.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

A forest of tall trees with a little creek and squirrels playing. It feels and looks like 12pm midday, it's warm and sunny with a small cool breeze.

Other Questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I've only been in one group since I joined Hf but I honestly feel this group is more for me. I've had many discussions about different topics Dawn covers and I enjoyed them a lot. Plus I'll be honest I've had it on my mind to apply for some time, and I recently have been feeling an urge to apply finally. I hope my reasoning makes sense.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Probably a little bit of everything. I mainly enjoy conversing about theories, spiritual beliefs and religions.

I've studied a decent amount of psychology and a little bit of philosophy.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I value many things, I value my life, loved ones, and everything life has given me. Most of all I value the happiness I provide for the people I care about.

SORRIE - February 6, 2019, 4:06 pm

add me to your group becuase im amazing and everyone will love talking to me. Thanks lmk when invited

TayterJ - February 7, 2019, 8:39 am

Seems like a great group. I would apply, but my recent activity probably wouldn't instill much confidence. I also tend to go inactive for varying stints of time. Good luck to all applicants and good luck to recruiters, hope you can get some individuals who are able to have mature discussions!

Pikachu - February 13, 2019, 6:59 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would recommend the thread to some of my friends who might enjoy it, and just discuss the topic with them. No need to mindlessly bump a thread and break the rules.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Always keep calm, and remain positive at all times. No need for the negativity.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Oh well, people can insult me all they want. They aren't getting a rise out of me. I will keep my cool and remain positive. No need to fuel the negative.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Try to kindly explain where they may be wrong in a positive way. There is no need for fights or insults.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am just an ordinary guy who has been trying to get more in tune with my spiritual side.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No I have not, this would be my first group if I was accepted.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I would probably pick a raven, they are highly intelligent birds, some of which are capable of mimicking human speech.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see many plants, trees and animals, it's a forest-like setting, it is evening, not exactly dark yet, but it's that nice sunset setting.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I feel like I would enjoy a lot of the philosophical, religious and spiritual topics that this group will have to offer.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Mainly topics on ancient spiritual philosophy, such as Atlantis, Ancient Egypt, Ancient Greece, Sumeria, Tibet, The Emerald Tablets, Gods and Goddesses, Witchcraft, Alchemy etc. I just love reading and studying this type of stuff, it is essential to my path, which is to get more in tune with my spiritual side.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

For me, Family will always come first. Second, wisdom, knowledge and spirituality.

Playboy - February 13, 2019, 9:02 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would offer the extension of discussing it thru PM to anyone that would be willing to discuss the matter. I would not push the subject any further.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would calmly remind them that it is simply a debate and if the problem continues I would end the conversation.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I would simply let it roll off my back.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would provide all ample evidence proving my innocence to the subject at hand.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

A thoughtful, decent man that is always open to giving and receiving advice whenever it may be needed. A people person if you will.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I have not, though I love to give helpful advice and information in the innuendo and vice sections of the forum.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A dog, a best friend and a loyal one always.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see beautiful scenery and the time is probably at night as I love to star gaze.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I would like to extend to another platform where I can engage in thought provoking conversations as well as make lasting relationships.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Science, astronomy and politics. For the first two subjects I have listed, the world and space it self never ceases to amaze me. I love to adventure into the unknown. For politics I enjoy being fully aware of current situations and keeping others informed of what's going on especially if it's of a important matter.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Time. Time is very limited and what you can do with it is only what you choose to do with it. You will never get it back. I value my family the most above all.

I would just like to say thank you for reviewing my application and I hope you choose to move forward as I promise you'll recieve nothing but the highest quality from me.

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I would try and pm some people to see if they would like to have a debate about what the thread is about.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

try and ice out the heat and if need be close the thread for a day then reopen it later on. or just pm the heated person/people and tell them to take a chill pill.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

everyone is open to there own point of view and freedom of speech so I wouldn't take anything from it.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

explain to him with proof that what he says is wrong but its nice to see your view of this subject

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I would call myself a very constructive person who is always looking out for new things.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

Not yet But really want to give it a try as it seems up my street.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I think it would be a lion, as I hunt for new stuff and get straight into it taking a bite almost instantly.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Its clear skys and a dirty mud road I see myself getting stuck in the mud surrounded by trees whispering at me but I struggle thru the dirt to the end of the path to greet heavens

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I would like to become part of a more active and dedicated area of HF that has everyone thinking around the same topics.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

My main topics are science side stuff, mystical thing and UFOs love that stuff and really cant get enough of it. recently getting into politics since the Uk leaving eu.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Family, friends and time. we dont have enough time in our lives so live it to the best!

These applications are putting me to sleep. Step the fuck up seriously.

I don't eat ass but I talk shit.

Opticals - March 3, 2019, 8:31 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I'd privately discuss that with the member(s) that had the issue, if it was a thread I had posted a while ago it could easily be something that we could talk about.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? I try and see their side of the debate and really look at it through their eyes as well. Most of my debates don't get heated because I really do try and see the other person's side and never try and push my opinion or idea on someone that I can tell really isn't feeling what I've got to say.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Realistically I don't let me political views out very much simply because I think it's such an easy topic to get frustrated on because everyone has different opinions on things that impact their life. I would take what they have said in account and move on with the topic as it obviously isn't going to go anywhere productive.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? Privately message them and let them know what they have posted is false and let them fix it for themselves.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? I would describe myself as an optimistic. I always try and see the other side of the grass and never let someone put me down. I'll always have your back unless you don't have mine.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?
No.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? An owl.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? Lots of shrubs and trees filled with wildlife, it's dusk.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? Amazing group with even better members.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Anything space, I absolutely love the ocean of emptiness.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Family and friends, without that life just feels empty. If you can't wake up and know you have a layer of love in your life what really is there to life for?

Hinshi - March 7, 2019, 8:55 pm

Some of the questions in the application are pretty mundane and contain some presuppositions (a few epistemological ones), and other questions in the form sound like a faux attempt to psychoanalyze people (e.g., "what animal best represents you?"). I'll answer them regardless, but they all manage to be incredibly underwhelming. I'd be open to help you or the other leaders revise the application if that's something you're interested in. The hypothetical questions can be answered conjecturally, but I can't say with unequivocal certainty how I might actually respond to a situation until it's actually occurred; because they're hypothetical, they're necessarily speculative. I'll just extrapolate from previous cases.

I'm fairly certain I have more activity in the SRPP section since 2012 than anyone in the group.

Quote:It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Bump the thread or mention the thread in whatever off-site server the group happens to have.

Quote:You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Respond to anything that is actually substantive and ignore everything that isn't.

Quote:Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Report the post and worry about something substantive. I've been on the forum for nearly eight years and have heard basically everything that there is to hear.

