Thread: Policy Q on Marketplace Rep

If I do multiple deals with a member, can I start a contract every time we do a new deal? Even if its the same user, or is this considered like boosting?

Just a question so I know what to do in the future. Thank you.

There's currently no rule stating that you can't.

(I asked about this considering I have like 20+ contracts with the same person lol)

It must be because you need a new contract every time in case something goes wrong. They meant to be per deal not just once for just the first deal with the person I think....

Yes, contracts are on a per-deal basis.

as long as it is a seperate deal you are allowed to do this. however i wouldn't be suprised if a staff member asked for proof of deals if it looked like you were abusing it.

For every individual deal you make on Hack Forums you can and should make a new Contract, even if all deals are with the same person.

The B-Rating doesn't compile from multiple deals with the same user. So while you can continue to build Contracts with the same member they can't inflate your B-Rating.

This user has 15 and I'm 12 of them.
