Imo this is bigger than just whether he gets the votes *kavanaugh that is - but it is incredibly important as a life time position.

So far 1 of the undecided has chosen to side with Kav

Live stream here

-Some of the things Kavanaugh believes in are going to set a precedent for the rest of the world, not only that but if he doesn't get in there will be riots.

Bob White - October 4, 2018, 9:25 am

I'm American and I have absolutely no idea what he is talking about.

Judge Brett Kavanaugh was set to be voted in to the supreme court, the highest position IN MY OPINION even higher than the president however most would say it's just under.

A lady Blasey Ford came forward and accused him of sexually assaulting her sometime in the 80s. 30+ years ago.

Her story was full of holes and the timing just before the vote with her backing by democrats and the activity around the case has led to it being a full blown accusation with no facts to back it up.

Now they must decide who to side with, the lady who claimed rape with NO facts, not one. Or the man with the outstanding record.

Wasn't there multiple accusations against him? Having raped others and taken part in gang rape. All coming forward just now. I think I saw the gang one falling apart, for starters for lack of evidence, and since it was so long ago, etc.

emotionull - October 4, 2018, 11:55 am

Ah is this the one where he apparently raped her in high school or some shit.

Aqzxc - October 4, 2018, 11:57 am her friends, HER FRIENDS say that they had no idea that this happened if ever. The timing of it is also suspicious, everything seems to be rigged. I would like to see a full investigation, not on Kav's side but also on Ford's, see if she has any ties to anything. The investigation wouldn't show if he did it or not, I don't think they could ever prove it. But I want to see if this scandalous bitch is making false accusations.

"Anyone watching the biggest event in US history right now?"

I don't agree with that. I'd say it's the biggest current event in politics but no way in all of US history.

btw, just put on CNN who say "thousands" are marching in protest to the US Capitol. But their own video barely shows a few hundred. Half of which are probably reporters (lol). CNN are a bunch of fucking tools.

GloryToBe - October 4, 2018, 12:21 pm

Donald Trump had a bunch of false sexual accusations before he became president.

I love it when non-Americans like to give us their input on our politics.

Brill - October 4, 2018, 12:25 pm

i turned it on and theyre talking about #becauseididntreport this is just a pity party maybe im insensitive but if someone waits 30 years to speak up cause theyre "scared" then they should just stay quiet and get over it. everyone goes thru shit in life. it seems to me that they just want attention and pity now. cant believe a hashtag is being cited in a court case major L to america

End point.

I've typed and deleted everything I've written about 5 times. I don't have anything nice to say.

#metoo, I was sexually harassed. Do I get anything for it? Can I ruin lives over it? How about a book deal, some fame, donations or maybe an interview with Anderson Cooper on CNN?

I tend to believe the woman about Kavanaugh. In the 80's as a teen, every guy was aggressive towards girls because that's just how it was. Did he rape her? Nope. He probably "copped a feel" as the saying goes. Nowadays young men know that this is sexual harassment but it wasn't back then. It just wasn't. We shouldn't punish him 30 years later for what seemed like normal behavior.

She could have told everyone she knew about Kavanaugh immediately after the incident and guess what....nothing would have happened and she knows it that's why she didn't bother back then. She's doing it now due to political motivation. And I think that's wrong.

That's just my opinion for the long term, I believe if it goes to shit males could be fucked over left and right. Again just what I think could happen if he's not put through. That's huge as far as gender normative behavior.

I am non-American and I do apologize for showing more interest than I should however as where I am from follows closely behind the US due to past policies put in place, this will cause changes here.

I agree with the idea that most likely he did but I will still give him the benefit of doubt regarding not doing it not that it changes anything in my eyes (unless it came out that they had proof of him actually smashing her till she couldn't walk the next day - in which case I mean...)

why would anyone care to see a rapist get into the white house

Your politics just has a lot more drama, juicy gossip and mud-slinging to it than Europeans for example are used to I guess..

lol, just saw a female Democrat senator say on CNN she will be voting NO on Kavanaugh.

I just couldn't help but think..."DUH".

Aren't all Dems going to vote NO? Probably the only question is the female GOP Senators.

<http://www.cawp.rutgers.edu/women-us-congress-2018>

17 DEM and 6 GOP current female Senators.

Xerotic - October 4, 2018, 1:13 pm

I don't think Kavanaugh would make a good Supreme Court Justice. Not just because of the accusations, but because of his reaction, demeanor, and the game of smoke and mirrors. SCOTUS should be the best of the best. We can do better. And I don't care which political party it is either. I've watched a lot of the Senate Judiciary Committee live streams regarding this and I just don't feel right about Kavanaugh.