Quote:Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

This is the question I was referencing earlier.

There are four presuppositions contained within the question which you don't seem to account for, and any conceivable response can vary drastically (from answering within the confines of the inquiry or repudiating it entirely) contingent upon whether someone affirms or denies them:

1. Truth and falsity (however so defined) are objectively ascertainable "...something that is not true." indicates that some-thing is unilaterally false
2. Knowledge (however so defined) exists "You know that it [1] is not true..."
3. Knowledge is objectively ascertainable ^{supra} [2]

By "objectively" I intend to mean mind-independent. By "mind-independent" I intend to mean non-cognitivist, or that truth and falsity are properties which can exist if certain external truth conditions are satisfied (a posteriori). I'm excluding tautologies (a priori) because they aren't relevant.

The objections an aspiring applicant could raise which would naturally entail them as being incapable of honestly answering this question are manifold:

With respect to [1], an epistemological nihilist or Berkeleyan idealist ('immaterialist' was the nomenclature he used), for example, could reject the notion that anyone can unequivocally ascertain the truth value of non-aphoristic (deductive a priori/analytic) propositions due to their inextricable relationship with conceivably fallible cognitive and sensory apparatuses. Knowledge of truth and falsehood would be construed as intrinsic to the mind or cognitive faculties, rather than extrinsic.

W/r/t [2], if someone is fundamentally uncommitted to the notion that robust knowledge of some state of affairs is even ascertainable, they would necessarily be prohibited from honestly describing how they would hypothetically act in a scenario wherein the presumption of robust knowledge of some state of affairs is attainable.

W/r/t [3], you don't define what exactly you even mean by "knowledge" in the application's question, and the necessary and sufficient conditions for what does and, conversely, does not constitute knowledge are unknown to anyone who reads your inquiry which both presupposes the existence of some kind of vague knowledge and of hitherto undefined truth and falsity.

In order to answer this question aptly, it would require the person answering to elucidate what evidentiary standard they're using, the epistemological framework they're operating within, and whether the aforementioned standard permits robust knowledge of synthetic truths.

Quote:How would you describe yourself to someone?

That would vary on who I'm speaking with. I might withhold or divulge more or less information.

Quote:Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I was a member of Logic under Hexicidal and I'm a member of Wizard Forums, The Philosophy Forum, and the Philosophy Stack Exchange.

Quote:If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Humans are animals and best represent what I think I am.

Quote:You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I'm at the front door of the diner in the first season of the first episode of The Twilight Zone at 3:33 am.

Quote:Why do you want to join Dawn?

I like the SRPP section and it's been in shambles ever since Logic was disbanded and malichi got banned, and Dawn with some initiative can help remedy some of the effects of both's absence.

Quote:What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Metaphysics (especially mereology), meta-ethics, and meta-epistemology. I dislike normativity in general, so the corollary is that I prefer meta-ethics and meta-epistemology. I also like most continental philosophy and existentialism, particularly Camus' writings. Most recently I've been interested in a lot of Guattari and Deleuze's work (all of Capitalism & Schizophrenia), and I've been reading some excerpts from The Second Sex by Beauvoir.

Quote:What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

This is arbitrary and I don't consider anything objectively important or inherently valuable--but I do value my life, and in particular my eyesight.

iKinky - March 9, 2019, 1:48 am

A high quality group for high quality folk. Good luck with your applications!

Android 17 - March 11, 2019, 9:49 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I might bump once but afterwards I'd just move on. Too many subjects to discuss for my own ideas to be the only focus,

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do? End it. Debates aren't meant to get angry. They're to test wits in a civil fashion.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react? Again, I'm not an arguer in debates especially internet ones. So I'd just let them feel they'd won.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? In a respectable fashion. Start of with something like "I know you may hold this to be true but... Show sources and the likes. No need to be rude just because someone is less informed than you.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone? Laid back and very self reflective.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Back in the day around 2012-2013 there was another based upon SRPP that I was part of. Loved it.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? Raven. Dark, mysterious, but highly intelligent.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? Trees and grass. A little past dawn. Just enough natural light to see when the forest are first waking up.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? I'm a debater to the core. Love seeing others ideas as well as speaking my own. It's nice to have a place to focus on highly intelligent conversation.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Philisophical and Religion of any kind.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Family most of all. But knowledge and family. The two things I can not do without. I'm always on the search for more knowledge.

Zeus - March 15, 2019, 7:56 am

Zeus Dawn Application

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I'd likely reignite the conversation in a lounge, if there weren't any takes I'd probably just move on. Discussion is only interesting if it isn't forced.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would back off, no need to get personal. I don't get overly invested in my ideas, and people have disagreements all the time. However I am happy to civilly debate on something I am confident in.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Their insults better come with an argument to support it because that's how debate works. I won't be making a thread without intention to debate.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

With supporting evidence of facts. I don't get outraged and over react if that's what you're trying to gauge with this question.

Information about you
How would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm a sociable member, being outgoing in most circumstances. Just a nice guy who's more than willing to make a few more friends.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No. I've not been on any other forums outside of HF, however, I'm here applying to you today because I have an interest in being involved.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I've got a tiger tattoo on my arm so I'd probably have to go with that. (I'm more than willing to share that experience).

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Early evening, street lights just coming on giving barely emitting any effect. Vibrant colours of the streets of Amsterdam. Paradise :).

Other questions
Why do you want to join Dawn?

Having been on HF for quite some time I'd like to branch out into other groups that can provide me with a larger picture of the world. Seeing other Dawn members elsewhere in the forum really encourages me to dive into topics I usually wouldn't.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy discussing money making methods and other interesting schemes with people in my current groups. Other than that, I'm a vape enthusiast, enjoy a bit of anime and am open to talk about most things.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Family, Friends and Loyalty.
Thankyou for your consideration,
Zeus

Xphile - March 15, 2019, 9:27 am
Dawn Application Form
Behaviour

Q: It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

A: I'll discuss the topic elsewhere, with other people. Members should not be expected to uphold threads they have no interest in.

Q: You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

A: Disengage with the person immediately, people who are incapable of calm debate are usually morons and aren't worth listening to.

Q: Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

A: Ask if they're prepared to make an actual argument against the view, if they can't, see the above answer.

Q: Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

A: I'll give the correct statement and provide sources and/or reasoning for the statement. That being said, other people being wrong is not my concern, so I may just leave them to it if the original claim doesn't affect me.

Information about you

Q: How would you describe yourself to someone?

A: Depends on the person of course, if they aren't accustomed to particular values I hold, then I'll omit them from the description. I suppose I'd describe myself to somebody with restraint, projecting views without first knowing your audience is a bad thing to do.

