Random I know but curious is there a song that makes you tear up or hits some feel's with your heart

I know there a few for me that bring up good memories & some bad from a certain time period.

Ravioli - August 11, 2018, 6:56 am

Lucid Dreams - Juice Wrld

Temp_reassign - August 11, 2018, 7:06 am

Yes. Some songs can make you cry...especially if you let em'.

Hello.v4.0 - August 11, 2018, 7:18 am

No music really makes me upset or cry, but Cat's In The Cradle is a pretty sad song.

oRequiem - August 11, 2018, 8:27 am

Songs can defiantly make you cry.

Here's one that touches and relates to me: 6obby - Nobody

Ømen Xiii - August 11, 2018, 8:30 am

Depends on if I'm sober or not and/or what I'm on when the song plays.

So yes it definetely can lmao

Scooby - August 11, 2018, 9:23 am

Anything with a personal emotional attachment can make you cry. Sentimentality is one of the things that make us human; unless you're a sociopath. In that case, the answer is likely no.

prada ? - August 11, 2018, 9:23 am my music makes me cry if im keeping it a stack with you merkulate - August 11, 2018, 9:51 am

Nope. I don't cry listening to songs, even if they're really sad. I don't cry at films, either. Sometimes I get that feeling where something is sad, like a character I liked dies, but I don't actually cry.

Portugal - August 11, 2018, 9:55 am

There aren't any that make me cry.

Some do make me reminisce some memories.

aye i have a song with 6obby

Raymond "Red" Reddington - August 11, 2018, 10:00 am

If a song can make you cry, you're a faggot.

it would make any real nigga cry honestly

Manalishi - August 12, 2018, 2:20 pm

Absolutely heart wrenching. I think most people who have had their heart broken before can relate.

mrnapolean1 - August 18, 2018, 5:03 pm

As far as this goes, It depends on what song you're listening to and your emotional state.

From time to time when im listening to country, the song "Drive (For Daddy Gene)" by Alan Jackson, the thrid part of this song makes me tear up nearly every time I listen to it. The music video is posted below for youre listening pleasure.

I can't really cry to songs but I get tons of goosebumps.

RyaNoob - August 19, 2018, 3:53 pm

I have a few songs that make me cry. It's the memories attached to them for me.

SIM-1349466 - August 19, 2018, 8:04 pm

Yes and no. I listen to a lot of sad music and I can enjoy it normally, but if I sit and really think hard of past events along with it, it can make me tear up.

Sabotage. - August 19, 2018, 8:05 pm

That song from 13 Reasons Why, "The Night We Met" by Lord Huron.
God it makes me want to die.

Thats exactly what i thought when i looked up 6obby lol.. Oliver is amazing.

On topic: Yes songs can make u cry because personally the vibe of the song can have you thinking of something, in my case love by kid cudi is what gets me there, or inside by earl sweatshirt

Sir-Teabag - August 20, 2018, 5:30 pm

I cried to this song, as I could never manage to restrict my penis and limit to staying in the boundaries of my underwear.

It is a hard life

Yes.

Anything x related

"Changes"

illuminati? - September 12, 2018, 12:22 am

All depends I suppose.

There is a fuck ton of sons that hit me close to home, but I don't cry listening to them, I just sit here like "Fuck."

deltaone - September 12, 2018, 12:28 pm

when paul walker died, 'see you again' made me cry a few times

bellummachina - September 12, 2018, 2:59 pm

Music can make many cry. It holds extreme emotional power, especially if an individual has linked the song to a specific experience or person themed in tragedy. The coupling drive of the emotional strength of the music and the extreme heartache of the linked tragedy can propel an entity into complete sobbing mayhem. It is a wonderful thing and truly a testament to the fragility of the human soul.

I have many songs linked to tragedy so I cant just list one. But I can say I do very much enjoy a good sob when an old song triggers the memory of a lost friend. It is an excellent way of keeping their memory alive. Thank the universe for music! The 3rd planet's music is the best! Good job! ?

JTMBoss - September 12, 2018, 3:02 pm

yes, but just depends on my general mood if im already sad and feeling like crying it actually brings it out

LoveOverFear - September 12, 2018, 3:11 pm

It depends but One Piece always makes me cry in the emotional episodes :'(

wanderer100 - September 12, 2018, 3:19 pm

6ix9ine Tati always seems to strike a chord in my heart

Venommm - September 14, 2018, 2:46 am

I've never cried so hard over a song except for when Elmo's world comes on. Sometimes you just feel so moved by music, sometimes I like to incorporate prostate massages in my music sessions to enhance the emotions. The yogis call it "Releasing the inner demons". I call it "Letting go".

DanaWhite - September 14, 2018, 2:49 am yea probably like taylor swift "we are never ever getting back together"

Cammy - September 14, 2018, 6:03 am

I've never had a song make me cry or feel sad
Films on the other hand...
