Thread: You find the stash of a Crime Syndicate Boss, what do you do?

It's a nice sunny day and you're walking down the road past a riverbank, there you see a briefcase floating in the river. Out of curiosity, you take the briefcase and upon examining it you find that it's filled with $100 Bills equaling to the amount of roughly ($35,000,000)

You have roughly a year before the shadowy organisation manages to track you down. What do you do with the money? (This is under the assumption that it's dirty money and hasn't been cleaned so you can't simply cash out and flee the country straight away.)

ALSO, your greedy nature forces you to keep the money rather than dump it so that isn't an option ;)

Hard to say, like how would they even track me if it was thrown into some random river? I wouldn't go all out buying stuff to make myself suspicious.

Dirty money is the easiest to track through governmental bodies, assuming they have some corrupt government working with them it wouldn't necessarily be too difficult

Either way, just hypothetically just assume they should be able to track you down within a year roughly due to leads they find

I guess, but very unlikely to happen.

You never said anything about a corrupt government lol.

It's not a literal question, just under the premise that some how or another through witnesses etc they'd find you, what would you do. This isn't literal it's just a hypothetical question haha

Well there wouldn't be cameras at a river, that would be really weird unless the suitcase is bugged, I would stuff the money into one of my backpacks if possible to hold all of it and leave the suitcase somewhere so my prints can't be found on it then continue with my day.

uhhh if they track me down a year from now or ever i dont want it...

How would you spend the money if it's dirty, you'd get caught easily.

Buy 250k worth of BTC

Order a hit on the mob boss

Clean the rest trough a casino.

Live a good life on some tropical island enjoying piña coladas and some good waves till the end of my days.

Even if they do i'd have cleaned a good sum of it and left the country within the first few months

I would keep most of the money in the home, put some in the bank and slowly repeat so it doesn't bring my name to attention.

Of course I would be paranoid 24/7 though.

Unfortunately it's probably dirty money so you'd probably just get caught trying to put it in the bank because of many different reasons.

better quesiton is if you stumble accross the crime boss stash at there headquaters and no one's home.. do you take it?

Almighty Koen - August 23, 2018, 11:43 am

I wouldn't even be able to carry $35,000,000 because 1 million weighs 10 kilos so it'd be a total of 350 kg.

And yes, I'm very funny at parties.

Well shit, to find that floating in the river it must've passed through League of Legends.

Because it had to be really salty. get it? no?

i'll see myself out.

A casino knows if you are trying to money launder. At least that is what I heard in The Netherlands.
