But it needs some fucking brains. Look for trending products. Like why would we be like.. ok... sit down jimmy. Here we have a selection of yo'yos, pink dildos and fidget spinners. How about you choose out of our carefully selected and researched products and put no effort into your dropshipping venture?

Haha, you indeed nailed it with that one :D

In all honesty OP look through trending shit, phone cases and so on are easy to start with but there is indeed shit ton of competition.

Finding the product for dropshipping is like 40% of the dropshipping business, if not more. Trust me, not a single person on planet fucking earth will tell you the product they are dropshipping. Why would they? They don't want more competence, and from a logical/business wise standpoint, why would they want a smaller slice of the pie when they can get the entire pie for themselves?