Q: Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

A: Nope. Unless you count drunken arguments in the pub as a "focused group"...

Q: If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A: Difficult question, considering man is just another animal. I honestly can't decide on what "lesser animal" I'd choose.

Q: You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

A: It's dusk, with a full moon rising. The path is quite high up as-if on a hill, naturally it's surrounded by rolling hills and fields in the English country. Harvest animals populate the fields and there are no other humans to be seen.

Other questions

Q: Why do you want to join Dawn?

A: Honestly, the cool userbar is a selling point for me. Arguments surrounding SRPP have always been sources of entertainment for me, and not much more. Do with that as you will I suppose.

Q: What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

A: On SRPP, it has to be religion and morality. People feel the strongest about subjective things, this creates brilliant conversation when things like religion are brought up. Broadly, my primary subject of interest is network security.

Q: What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

A: The self obviously, without my own existence I can't experience anything - it would be foolish to place anything before myself. Many people are ashamed to admit their selfishness, I advocate for self-preservation and rational self-interest in all situations.

DerMensch24 - March 30, 2019, 5:01 pm

Going to put a friendly bump to our recruitment thread for anyone interested in SRPP and other related discussions that are willing to apply.

RAT - March 30, 2019, 5:17 pm

Give it a try! One of the best groups that I've been part of. Great minds with great ideas.

RyanTheGod - April 4, 2019, 9:54 am

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I'll try to post it again in a few weeks if no one seems interested I'll understand.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Whenever this happens to me I just try to take a break and come back with a cool head so I can contribute my argument with a better attitude.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I ask them why they think how they did and if they disagree I respect their opinion.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I explain what I think with facts not just my opinions. If I accuse someone of something it will definitely be with proof and never without. I am an honest person but if someone starts lying about something I will try to make sure that I give them the facts and tell them how they are wrong in a constructive way.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I think I am a helpful and debatable person. I generally search first, then ask, and expect people to do so because I generally won't debate with a person out of knowledge. I also love to teach and learn.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No because the requirements have always been too high for me to join. I wish I was able to join one though.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Dolphin.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see a bright sunny day with a clear blue sky. It is mid afternoon starting to head into the evening.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I like to talk, debate and learn. I think every mind is a unique world, and I want to explore them. I think there are more like me, like-minded people in Dawn.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Science because I mostly enjoy the topics that I can't figure out. I like the topics and they make me really curious about things happening in the world.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Being happy, if you're not happy and have money or a girl or whatever then what's the point of having it.

Stork - April 4, 2019, 2:00 pm

Seems like a fairly pseudo group, I haven't seen half the members here ever post in the SRPP LOL.

Chances are high that my reasoning for posting the thread is related to something that I read either on the forum here, or somewhere else. If I've posted a thread on it, then it is almost certainly something that I've spent a fair bit of time reading, researching, and thinking about. If no one in particular seems to be biting on the original thread, then I'd probably cross-link it in a comment on the original post in an attempt to draw more attention to my thread, or regarding some quantity or alternate facet of the matter. Some immediate examples of this might be discussing specifically the moral or economic arguments for or against AOC's "Green New Deal", the practical reality of the impossibility of gun control ever succeeding in the United States due to the fact that we own roughly half of the world's weapons, or the biological realities of sex and/or gender and how that is unlikely to translate into achieving 'true' 'gender equality' as defined by some governmental authority.

It honestly depends on how and why the discussion is getting heated. If there seems to be some misunderstanding or misinterpretation, then I'll look through what's been posted and try to figure out why, and then reframe the argument I or someone else has made. If it is possible that I am misunderstanding, then I will attempt to restate the opponent's argument to allow him to see where I've misunderstood so that he can clarify.

If neither of those seems to be quite accurate, then I'll try to make people laugh, because we're all in it for teh lulz—or at least we should be... If you're not having fun, you're doing it wrong...

It honestly depends on the view, and the political sentiment; I've struggled long and hard, and made a good number of personal sacrifices to 'live and let live'. There are some extremely complicated and divisive issues in politics—things like abortion and the death penalty—where there is no clear moral or ethical path. Invariably, when attempting to wade through these subjects, you WILL find a landmine. It is the character of the individual that decides how something like that is handled, and for me, personally, since I am the only person I HAVE to live with, so long as I feel that I have handled the situation with integrity, then I can live with any other outcome of my actions or statements.

It depends on the claims asserted, and to a lesser extent, how they are asserted. Something like "The Earth is Flat!" usually I won't even bother to respond to. Claims presented in a largely anecdotal fashion I will usually acknowledge, sometimes providing similar anecdotes from my own life, and then go on to refute the argument using some generalized statistics.

Claims that are better researched, with significant citing of data and resources are more challenging, and are deserving of a well thought-out reply, so I figure out some block of time to dedicate a more academic refutation; doing better research, names and proper citations of studies, if the claimants citations have been professionally or academically refuted already, how and by whom, et cetera. I've already spent periods of 3-4 hours constructing arguments this way on internet forums.

In a word, enigmatic. I've lived a lot—longer than I care to admit—and through it all I've been watching, reading, researching, and thinking about everything and trying to relate it all to each other. I've come to some conclusions, the most foundational of which is that nothing is concrete, and everything is subject to change, even when I am not particularly fond of the change. It could be said that I wasn't raised with a solid foundation in life, combined with an endless thirst for knowledge has lead me down strange paths, and has changed my views often, although the changes are getting fewer and less drastic.

To those interested, I can explain these views, but the paths required can sometimes get lengthy and varied. It's like making a mosaic—at first the picture is only clear to the artist, but as more tiles are laid, the observer can see more of what is going on, the picture refines and becomes clearer. By the time the mosaic is complete, the observer can fully grasp the interpretation to recreate it; although the recreation will likely be different from the original—it still contains all the essential elements.

My first was on lpsg.com; before I realized that it had been taken over by commies and gays.

These days, I will also post on groups via gab.ai.

As much as I hate to say it, a cat. I fucking hate cats—and not just because I am allergic. They are independent as hell, have a general attitude of, "fuck you; i'll do what I want to" and while generally amiable to people being pet, they are, as a general rule, not known for their loyalty—because they don't give it out easily. But once earned, their loyalty isn't easily swayed.

In a perfectly idyllic scenario, I'm hiking through some wooded foothills in the misty early morning with my gun on my hip, machete in my right hand, and walking stick in my left; 45-lbs or so pack on my back looking for dinner to kill or trap, making my way to a little-known about stream or creek to follow for about 5-10 miles where it empties into a lake where I will set up camp for the coming week or two. A couple of friends are meeting me for fishing, fire, drinks, and some target practice and tactical training.

