Thread: Email sending whats wrong?

Hackerman_2018 - November 12, 2018, 2:13 pm

Hi all,

new account due to inactivity but im back on programming. (Citrusl User for the poeple who knows me, also find me in rohitab)

Based on an uncompletted tutorial in Youtube... i fixed and completed the code of this guy and its working, except the email part (im not receiving any email).

I will need to put this functionality in my own keylogger.

(if you receive undefined errors reference warning, add this "-lwsock32" on the option tool when compiler is being called)

I couldnt paste the code using [Code] Label sorry.

WHY IS NOT WORKING? SHOULD I CHANGE THE SMTP?

What does the server respond ?

it would be nice if you gave us the error you received

Hackerman_2018 - November 12, 2018, 2:25 pm

Im not receiving any error message. The emails just doesnt appear on the mailbox.

I think it was an administrator right issue, but i tested in another machine with admin and is not working.

well there's your problem, maybe use some try/catch error handling. maybe try a different server, seems "gmail-smtp-in-l-google.com" has issues, maybe messages are stuck in a queue somewhere, maybe your auth isn't correct, maybe you have the wrong server, maybe its a pointer issue, who knows. if you have no errors, warnings, or messages for us to go on... its hard to help

Quote:Outgoing Mail (SMTP) Server: smtp.gmail.com

Use Authentication: Yes

Use Secure Connection: Yes (TLS or SSL depending on your mail client/website SMTP plugin)

Username: your Gmail account (e.g. user@gmail.com)

Password: your Gmail password

Port: 465 (SSL required) or 587 (TLS required)

ok, i will try to make an error handle, just give me some time.

(i think the issue is the server)

I started to put printf's on every part of my code and it looks like the email function is not being called. Its looping on keypress function.

Well... yes, server is down and i used another one.

Now it says working (unstable but working), anyway im still not receiving any email.
