Read, learn, practice. The best way is to learn basics first, apk and ios development and the inner workings before you jump straight into hacking. Similar to a car, gotta learn how it runs before you modify and tune it up. Good luck and pm me. If you have discord and I'm not busy I can give you some pointers.

Keep usernames and outside handles in PM's only bud. Minimizes risk of someone messing with you.

Sounds like you already have a strong understanding of technologies, networking and some programming in the required languages (if not get said understanding). From there pick up The Web Application Hackers Handbook and a VM from vulnhub and get it.

that reply basically "was" real web app hacking.

what exactly is your definition of "real web hacking?"

Check out Page 824 what is that about? (Yes I have the book in front of me) You use that run say afl or whatever and set up your own LAMP server with various technologies that is how you discover unknown vulnerabilities.

Edit: can't type smh ... I know I sound like a jerk, but honestly if it isn't something which I have not done or would do I wouldn't suggest it. That book is still relevant today it was written in 2014 .. it's kind of like a bible when it comes to webapps and when combined with a bughunters diary well you get the picture.

First step of learning absolutely anything is knowing how to find what you're looking for.
Work on that.

EDIT:

Read a little bit and it seems you've "already read" it and it didn't help you.

Yeah dude ngl if that didn't teach you anything either you're already a master or you can't comprehend anything