Other than the application recommendation received, I have previously looked over the groups and found this one to be the most up my alley. Science and Philosophy are two of the pursuits I've focused on over the years, and Politics is literally involved in every aspect of our lives, hopefully guided by Science and Philosophy.

Religion is fascinating, and I love reading the studies and interpreting their meaning and morals, and I thoroughly enjoy discussing and debating any of the above. I own a few bibles, a translation of the Qu'ran, and have read various translations of a myriad of other religious texts of most faiths I've heard of, including the Book of Mormon, the Kabbalah, the Mabinogian, various ancient and new pagan texts of the Greeks and Nordic peoples, as well as various wiccan, neo-druidic, and other texts. Although I have not been able to decipher any meaning from it, I read a translation of the surviving scraps of the 'Gospel of Judas' when it was first announced and available. More so than almost anything, I believe that particular text could shed an immense understanding on the bible, as I personally believe that either Judas was the closest and most trusted of the disciples of Jesus of Nazareth, or he was the one that fucked up and learned the most from it. Either way, that story would be an incredible read.

Engineering topics, because there is a clear problem, and a definite set-point for accomplishment. They are also fascinating to study and learn about, and devise a way to solve the problem. And for some problems, even though you may have discovered a possible solution, if you are still not satisfied with some aspect of the solution, you can still go back and re-solve it for greater efficiency in some way or another.

Inner peace with myself, and knowledge is an extremely close second. If I have to choose one, I go with the one that yields a better night's sleep, although the quest for knowledge has often kept me awake for days on end.

The thing I value the most is self-respect; fuck the rest of you cunts, no offense...

Night Fury - April 7, 2019, 11:45 am

(Apr 4, 2019 02:00 PM)StorK. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Seems like a fairly pseudo group, I haven't seen half the members here ever post in the SRPP LOL.

Some simply don't wish to argue in the general SRPP venue. That doesn't make us a "pseudo group". Cheers for the input though.

DerMensch24 - May 4, 2019, 4:49 pm

Seeing as a month has gone by I shall do another friendly bump to all members seeking interest with the Dawn group.

Spaark - May 4, 2019, 5:21 pm

This group has a sublime selection of members. I'd recommend it to potential applicants who are interested in discussing SRPP.

Potentially my favourite group.

Discord bot - May 4, 2019, 5:27 pm

Out of curiosity why don't you share a list/screenshot of recent threads so people know what type of discussion to expect from the group or if it's relevant to their interests currently

123 - May 8, 2019, 2:00 pm

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I am a Science Guy who is deeply interested in Astronomy. If I ever post a thread in a Group it will most likely be regarding Astronomy. This doesn't mean other topics of Science doesn't fascinate me.

But if ever comes a chance, I post a thread and other group members doesn't discuss it. I'll bump the thread for 1-2 days asking thoughts of my fellow members. If still no one wants to discuss, I'll close the thread and move on as it would be evident the topic doesn't demand a discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I'm a non toxic person who doesn't offend anyone and doesn't get offended easily. I always try to be polite with my words.

But if I'm in a debate with someone and it gets heated badly, I'll put forward facts; my thoughts are based on in a polite way and let other members decide who is right.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

If ever I share my opinion on any topic, it will most likely be based on certain facts. I'll mention why I have that opinion on a topic as clear as I can.

If still a person chooses to insult my opinion on that particular topic, I'll try to understand his opinions. If they are logical, I'll debate for a while and see what other members think on that topic.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I'll try to explain him by linking some reliable sources which will confirm he isn't right with whatever he's saying.

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm an ambivert who loves to interact with new people. I like learning new things, meeting people from different cultures, writing poems which describes my feelings and doing adventurous things to pump adrenaline sometimes.

I'm a risk taker. Not everyone take risks in their life. I love taking risks to achieve what I love. I dropped out of my school to help my father excel at his Restaurant Business. Helped him to boost sales by taking the business digital through Social Media and Google Ads targeted on local traffic.

Took admission back to school after everything was setup and financial problem was restored. Now

I'm in college pursuing my Master degree. So yeah, it has been quite a journey.

It's already evident I love writing. Currently, I'm working on Sci-Fi novel which will be completed in next few months. I also do GFX Designing in my free time. Love playing sports, badminton and lawn tennis are my favorite.

Personality wise, I'm a chill person full of positivity and tries to spread wherever I go.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No, I have never been in such groups or forums before. They are hard to find.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

If I have to choose one animal that represents me, it would be a tortoise.

He is slow but consistent. Has a protective shell to protect him which in my case are my friends. They help me whenever I need them. I'm very subjective in choosing friends.

He doesn't complain about abilities the nature has given him rather stays cool and consistent; eventually achieves end goal.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I am walking down the path. It is the time of evening. The sun hasn't sunk fully and the sky is somewhat orange. I see people coming from opposite end. Majority of them are not happy with what they're doing in life. I'm basing this ideology on a fact; there are lot of suicide scenarios that have been occurring recently in the city.

This keeps me pumped. Reminds me not to be like them, work my ass off and live a life I have dreamt of.

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I want to interact with new people and learn few things from them. The close environment within a sub-forum will help me interact in a better way.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I love Astronomy. I can talk about it whole day. It always blows my mind how vast our universe is. What lies beyond this earth. The hidden secrets, mysteries, mind boggling phenomenas occurring all around the space. Space dilations, extraterrestrial life on some planet few light years away.

I'm sure you have seen Interstellar. Just think for a second, if you get to live that life; won't it be so amazing. This branch of Science is just so amazing, I can't even tell you.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

The only thing I value most is having a true friendship where you don't have to explain yourself to another person.

Every other relation is set up from the day we take birth. It's just one relation we use for ourself, the relation of friendship. I value it a lot. Fortunately I have got few friend in my life who are like brothers to me.

A note for Group Admin

Please do not judge me for the fact, that I don't have any activity in Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics. I don't have any valid reason of not being active there. It's just that most of the time I remained confined to Lounge only.

What I'll bring to the Group

A lot of positivity and non-toxic behaviour. Also I will try to share my knowledge as much as I can with fellow members.

