Thread: [\[\$2,750 BIN\] Selling Official Group \[Payment Plan Available\]](#)

Cameron - October 27, 2018, 7:28 pm

Decided to devote my time to Infamous and won't be needing my group anymore.

Price: $3,250 in BTC/ETH

You will be covering the $250 transfer fee

I'll also be offering payment plans for those who can't pay the whole amount up front!

Thanks. :)

C/O - $2,000

Omni never said that wtf are you talking about lmao.

And you can get a group exchanged to a crew if you wanted through Omni. 100k bytes at current market rate is $2k. Nice try sales trashing but you failed miserably and gave me a free bump. :)

I would guess that he means groups might have more privilege, since crews only get a userbar, crew and vault.

The sub forum is worth at least something, along with the ability to add more members than a crew.

Uhm, I don't think so. The price is definitely going down, particularly considering nobody is buying it for $4k off him. Crews have completely destroyed the group market, as they are effectively the same thing. Most people bought groups for the userbars, and they carried the most significant values, but now Crews can do that for a fraction of the value in bytes. Group's still have subforums so it's more valuable.

This comment i would have to agree with.

Groups prices have started to decline recently and i feel they will only decline more now that we have Crews

With the addition of Bytes into the forum?

It's only a matter of time before paid groups get pushed out to some point.

Bytes/Crews will be the new generation of Hack Forums and with all the new weekly and some times daily updates being implemented to Hack Forums?

My best bet is to stock up on Bytes.

Exactly. I always see the same story of people saying "ooh now's a really great time to invest in groups, really good idea" and other comments alike. I find it really offensive that people would hype up groups when they aren't buying it themselves, and encourage others to invest in HF groups under false pretenses. It's clear that Crews are going to absolutely kill the group market. We are looking at probably around 20 more permanent crews opening up, and each new crew only drags the value of groups further down.

C/O is $3k in BTC. I'd prefer crypto, bank wire would likely be too expensive as I'm from Aus and you'd have conversion fees as well. WU, possibly but I wouldn't be covering any fees hence why crypto would be preferable as it'll only have a $0.50 fee.

A lot less supply back then hence the higher prices.

As Newword stated Crews are also out now, but they are only a userbar currently, no SF and literally nothing can be done with them for now.

This is true, nevertheless, most people join groups for the userbar. I don't see that many groups around anymore with highly skilled members in it.

Maybe I'll just drop $900 to get 90k more bytes and buy my own crew for a sweet userbar ? and won't invite anymore.

I'll give you forty (40) awards upfront and then an additional ten (10) when they become old enough to transfer and/or added to the award market (black hatter + x3 dabombs + zcash + music lover + x3 legalize it), for this group.

Lol

Because not too many people will pay to rent something that they:

1. Can't change the name of/userbar.
2. Are only going to be leader.
3. Not get any discount off purchasing it in the end.

Ultimately renting things is for dumb people, property included.

It's not meant to benefit the one renting. They get the clout(could even sell buy-ins) for a little bit while Cameron searches for a buyer.

It's cheaper than buying a group, and the group owner gets revenue from it.

Why couldn't they change the name or userbar? If they paid for it, I'm sure Cameron wouldn't mind changing it. He doesn't have to have anything to do with the group other than be the "Owner," so they technically could do what ever they want as the "Leader." Also, if they were interested in buying the group they could just do the payment plans like Cameron has already offered.

Who's going to pay $250 to rebrand a group that could be sold at any moment? Did you think this through?

If I was to buy this group, which I am considering, I wouldn't be able to do so if someone else is renting it for the month, and I wouldn't want to wait around.

It's nice to imagine clever ways of monetizing things belonging to other people and completely overlooking the reality of things, not a personal attack against you but people, especially those on this forum, like to tell/suggest to other people what to do with their money - I don't think anyone would rent this, and if they did he wouldn't get much money out of it and it would possibly lower the value of the group to potential purchasers, also if you're suggesting that people would want to rent it then why don't you rent it yourself, probably won't because you know it's a bad idea, but if selling buy-ins is guaranteed then send an offer to Cameron and do it.

You would be able to buy it, the month after. The renter would either have to buy it or give it up. They wouldn't really have much of a choice because Omni wouldn't recognize them as the owner and they wouldn't have any claim to the group. Now, with that being said. Cameron could at his discretion accept or decline your offer.

You can use Omni as a MM if he still does that. So after X amount of time has passed transfer ownership and funds. It would be a done deal at that point and the renter would be out of options. That's just how life goes sometimes.

I did, just wanted to save that spot lol.

To further add to this: Nex+ did the same thing and had a couple different people rent off of him if I'm not mistaken. It's also a good alternative for someone that is not approved for ownership by Omni. Would need to create a contract if they planed to rent for an extended period of time.

You realize how this makes people looking to buy the group not want to.

And anyway, I guarantee you nobody will rent it out. Not a single person. Prove me wrong and rent it yourself. You won't because you know it's dumb.

Why does it make people considering buying this group not want to? If they're going to buy it, they're going to buy regardless of what I say about the idea of renting.

If I'm buying this I don't want to be waiting a month for some dude to finish selling buyins aimlessly.

But you're right, nobody is going to rent it out anyway so it doesn't make it less attractive. There's still absolutely no point in renting out a group because nobody will rent it when it's getting sold.
