It was created by a member here on HF... Was a photo upload site if I remember correctly.

What happened to it?

They tried to go the route of social media sharing and the project promptly died in its entirety.

Great site. I think they just closed shop. They tried to do a lot of things from image hosting to social networking but I suppose they didn't find a good way to monetize.

Would this be something the community be interested if someone brought it back?

Eh fuck it, going to research this and bring something like this back on HF. Upgrading my current host won't cost much.

Not sure what it was, but if it's a place to share images most people here use imgur.com.

It's okay even if the community has no interest, I just made myself something nice. I actually like it, now I can remove my imgur spam app.