SecretAchiever101 - June 15, 2019, 8:57 am

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? I rarely resort to blaming others for my mistakes, I always hold myself accountable for my actions as well. So,if I post a thread and get no engagement on it,then I will probably assume that is my fault. I will update it in order to look more appealing and message someone from the group ,so I get a feedback regarding it.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I cannot stress enough how important it is to ALWAYS bail out in these type of situations. I am a logical kind of guy.I always use reason and logic to present my arguments and apply them to each situation,so probably if the other individual starts to get offended by something I say,he is already in defensive mode,so there's no reason for me to continue the debate.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Again,bail out. I am more than happy to discuss civilly on every topic, regarding ANY situation. However,if somebody, loses his temper and starts insulting me there is no point in continuing the discussion,it's just gonna cause harm to both of us. He isn't willing to listen and I am not willing to be insulted for long enough.So, there is no point in continuing a toxic conversation.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it? Very interesting and crucial question. Ok,so,basically, we have the FACTS and the CLAIMS. When someone is claiming something for me, he has to provide PROOF in order to validate his claim. If he doesn't, then the claim is invalid. So,I kindly ask them to provide proof to justify their claims and if he doesn't, I will pm him and kindly ask him to delete the thread. If he doesn't comply I will then pm @Vitani and ask him to investigate the case thoroughly and proceed to do as he pleases after doing so.

How would you describe yourself to someone? I am rather ambitious. I tend to see the glass of water half-full and not half-empty. Not overly ambitious,tho. I set my hopes high, I set the bar high in order for me to be always striving for success and surpassing my previous limits.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? Imma be honest. No,I haven't. I was rather busy up until now so I didn't pursue it. I'd like you guys to be my first one tho! IF you are willing to accept me of course,that is.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? An eagle. I think that this specific animal represents me the most out of all others.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?
Morning....About 11 pm in the morning...I see grass and trees..Very big long ones. A valley of grass and big tall trees surrounding it.

Why do you want to join Dawn? I want to be part of a group that is consisted of skeptical individuals. To know, is to constantly ask yourself "Why?" all the time. Doubt every information that you have had up until now.Hoping that one day you will reach the root of the problem.The answer to your question,whatever that question may be. Being surrounded by intellectuals and people that are willing to engage to a philosophical discussion,that's a big fat plus for me and I'd take it every time over anything.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?
Hahaha...Oh well... If you haven't figured out up until now, philosophical topics and discussions are my absolute favorites. I also like literature,culture and science. However, philosophical discussions are by far my favorite one.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? Honesty. Integrity. Loyalty. Compassion. That's the values that define me as a person. That's the values that I think they are the most important of all. If I had to pick one out of the three I'd go with honesty. Being honest is probably the most crucial value someone should has. If you are not being honest,then you are not revealing the real problem to the other individual you are talking to. So,with false information,comes a false outcome!

DerMensch24 - August 8, 2019, 12:46 pm

Here's another friendly bump to all members seeking interest with the Dawn group.

W3 S33 4LL - August 8, 2019, 3:07 pm

Application:

Behavior:

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Talk to a leader about it, You can ask them if there's something wrong with the thread, hence you can update it and make it more pleasant.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

You need to calm down and let it go. True men need to forgive & forget about such events.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

If the insult really hurt me, The best thing to do is report it to a leader, Hence the best thing to do is Report & Not fight back, regardless how bad the insult was. Yet a political insult can become really constructive, I can talk about it without any hostility towards the user.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Message him about correcting the post with the correct information. Asking politely with manners should do the job, However, If he declines to change the information, I would report to a leader.

Information about you:

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I would describe myself as inevitable and hyped.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No, However Im a big fan of Science and Religion.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Polar bear.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Im walking through a forest at night. Around me I can see bright coloured flowers and green grass.

Other questions:

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I wish to join Dawn because I wish to talk about some topics in depth, Such as religion and my choices. Dawn would be the best place for me to share my opinions and ideas.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Science. Science is something I really loved since I was a little kid, Its inspires me and amazed me. I love physics, Hence I got good grades in my physics exams. Physics really motivated me in a way that changed me as a person.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Religion is the topic that I really love to talk about, As Im going through a religious change, I wish to learn & talk about new things that can really help me in choosing wisely. Religion is the most important topic to me and I value it as much as my existence.

Android 17 - August 11, 2019, 12:20 am

(Apr 7, 2019 11:45 AM)Night Fury Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Some simply don't wish to argue in the general SRPP venue. That doesn't make us a "pseudo group". Cheers for the input though.

Not in this group but I was in Logic back in 2012. Same concept though. Half the group stopped posting in the regular SRPP section because group debates never got out of hand. No fallacies allowed.

Spaark - August 11, 2019, 2:24 am

(Apr 7, 2019 11:45 AM)Night Fury Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Some simply don't wish to argue in the general SRPP venue. That doesn't make us a "pseudo group". Cheers for the input though.

I like to think I encouraged you to use Cheers more.

Spaark - October 13, 2019, 1:52 am

Just a reminder that this is still a group of most HQ bunch of intelligent members you can find on this here website.

Shame to see 2 months without an application. Fresh meat, please give it a crack!

Vyrkfrir - October 15, 2019, 6:15 pm

BEHAVIOUR

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Update the thread with hopefully more relevant and engaging information that can be discussed. Message members in HF chat I think may be interested and direct them to the thread. Bytes bump is another alternative, otherwise leavin the thread to die and engaging it another day are appropriate adoptions.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

If the debate gets heated, I'll remain cool headed and rational, and attempt to approach the situation from several different perspectives if need be. If to no avail, and insults begin, I'll prevent further agitating the other member by agreeing to disagree, and making it clear I don't care for ideological beefs, just good ideological discussions. I'll engage threads that I agree/disagree with the same way. Through a level headed, open minded approach - but knowing what I know, and using that to deconstruct what I'm reading to better understand/reply. In many circumstances, rather than correct someone, I'd rather ask how they got the answer that they did, providing what I thought the answer was, and asking to be corrected if I'm incorrect (so as to be reasonable to all extents).

INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I'd describe myself as someone who's a bit of a jack of all trades when it comes to technology, engineering, computing, and electrotechnology. I adore reading politics and foreign affairs, and enjoy reading about what geopolitical instances occur daily. Although I am an Absurdist/Nihilist - I enjoy talking topics relating to religion, morality, and skepticism. I like to think that I'm an intelligent person, but that reeks of arrogance. My repertoire of knowledge has kept me employed from the ages of 14-25 in a diverse general/specialist knowledge - and I practically run a salesfloor doing what I do. I am open to hearing all ideas, but if I hear something I don't like, I'm not the kind to start a fight/start throwing shit.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I have on many occasions in the past. In the last 24 months I have been on an off quite a lot (as evidenced by the 10 year old account with 2400 posts) at least 100-200 of my posts come from these forums specifically, with at least 300 coming from hardware and overclocking forum (I'm a technician, I love it), and the bulk coming from lounge with the rest being a mix of the remaining forums. I always enjoy engaging discussions and will be active in the group forum daily lurking and reading at the least, and responding to threads where I can. This also goes for aforementioned forums.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I'm not a spiritual person in the sense of having an animal that represents me in those alternative spiritual beliefs, but as a proud New Zealander I'd have to say that the animal representative of me is that of the critically endangered Kiwi. All New Zealanders know and identify by the bird. Kiwi is a moniker for New Zealanders when in foreign lands (especially Australia, UK, and Canada), but is also used in public broadcasting and media to refer to the people's. As a clear example of how synonymous Kiwi is for us, I remember as a kid Weet-Bix (cereal) advertisements always preaching the synonymous phrase "Kiwi kids are weet-bix kids". It is illegal for me to identify as any other creature, unless it's from Aotearoa ;)

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

It is either 8:30am and I am walking to work in Australia in the morning (nice cool breeze in winter, hot and stuffy in summer) rush which means traffic is horrid and drivers are inconsiderate asses, or its 5:45pm and I'm walking back the same way from work, but with a beautiful Australian late afternoon (doesn't get dark till 8:30pm in summer) and the traffic woes are much the same, but I'll be inclined to duck into the shops on the way to get groceries and durries (smokes).

