Thread: Where can I post a review of a product bought in Hackforum

Tidygirl - October 22, 2018, 1:49 pm

I just recently joined this forum, and I have bought a couple of items/services already. My question is regarding posting a review. I would like to give an honest review of one of the purchases I have done. The salethread is full of "5 star" reviews on the first pages.

I have not seen any feedback from the latest buyers. Actually, when I think about it, I can't remember having seen a neutral review in any of the sales-thread. It's obvious that I have not read all threads, but it seems like no one is willing to post any criticism or question popular products.

I can imagine that members would not appreciate a newbie to leave feedback unless it's positive. It's obvious that the product I bought does not meet the expectations. Honestly I have trouble understanding the overwhelming applause from a large number of members.

So, what would be the right thing to do in this case? Should I post a review in the sales-thread? Is there another section for this kind of reviews? I think the lack of honest reviews, and the fact that some of the good ones are extremely superficial are something that will effect any forum in bad way over time. Am I wrong here? Is it possible to share my (maybe not popular) opinion, without offending the seller? And if so, would anyone advise me were to post?

In the thread from where you bought a product

Note you are not reviewing the forum here instead you are reviewing the product of a seller

HF does not own product of a seller nor support the product

Hf is a platform where sellers just sells their product

HF is not responsible for buying,selling,exchange and trading that members do . All buying and selling are done at your own risk

Always use Marketplace Contract system

Let me guess, you bought an eBook? Leave the review on their thread. Sorry you bought a shit book that was vouched by their friends, RIP.

Thanx for helping me out. Now I just have to write it :) I am fully aware that it is not the forum who is under review, just wanted to mention that I think it would benefit everybody in the long if it's ok to post review's even if they are not all that positive. And as I said, I am new here, and I don't fully understand the dynamic of the forum. I am also aware of the risk and my responsibility as a buyer. I am not blaming the forum at all.

And yes, it was an E-book, but I have bought several of them, and been happy with the information, service and value. I learned a lesson, and shall keep it under my hat for the future.

Thax again :)

I have seen people use the marketplace discussions for this as well. Thanks

You can post it in the sales thread but be aware that it's easy for the seller to get your post (review) deleted.

Constructive criticism is allowed if I'm not wrong. Post it on the sales thread about your opinion and don't sales thrash by continuously arguing with the thread creator or others. Just post and move on.

The seller can usually get almost any reply removed just by reporting it. When it comes to sales threads, moderators usually remote it if that's what the seller wants.

Ah yes. They have their own criteria to leave a post or remove it upon OP's report.

Post it in Marketplace Discussion.
