Thread: Club Penguin to close permanently on 12/20/18

Seems like Disney never has success with MMO games. Pirates of the Caribbean Online, Toontown, and now Club Penguin.

Disney Poop Development Team Wrote: There's no easy way to say this but after 13 incredible years, Club Penguin Island will be closing on December 20, 2018

Thanks to you, Club Penguin has been more than a game; it's been a global community where you have gathered to socialize and express yourselves. In a time when games come and go within months, it was one of the longest-running kids' games of all time and at its height, had over 200 million accounts.

When we replaced the original Club Penguin game a year and a half ago, we always strived to make Club Penguin Island the best mobile successor to the original game. From day one of development, Club Penguin Island has been a true passion project for everyone here at Disney but, the time has come for the party to end.

Thank you from the bottom of our hearts for your continued dedication to the Club Penguin and Club Penguin Island games and for being a member of our family. We are so grateful to have shared in this journey with you.

Sad to see that this game is closing down, can't believe how Disney fucked this game up in the latest version.

club penguin and toontown bring back some memories, i remember i used to love going to the shops with my parents to buy the club penguin membership cards with my sister. its a shame people like me can't logon and see how everything is after so long

I remember playing all those titles. The only MMO still up from my childhood is OSRS.
