Thread: Userbar / Group skins

Yu Yan - October 4, 2018, 3:21 pm

I would love to buy a cool userbar.

Maybe it's a cool (long term) idea to implement multiple userbars for each group and people can purchase the skin they want with Bitcoin or Bytes.

Or just sell premium custom userbars such as groups have.

I did want to go for a $50 group buyin just because of the cool custom userbar until i got warned that they are allowed to kick me out after a few days.

Omniscient you could even sell those userbars for different prices depending how cool they look, this could potentially be a new source of income through your Forum when they can be purchased with Bitcoin.

I would pay for it.

Originalkillit - October 4, 2018, 3:29 pm

? I do not know why you want different userbar skins

The current paid user bars are great and also the group membership user bars

Along with features most of the members pay for current cool userbar

Spoiler (Click to View)

You want to keep different group membership user bars without being in their group by just paying to the user bars

Great!!!

Let me see what omni has to say ?

Almonds - October 4, 2018, 3:33 pm

Nope, and nope!

We have usergroups, and individual groups.

Those are more than enough.

Compare these with those from us.

Lol yeah, I mean.... that's... one... of... the... perks... you.. have when you're invited/recruited (to join / in) a group?

Yeah or when you buy your way in.

I want to pay Omniscient for a custom userbar instead and have it lifetime without the risk of waking up and the userbar is suddenly gone because i got removed from a group for whatever reason.

I just think that it would be a cool idea, Omniscient will get customers and he'll have a new source of income through HF while im rocking a custom userbar, everyone wins.

Agreed but each member like you comes up and asks for new colorful user bar and omni cannot supply different skins all the time

So our individual user group are made to look cool and it is one to all including check the user bar of admin

I think you should buy a group for $1000 and then you can change the group user bar how much ever you want for any number of times without any restriction

Good luck getting a group for 1k

I think at least being able to control the color of the stars would be neat. With so many different userbars it would look mad cluttered around the forums.

Why would he turn away another source of income, it's like selling awards but then 2 or 3 different custom userbars for $25-$50 each.

Buddy you didn't understand what I said in above post

Consider If you will ask for userbar with red apple skin and other would ask for green.

Another may come and ask for a dinosaur image on it and another may want his own face

Look omni is running a forum not gfx shop

Also if he makes it limited like awards then user like you will come up again comparing with other newly established group membership user bar and asks him to make some more skin again?

Wait for some more time Omniscient himself will clear your doubts since he is the admin not me
So his decisions are final

Banter. - October 4, 2018, 4:03 pm

I am saying no because it would in my opinion because it would Devalue one of the prestigious features about groups.

giving the money people pay for groups and the effort the put into Running them and making them so great it should be a goal for a non group member to strive for to get recruited/accepted into, i think the current Structure of Profiles etc is perfect as it is.

then again i dont know what Omni & Eagle etc have planned for the future but im sure there happy with the layout as of current.

At that point you're basically explaining buying a group. 2-3 is still pretty exclusive around the site so what would be the point of having just a custom userbar and not a new group lol

Your basicly saying Omniscient will get more work but those people will pay him to do that work because they'll end up buying the userbars.

And I bet that Omniscient will just hire a designer to do the work for him anyways.

Again, it would be a new source of income for Omniscient and does not require much work tho.
Small investment which will give him a high ROI aswell.

? Yes omni hires me as gfx designer

Cool I got a job ?

Willing to spend $50 for a userbar, not $5,000+$50 for the group and the userbar design.

Im also not interested in running a group.

Vyxn - October 4, 2018, 6:23 pm

Group userbar and forum userbar are not the same. So your way to be a part of the group is to buy in, invited or recruited.

Of course, if you are in that group, follow their rules so you don't get kick out.

Just buy the r00t! They're the coolest of them all!

I actually got warned by a few members that you can get removed from a group for no specific reason after days once bought your way in.

So tbh I don't trust a group buyins anymore.

And yes I'll get r00t when I have 100 rep, but that's because of the award and other extra profile styling.

I gave up on a custom userbar, someone helped me finding a group that is actually within my interest besides the userbar and I got more interested in that group itself then the userbar that they offer.

I'm certain that there are more interesting groups so I decided to apply for a few within the next upcoming days if I can find some more and I don't get accepted into the one that I currently applied for.

Don't get me wrong tho if Omniscient suddenly offers awesome custom userbars I'll definitely buy one.

Rather pointless thread; granted you can have your suggestion or feedback, just try to be realistic next time.

Groups have monetary value, therefore user-bars can too. Your best bet would be to apply to groups, as you mentioned previously, or try to learn the skills to get into one. Try to be mindful of recruitment times/openings, and such.

Good luck, Yu Yan!

One of the reasons why people are into groups is because of the prestige of the userbar. This defeats the purpose of that prestige. I say no.

If that's an incentive to join a group why would I remove it?

Then choose your group wisely.

Quote:I think at least being able to control the color of the stars would be neat.

Having design control of the site is important. Member forget they can customize their profiles with avatars and signatures. And you can also donate for awards which go on your profile. It's more than enough.

Groups are a source of income too.

Just become a high quality member, and groups will be happy to have you in.
Its not about a money..
