One time I was like 13/14 and was visiting my farther's house. He told me to put on a shirt long sleeve button up and dude when I tell you I couldn't figure out I really couldn't figure it out. I tried putting it on as pants then tired putting it on as a belt. When I walked in the room (After the fact he saw me struggling) I Caught my head and played sleep for the rest of the day to pretend like I was stupid just tired.

I'd end any friendship if a friend is flinging shit at me.

Gambling away all my crypto in 2016.... i had around 8-10 BTC and some ETH too. Thanks primedice.

I could have had an easy 100k+ which would have made my life so different but i simply did the wrong choices. Sometimes i really feel like my life is rigged. But yeah i guess some people feel much worse for example people knowing about BTC before 2011.

Rajj - October 11, 2018, 3:58 pm

Posting a pretty serious crime on my snapchat story... the following court proceedings weren't too fun.

CyberStrike - October 11, 2018, 4:13 pm

Well I was about 8 or so my dad's girlfriend her daughter ran into the house screaming about a snake, so me like a genius I said "There is no snake" .. this is in a small town rural 1 acre property with a good sized woods surrounding and a small creek and pond, deers were common place. I knew better of course .. there's no snake I grabbed maybe an 18 inch long stick and lifted up the plastic tarp she said it was under, sure enough I saw mouth and strike I had a little bit extra space but the daughter saw it ran told her mom that the snake bit me she told my dad (before cell phones). So my dad left work came home found out I wasn't bit, the snake never moved from under the tarp it was a copperhead (venomous could have bought the farm). It wasn't big my dad got a shovel killed it and tossed him unceremoniously into the creek.

Prodigic Son - October 11, 2018, 7:08 pm

I'd say the dumbest thing I've ever done is follow along with people who I thought were my 'friends'. Sure, a person should moralistically know "right from wrong", but peer pressure is a motherf*ck, and it cost me a bad reputation.

Elysium - October 12, 2018, 12:18 am

I can't think of one specific event to be honest. I think every event and every action shapes us into who we are today so there aren't many things that I regret.
