Thread: [\[Assistance\] Trying to setup ribbon on website for sales promotion and struggling](#)

DontWorryBeHappy - August 21, 2018, 9:22 pm

Hi,

I have been doing research and research and some more to try to be able to add some custom ribbons within some sales tables on a website I'm trying to develop.
I have made a lot of progress but feel these ribbons can be huge assets.
I would like to have them in a couple of different places but am having a lot of trouble with the code.

I'm hoping someone can help me and possibly even teamview me to provide me live advice/assistance with their experience so I can get this sorted, updated and be able to finish this website ASAP!

And if anyone has the time to help me work through the final aspects of the website, you'd have my deep appreciation.

It is majority finished but there are some finer things I'd like to add to really have some items stand out like specific "BEST BUY" products.

I will be also linking whmcs to this template.

The least you could have done was post an example of what you wanted. News flash, we aren't here to go off and waste time on your projects. Post your code so that we may see the issue or hire someone.

news flash, being a dick doesn't help anything either.

I was hoping to do a ribbon like this but as i mentioned, I simply couldn't get it to function as desired and this one has a box involved, which can be use, but isn't necessary since im using on a sales table

The box is just a placeholder for whatever you want to put the ribbon on. You just need to add position: relative; on your 'box'. Then add the span inside your 'box' and add all the styling for the ribbon.

your response is appreciated

i had no idea it was a place holder so that knowledge helps the rest of it, because i'm not an actual heavily experienced coder, is unknown to me what are the chances i could get your live assistance on the matter possibly over tv or skype? is that something i could burden u with?

Sure, thanks for posting.

Here is one section I'd like to wrap the around the left corner of the second listing if possible

```
Code      <tr>
          <td class="section-bar" colspan="7">
            ZZZZZZZZ
          </td>
        </tr>
        <tr>
          <td class="title">ZZZZZZ</td>
          <td>4</td>
          <td>Z</td>
          <td>Z SSD</td>
          <td>Z</td>
          <td>ZZ</td>
          <td class="total">Configure</td>
        </tr>
        <tr>
          <td class="title">
            <div class="title-table" data-toggle="tooltip"
data-placement="top" title="Recommended Best Buy" align="center">ZZZ
            </td>
            <td>6</td>
            <td>Z</td>
            <td>Z SSD</td>
            <td>Z</td>
            <td>ZZZ $170.00</td>
            <td class="total">Configure</td>
          </tr>
          <tr>
            <td class="title">[b]<!--[b]
             --> ZZZZ
            </td>
            <td>8</td>
            <td>Z</td>
```

```

        <td>Z SSD</td>
        <td>Z</td>
        <td>$Z.00</td>
        <td class="total">Configure</td>
    </tr>
