Hi Everyone,

I am assuming you guys have played lots of games within and before the past two decades, There were some great new franchises, some exciting storylines and some with mind blowing Graphics.

So, what are some of the old games which you still like and playing which revives your memories? For me it will be Playing GTA:SanAndreas. I still remember the fun I had to complete all the missions and modding the game to suit my needs.

Halo 2, Having all my friends around setting up the old CRT Televisions playing big lan parties also gaming online as a team. I must admit for me as far as gaming experiences go nothing will top the nostalgia from halo 2 the game was infectious in such a good way, countless hours of memories from that game and met some of my best online friends from that game.

Anyone who played halo 2 I'm sure they can agree with me

Personally saying as far as online multiplayer experiences nothing has came close it for me, although now adays I don't get much time to game online Halo 2 will always be my best online experience.

I'm 24, my Xbox one library consists of 70% xbox 360 compatibility games (halo, AC 1,2, MW2, MW3, Fable anniversary, fable 2, fallout 3 GOTY, halo reach, hitman, splinter cell etc), 20% original xbox backwards compatibility games (kotor 1+2+destroy all humans etc) and 10% xbox one games (red dead 2, halo 5, pubg, apex, borderlands handsome collection, etc) I love san andreas on the xbox one although it does have some bugs, it's way better than the PS4 version which looks like some ENB thing chunked on top.

But man if you never played road trip adventure on the PS2, you haven't lived! Along with rayman, worms, gta series, cel damage overdrive etc.