OTHER QUESTIONS

Why do you want to join Dawn?

Because I would like a focused group designated specifically ideological and political discussions. I love engaging the topics, and would enjoy posting the topics I find interesting that I'd like to share myself. It's also a great way to get to know other members better whom participate in the group.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy discussing foreign affairs, geopolitics, conflicts, history, science, religion/morality, skepticism, electronics & technology, physics, quantum physics, consumer electronics. I harbour some odd perspectives, such as a Absurdist outlook on life, thus giving me a unique approach to morality and belief.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I'd have to say the one thing I value most is knowledge. Humanity must continue striving to learn and unlock the secrets of our reality, to not strive to expand our knowledge, is to be susceptible to repeat the mistakes of past. I especially value being corrected, as nothing irks me more than me spreading incorrect/misguided information. I value the fact I have always strived to learn and expand my ever growing repertoire of understanding.

Goddamn it reading now I can see that I grouped a bunch of questions together by accident and replied to all 3 at once. I'll try fix it.

McDolands - October 16, 2019, 10:35 am ah shit... Anyone remember the OG dawn?

Natas - October 16, 2019, 6:33 pm

How would you describe yourself to someone? I would describe my self as helpful open minded and friendly !

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics ? No back in the day Hexicidal had one I never was in it tho although, I thought the idea of the group was awesome and I wanted to just never got the chance to.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? I would say a dog because a dog always gives second chances and will always have a big heart and will follow you where ever you go. A dog is as loyal as it comes and will do everything to please the ones it loves. And will be by your side for the good and the bad.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? Its dark there is know one around any where in site. Its cold and its really late at night and I dont where I am going but I am headed some where in one direction.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn? For the discussion of various SRPP topics with friendly members. I would love to be able to post feelings, thoughts, and ideas of various subjects in a active forum with out people getting mad just because they dont believe in it. I love the idea of free thinking and being able to share my own opinions. I would love the opportunity to be among other open minded members such as my self. And I would take it in a heart beat. I honestly have a lot of threads and stuff I would like to discuss about right now !

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? Ahh this is gonna be really hard for me. I use to be a some one who spent a lot of time coding and working, now I honestly love to just take a few dabs and learn about interesting topics ! I litterly am watching youtube videos every day for hours about topics such as true crime, unsolved mysteries, politics, world travel, space and ocean exploration, history, astrology, strange incidents/phenomenons and even paranormal activity. In all honesty thease would be a few of my favorite topics that I am able to spend hours discussing about to people.

11:11 Phenomenal

John Titor

The Mandela effect

Telepathy

Missing 411 Cases

Illuminati

Secrets in history

Politics

And so many more but these are a few of my favorites also I am learning new things all the time and love learning more interesting topics. People at every job I have ever worked think I am crazy but I love discussing these kinds of topics.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? My family man I have a young son who is getting close to being 1. In all honesty he comes first before anything ever for me I will drop doing what ever I am doing and will do anything for my son any time in his life or mine. Same goes for my gma and most my family family means most to me. And everything else is valueless compared to it.

Presocratic - October 29, 2019, 9:35 am

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do? It'd be wise to understand that my passionate interest about a specific subject will not trigger the same emotion or reaction in others. If that is the case I would rather discuss it with someone else in my social circle in order to get that need for debate out of my psyche. Patience is a plus whenever it comes to figuring out your position about a specific matter, we cannot let anxiety overcome ideas for concepts are to be developed over time and that time requires research, debate and lots of patience.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Whenever a debate gets heated, there will be no winner. At that point the person who "wins" the debate is the one who offends the other the most and that is the complete opposite of a debate. There will be no reason to keep arguing, the discussion will turn into an "egos" clash which will be just a bad time for the participants. It's better to be wise and fade away from the subject or just try to calm things down trying to explain that we should just follow the rules of dialectic. Throw-in or summarize your arguments in a tone-free post and let it be concluded.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Personal insults should not be taken as arguments in a well-manned discussion, so one should omit them and continue with the developing of ideas and argumentation. In that way the stirrer will be pissed for he grabbed no attention and the debate would continue just as it should be. We should not take any discussion deeply emotional because being passionate about an specific "idea" is to defend the truth, and truth has proven to be just as ephemeral as my own allegiance to it.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

The first step would be to differentiate it between an opinion and a fact. If it was indeed an opinion I would throw my points of view and try to come up with a cool discussion where both of us would get a lot from (or at least a new perspective). If the user claims a fact to be true when there's proof that it isn't, I should quote all the resources to say so: case studies, articles, news and reports. That would be my way-to-go about this matter.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

Whenever I get asked: Who are you? (In a thoughtful way) I tend to answer: I am Legion for I am so many. For that I mean that I realize that in my personality there are many facets that may arise within certain circumstances; whenever we need to be serious, we'll surely be, whenever we need to be funny, we'll surely laugh, and whenever we need to be delusional, we'll trip away in colors. I personally consider myself someone adaptable which loves to get to know people deeply, they way they think and why they think that way. I see dialogue as one of the most productive ways to build ourselves up toward our own identities.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics? I like to get involved in Reddit discussions about these matters and even though I have not signed up for any forum about these specific subjects, they are part of my day-to-day conversations with friends and strangers (both online and offline). I feel like whenever we get a conversation to any of those topics, things get interesting and we step in to the realm of reason and we start communicating with our "souls" instead of our physicality.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be? Apart from being a homo sapiens I would like to be a dolphin. They are the dwellers of the big oceans, clever creatures that through their intellect and cooperation manage to control their life and surroundings in one of the most harsh environments known for men. They represent the unknown, diving into the darkness with confidence, flowing through the currents with ease. This would represent to me the eternal path to knowledge and that is to know the darkest spots in your psyche which you can dominate using your intellect, consciousness and communication. (Dolphins can understand up to 50 english words, nonetheless we humans cannot understand one word of dolphinese, how can we expect to contact other civilizations if we haven't managed to communicate with the other smart species of our own planet). Let's conquer our own mental ocean.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it? I am going down a steep mountain, with tall trees around me and a cold sensation in the air. While I am walking down with firm steps, I can see how the trees open up space to let me realize that in front of me there's a beautiful twilight which leads me to believe it's around 6:00 in the afternoon. My eyes stare at the sun which spreads rivers of orange color all around itself, my mind hypnotized by the beautiful scenery decides to get lost in this mental construct, and today -just like Zarathustra- I decide to sink in my own sunset.

