Thread: What would you admit to Internet strangers, but wouldn't tell to your friends?

SellerMerchant - August 28, 2018, 1:59 am

Let's hear what would you hide from your friends and family, but would share with internet peeps ?

Mr. Robot - August 28, 2018, 2:04 am

I have a fetish for lube/oil.

Givenchy - August 28, 2018, 2:07 am

I have met some people online who talk about their personal problems that they can't share among their friends and family. I would never share some personal problems. Mhmm maybe I would speak about my secret anime addiction.

Most of my friends are either stupid, basementdwellers, alcoholics or a combination of the three.

I'd never admit to them I'd think that.
Well, it's not really thinking it's just a fact.

Not really interesting. But, I never told my family or friends that I have an uncontrolled Clairsentience. I usually can predict someone as if I can read their minds through absorbing their energies (though I am a complete skeptic of anything related to the paranormal/parapsychology or anything with no solid scientific proof). My reserved nature in our household, workplace and school makes people think I'm a difficult person to read or even understand, but I think that's fine. I don't mind being an outcast. I'm honestly content the way I am right now.

Hi! I'm a 22-year-old working student supporting my family since 16. If you wish to donate, check my info below. Any amount would be appreciated! Thanks!

That I listen to Coldplay and get pretty emotional.

SIM-2059193 - October 26, 2018, 1:29 pm

I don't like to tell friends that I spend a lot of my time on the internet. The furthest I've gone to revealing the digital aspect of my life is that my friends know i read AskReddit posts :P

b?xxy - October 30, 2018, 11:37 am

I spent over $10,000 on Roblox over the years.
