Thread: can you never make a new paypal again after being limited?

if you get limited on paypal for breaking rules (or just doing nothing because they literally limit everyone) can you never make one again? does that mean your name and last 4 digits of your ssn ip address home address and everything becomes black listed for life?

can you never make a paypal again even if you want to use it for a legit business but you've been limited before you never can unless you sneak around? does that mean eventually your paypal will just be limited using a legit business just because you've been blacklisted for life for something you did 10 years ago?

or does it really not matter anyway because paypal will just limit your account even for legal businesses.

Yeah, you can make a new paypal as long as you use a new debit/credit card

As far as I know, it's only linked to your credit card/bank account, I've seen people create new accounts under their same real information by just opening another bank account + credit card after getting charge backed by scammers into negative.

(All this information is if you want to do it the right and safe way for a long term business, but yes they do black list information)

You can't make another personal PayPal account if your personal PayPal was permanently limited. Yes they do blacklist your information. You can however make a business PayPal account under a business name and have you as the "owner" and they will allow that, make sure to keep documents on what you're selling (they most likely will request it).

Now if you're business PayPal gets limited you can't make another business PayPal for that company again. So it works vice versa.

that would be really unfair tho... some people have names like 'john hill' or 'robert smith' and they could make unlimited paypals but someone with a unique name couldn't

While that is true they wouldn't just consider the name. They can link accounts by name, phone number, bank account, credit/debit cards, SSN/EIN, address, flash cookies, cookies, IP address and all sorts of other methods.

so once your ssn is linked to a paypal it will be limited forever if that account is limited? thats kinda bs seeing as how paypal limits tons of people even ones just doing legit businesses

That's just how PayPal works my friend. They will forever have you in a black list to link your new accounts together and ban them.

so what do people do who drop ship on shopify or ebay? they're business is just gone for good if paypal decides to be dicks? do you just delete and recreate accounts every time you're about to hit 200 transactions and just never give them your ssn?

Yes OP, you repeat this cycle until you are blacklisted and then forever have PayPal headaches and run through stealth accounts like all the ewhores here... this is your future if you've been limited OP. Better contact PayPal asap. ?

EDIT: Don't ask me about anything to do with that shit it's against HF's rules and people who scam/commit fraud(stealth accs) are assholes anyway.

Get on my level ewhores:

This will never be you fraudsters/scammers \(Click to View\)

i've never had a e whore paypal with my ssn on it i was just wondering. i want to start a drop shipping business some day and i was just wondering what would happen if i made a lot with that and paypal just limited for no reason. if i start a drop shipping business with a paypal i can keep doing it forever as long as everything is legit? and i can just provide them info to be unlimited?

i was drop shipping with paypal for awhile and they instantly limited me forever with no warning because i drop shipped necklaces with a logo on it. they're fucking cunts they give 0 warning or anything all it takes is one small mistake ill probably avoid them forever if possible with stripe or something
