Thread: Business paypal with business name

Hey, guys, I have been accepting payments to my own personal PayPal that I made a business account that way when people send me money it only says the business name which I named it just something generic. Like selling things online. I'm curious if this is a bad idea or not. I just don't feel like spending the money to buy a verified PayPal when this seems to be working just fine. Thanks!

Well, someone might be able to Doxx you, given that they also see your info with ur PayPal. Not the smartest idea perhaps.

As long as it doesn't sound strange when they pay for nudes it should be okay.

Say someone did dox me whats the worst that could happen? And I'm thinking if I delete my account every couple months and make a new one I'll be a bit better off. Also gonna try and start using cash app instead. Thanks for your input!

Thanks!! I don't think it sounds strange, no one has ever asked anything about it once!

if you have to deal with a dispute, it may show ur full name.

I've seen full names on disputes ... so just make a ehoe paypal

The worst thing that can happen is every time someone types your name into google they find out you spend your time pretending to be a chick on the internet ?