Omniscient - October 4, 2018, 1:24 pm

Quote:Not just because of the accusations, but because of his reaction, demeanor, and the game of smoke and mirrors.

I think his reaction is measured actually. I think he's intentionally showing anger as a method to defuse and deflect.

Quote:SCOTUS should be the best of the best. We can do better.

I don't think anyone being nominated for SCOTUS is going to get away without their reputation being tarnished in some way. Politics are nasty as fuck right now. Clarence Thomas for example went through hell and he's been a very good Justice. If you recall Bush appointing Roberts there was a lot of opposition in the confirmation process and that was in 2005 before Twitter and all these social media platforms.

And again, Kavanaugh is already on the 2nd most important court since 2006. He's a Yale law graduate. His professional credentials are perfect.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Brett_Kavanaugh

I'd like to know why this woman waited till this was a very public hearing before speaking up when was already a very important Judge. If I was sexually assaulted by someone important. I think I'd follow their career a bit in the background every now and then. Again, I'm leaning toward believing here but I think all this is politically motivated by Dems to prevent his nomination and slow down the process praying they win mid-terms and that no Judge is appointed until they can gain control.

Quote:Orrin Hatch to group of female protesters: "Grow up"

When Republican Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah was confronted by a group of protesters outside an elevator Thursday afternoon, he waved his hand at them and told them to "grow up."

"Why aren't you brave enough to talk to us and exchange with us?" one of the protesters asks as Hatch, flanked by security, waited for the elevator. Hatch waved his hand at her, to which she snapped back, "Don't you wave your hand at me!"

"Grow up," Hatch said as he entered the elevator, prompting a chorus of anger and disbelief from the protesters.

"How dare you talk to women that way?" one woman cried as the doors closed.

How dare you tell me to grow up when I'm confronting you and you don't wanna speak to me!!!! ?

The biggest event in US History right now thinking emoji. That makes hardly any sense lol. It's definitely not the biggest event in the history of the US, definitely the biggest thing that's going on right now but that isn't history :)

falkenburry - October 4, 2018, 2:52 pm

He's a good man and will do good. It's about time we get some red. Very pathetic they gotta bring up something from his high school days just to prevent him from getting in.

I wouldn't say its the biggest event in US history, more like politic history atm

Can confirm, had a few buddies down there earlier for work and was only mildly inconvenienced by a few hundred people.

This will be a big step in the right direction once Kavanaugh inevitably gets confirmed. His stance thus far on the 2nd amendment is promising.

Can't believe we, as a country, have split and divided all over some simple accusations. Guess innocent until proven guilty isn't a thing anymore. Even after an FBI investigation, the Dems still aren't happy but everyone saw that coming.

Feinstein looked like she read some shit on that report that scared or worried her, makes you wonder why they're pushing for it to not be released.

[br]This was such a blatant political move that it's kind of sickening. I don't know what happened 30 some years ago, but if it did happen, it was a different time and culture. Not saying it's right, but you can't deny the fact it was kind of different back then. If she felt so strongly and it truly changed her life as she claimed, she should have brought it up earlier. Very convenient that it just so happened to be 36 years later as someone is about to be confirmed as a supreme court justice.

As Omni said, I also believe it was measured. Not only that, but I personally believe it was justified. His name, career, family, etc were all being very publicly scrutinized, harassed, and discredited. He has every right to be angry.

If you watched some of the earlier videos of the process, he was remaining very non-partisan on a large majority of issues, to include the 2nd amendment which drove the Dems crazy. That's a sign of a good judge, not to mention he's been on the second highest court for years now. His accomplishments of how many women he has raised and helped prosper in their legal career is quite telling of his character. Even if this did somehow happen all those years ago, I don't believe it's a good representation of his character nowadays. His character has been vouched for by a large magnitude of women and men, and his legal career and background is absolutely amazing.

He's probably one of the most qualified people we've had in a while. It's a shame that these politically driven accusations came out and things proceeded as they did. Personally, I believe the Dems dug themselves a hole and this will prove to work against them. I feel as if it will cause a lot more Republicans, or at least right leaning but on the fence people to get out and vote because of the whole process.

I disagree, I think this is extremely important to the history of the way the law is treated.