Other questions Why do you want to join Dawn? I like to be surrounded by people who share interests that I am passionately driven to. I feel like we tend to become who we surround ourselves with. I've found very interesting people in HF itself so I bet in this group I could find common minded people from whom I will be able to build new relations and expand my knowledge. I would love to find good information, a place to learn from others, and also to debate my own beliefs/views because through the clash of ideas new ones are born. Ultimately it could be a place where I can express myself and share my thoughts.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why? The realm of ideas is what I enjoy the most. Whatever subject that might trigger my rationality and makes me think from different perspectives. Obviously SRPP are part of that realm, and I enjoy all of them the same. I'm terribly passionate about the human mind and everything that may dwell in it. I try to approach those topics with the same attitude as Socrates: knowing that I know nothing.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most? The most important thing above all is MYSELF (not the selfish-self but the pure creative entity that lives inside me, which I like to call consciousness). I believe individuals are the main block of society's construction, so we need to improve ourselves personally in every aspect possible if we want to dream of a better civilization. Before politics, before religions, before science and before philosophy there's an spectator who watches attentively and responds from its own perspective; so the key here is the spectator and what it needs to work in is in his perspective, and that means to build itself up, therefore "yourself" "myself" are the most important subjects in anyone's life (from my perspective of course).

"The first rays of light that sustain a new day."

Application:

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

I personally would try to try to change the format of thread and keep it straight and on point. Would mention the TL;dr at the bottom for someone who is interested but doesn't have the time or patience to go through the long-ass thread. Would comment a few times every now and then. Wouldn't miss a chance to interact and show my attention even if there is a single comment to interact with.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Things can go out of way and debate are meant for that. Both the sides are trying to put forward a point. I personally would stop commenting if the discussions heat up, maybe take a break which will allow the other party to calm down as well and then comment on. I believe if the things are totally out of hands it is always a reasonable practice to plug yourself out.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

I am a firm believer of "You can control only your side of things and not others". I might just stop commenting.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

Correcting someone on comments or thread won't be the ideal solution IMO as it might feel like attacking them publicly. PMing OP and understand his/her thought process and sharing mine would be one.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

I'm someone who can be a listener, I love to hear stories and learn about the journey of a person. It's like a book, just that you can even ask your questions or doubts if you have upfront. Knowing a person can make you understand the obstacles as well as the upbringing of a fellow. I'm also a tech enthusiast who is curious freak when it comes to technology. Been in tech industry for over a decade now and still wouldn't mind calling myself a student.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I'm just active IRL discussing these topics and just a bit on forums. I'm up for some interactive and interesting conversations on SRPP.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Dog!

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

The railway station in a village of fewer than 200 people. It's 2 in the afternoon, the weather is cloudy and the wind is pleasant and you can hear the birds chirping.

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I was fascinated by the user bar and design followed by the intentions of the group which syncs with mine, it just felt right in the end and it's worth to give a shot.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I'm personally interested in technology as that is my forte. I'm also interested in discussing Science and Religion to a great extent.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

Be kind, without expectations. You shouldn't have any reason to not be one.

??? - June 21, 2021, 12:58 am

How would you describe yourself to someone?

He is a very open minded person, who is always learning something new daily. Some who is always kind and has a great spirit who only want to spread positivity and great energy to those around him.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

No, I have not but I have been in clubs at school. While also speaking on these and various topics as I was apart of a national qualifying debate team.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

A black panther. Beautiful, elegant and driven.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I am walking in the forest near my hometown, it is dawn and I see a few deer and turtles from the pond as I walk down a dirt trail. As I continue walking I come across a group of young ducklings scurrying around to find their mother who is projecting one of her young from a snake. While the young duckling is still oblivious to the world and its dangers it is caught off-guard, attacked from behind. After seeing this the mother has to choose to cherish the rest of her young to give the best chance at survival at the cost of one of their siblings.

Why do you want to join Dawn?

After reading through the groups description, it seems like a place where I'll find intelligent like minded individuals. People I can indulge in deep conversations with or outlandish ideas.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I'm going to school for my Doctorates in Psych. So psychology is one, the idea of Freedom (what is it? do we have it? if so are we truly free?), the idea of Equality.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I don't like the idea of being limited to one answer. So I'll be responding with two things.

Compassion, if every human has a unbreakable unfathomable level of compassion there would be no war, or hate, or any devastating human caused events. We would all care so deeply for the next man we as a collective would go out of our way to assist anyone/everyone and make the world a better place for each other.

Open mindedness, to be open minded doesn't mean you stand for nothing. You can have your own opinions and ideas but the ability to REALLY hear someone else idea and consider it is a force to be reckoned with. You can absorb so many perspectives and create the one true perspective in the bets of ability due to there always being some lack of knowledge.

edit : noticed thread was from 2019 hopefully a leader sees this :)

DerMensch24 - October 2, 2021, 7:12 pm

I'm going to bump this thread and simultaneously announce that Dawn is looking for new active recruits. Be sure to apply if you're interested!

Rionxee - November 24, 2021, 2:33 pm

Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

If members aren't interested in a thread that I post then my main thought is not to shove it down their throat, the entire idea behind open conversation is to have anyone elect to reply or not to reply. Anyone is available to engage or not to engage with any discussion, their free will entitles them to do such a thing. I cannot be offended if my thread does not gain traction because I cannot be responsible for the free will and interest of others.

