

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Will there ever be an option to appeal contract restrictions?

WageWolf - October 17, 2018, 9:46 am

I am curious if there would ever be an option in the future to appeal a contract restriction, under circumstances?

I understand that these kind of things are final, but I feel if there are extreme cases where a closed user would appeal, a contract appeal would be fair as well.

35-1, with the one negative boo rating being a scammer, makes me think that it would not be out of line to ask for an appeal, I suppose.

The reason I was contract banned in the first place is that I had to cancel a couple deals, related to either backing out due to someone trying to pull a scam, or the latest one where I had backed out due to finding a better price. I get this is not the way to act, but it was simply a mistake, and it feels a little extreme to have the following message on the profile of an otherwise legitimate marketplace user.

Here are the two contracts marked invalid,

<https://hackforums.net/contracts.php?action=view&cid=7023>

-and-

<https://hackforums.net/contracts.php?action=view&cid=7035>

Thanks in advance for reading this, just hope we can work something out, I really miss the HF marketplace. The cleanest and highest quality of any forum, in my honest opinion. Never really had many issues around there.

Omniscient - October 17, 2018, 10:29 am

I am not offering that option.