Ultimately, if there is a need for people to interact with a thread I can spread it around to the HF chat in order to spur discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

A heated debate often insinuates that one party has an active interest in the topic at hand. If an open discussion leads to something heated then it would be beneficial to create a pause in the conversation and remind them that this is a beneficial conversation for everyone to partake in, while everyone has different positions on a certain topic it is paramount to remember that all discussions are for the benefit of free speech and free thought. Anything that needs to be discussed should be in a proper manner with calm and thoughtful reasoning, if something is not true then it isn't your requirement to prove them wrong. Everyone has a differing viewpoint and it is the best to respect all individuals.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am an open individual that respects everyone no matter their religion, philosophies, and personal viewpoints. I'm heavily involved in academic research through my current PhD program and devoted to my goals. I am an extremely open individual who is not afraid to share my opinions in an open forum and that I love listening to the viewpoints of others since it allows me to gain a plethora of perspectives across multiple spectrums. I am often abrasive and harsh but only for the best of everything, my family and friends mean the world to me and I put them before myself.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I am apart of the American Sociological Association, American Political Science Association, and actively involved in university level collaborative groups and debate societies. On the internet I have actively been apart of The Philosophy Forum, The Center for Inquiry, and the AEA Economics Discussion Forum.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Simple, the kangaroo. There is no explanation behind this other than I personally identify with a Kangaroo.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see a cleared line of brush surrounded by deciduous forest, it is early dawn and the dew is sticking to the flora.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I want to join Dawn to have open discussions with others and to gain valuable insight on a plethora of topics. Dawn seems like the best forum to meet and talk with others who are actively seeking constructive discussion.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy Philosophy, specifically philosophy of free will, society, and the state of nature. Another topic is that of political science and political economy.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I consider the preservation of free speech to be the most important thing of all, without freedom of speech we would be restricted to express ourselves and our values. However, I value my family the most of all because they are the ones who have supported me in my path to becoming who I am and supported what I do and what I stand for.

neightworks. - November 24, 2021, 5:41 pm

(Nov 24, 2021 03:33 PM)Rionxee Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Behavior

It seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

If members aren't interested in a thread that I post then my main thought is not to shove it down their throat, the entire idea behind open conversation is to have anyone elect to reply or not to reply. Anyone is available to engage or not to engage with any discussion, their free will entitles them to do such a thing. I cannot be offended if my thread does not gain traction because I cannot be responsible for the free will and interest of others.

Ultimately, if there is a need for people to interact with a thread I can spread it around to the HF chat in order to spur discussion.

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

A heated debate often insinuates that one party has an active interest in the topic at hand. If an open discussion leads to something heated then it would be beneficial to create a pause in the conversation and remind them that this is a beneficial conversation for everyone to partake in, while everyone has different positions on a certain topic it is paramount to remember that all discussions are for the benefit of free speech and free thought. Anything that needs to be discussed should be in a proper manner with calm and thoughtful reasoning, if something is not true then it isn't your requirement to prove them wrong. Everyone has a differing viewpoint and it is the best to respect all individuals.

Information about you

How would you describe yourself to someone?

I am an open individual that respects everyone no matter their religion, philosophies, and personal viewpoints. I'm heavily involved in academic research through my current PhD program and devoted to my goals. I am an extremely open individual who is not afraid to share my opinions in an open forum and that I love listening to the viewpoints of others since it allows me to gain a plethora of perspectives across multiple spectrums. I am often abrasive and harsh but only for the best of everything, my family and friends mean the world to me and I put them before myself.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

I am apart of the American Sociological Association, American Political Science Association, and actively involved in university level collaborative groups and debate societies. On the internet I have actively been apart of The Philosophy Forum, The Center for Inquiry, and the AEA Economics Discussion Forum.

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

Simple, the kangaroo. There is no explanation behind this other than I personally identify with a Kangaroo.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

I see a cleared line of brush surrounded by deciduous forest, it is early dawn and the dew is sticking to the flora.

Other questions

Why do you want to join Dawn?

I want to join Dawn to have open discussions with others and to gain valuable insight on a plethora of topics. Dawn seems like the best forum to meet and talk with others who are actively seeking constructive discussion.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

I enjoy Philosophy, specifically philosophy of free will, society, and the state of nature. Another topic is that of political science and political economy.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I consider the preservation of free speech to be the most important thing of all, without freedom of speech we would be restricted to express ourselves and our values. However, I value my family the most of all because they are the ones who have supported me in my path to becoming who I am and supported what I do and what I stand for.

You made this entirely unreadable without formatting.

Rionxee - November 24, 2021, 5:51 pm

(Nov 24, 2021 06:50 PM)-Scrub Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why you gotta be rude to him like that smh. It's okay, I was invited to the group. I admit that it does look messy but it is readable.

neightworks. - November 24, 2021, 5:59 pm

(Nov 24, 2021 06:51 PM)-Scrub Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Welcome to another dead group ?

Dawn is a part of history, even if it isn't active it still is going to be much higher regarded than anything you touch.

ValeriaPanicucci93 - December 6, 2021, 4:14 pm

Very good looking group is it still open for recruitment?

7777777 - December 31, 2021, 8:28 am

I would love to join this group if you guys are hiring il fill out an application
Application:

You will have to answer the questions below in order to apply for our group, and we will later evaluate your answers. You will receive a PM if you are successful. Good luck and try to be creative!

BehaviorIt seems that the other group members are not so interested on a thread that you posted a while ago but you really want to discuss it with someone. What do you do?

Mention it to someone who might be interested introduce it with a joke casually. Only if I feel the other person might be interested otherwise I wouldnt bother

You are having a debate with someone and the debate is getting heated in a bad way. What do you do?

I would just say sure we dont agree and just leave it at that. Im used to disagreeing with people and often walking away is the best thing to do. Im not one to hold any grudges or anything. Later on I will probably find myself talking or joking with the same person.

Someone insults you after you have posted a thread with your political views regarding a recent topic. How do you react?

sAD emoji.

Someone opens a thread and claims something that is not true. You know it is not true and you want to correct him. How do you do it?

I would just do it in a polite way. My experience is this and this I know thats different from what you have experienced or believe blah blah.

Information about youHow would you describe yourself to someone?

Im outgoing I like the outdoors hunting and fishing are my passions being outdoors.

Have you been to other forums or groups focused on Science, Religion, Philosophy and Politics?

just 4 chin

If you could pick an animal that represents you, what would that animal be?

I would say a killer whale. They work as a team to complete a common objective. They are also the cutest.

You are walking down a path, what do you see around you and what time of the day is it?

Its the autumn in the morning and there are wet leaves on the floor from the mil dew. There is a path of footsteps behind me through the grass

Other questionsWhy do you want to join Dawn?

I have always wanted to be a member of a group since joining hackforums. I love the logo of the deer in the forest that reminds me of home. The members and group align with how I am so I feel like I would fit in here.

What subject/topic or topics do you enjoy the most and why?

Medicine and the human body. Its what I study mainly in the hospital atm.

What do you consider the most important thing of all? What do you value the most?

I value treating everyone equally. Im not the brightest spark in the box and have only got where I am with people giving me a chance or two. So I dont judge as some of the greatest minds come from where we least expect it.

If you have any questions you can either contact me, Night Fury or DerMensch24.
[/quote]