Thread: Recovery mail deleted by google, lost password

Dariustresor - November 16, 2018, 10:07 am

Hello ,I have an issue : I created this account some weeks ago, I put a random password and never logged out it from HF

I forgot my password, I tried to recover it by mail but I figured out that google disabled my gmail account without any reason !

So Im blocked, What I can do to recover my password ?

Dig deep into your memory and remember the password.

Gmail don't typically disable an account for no reason.

Your password can probably be found on the saved logins of your browser.

" I cannot open my door because I lost the key and can't find it "

" You have to find the key "

Correct, but it doesn't change the fact that it was the most logical/reasonable answer in the thread.

Even if Google disables your account can't you download your data at least? I remember being able to download a file with all of my emails when it happened to one of mine

Passwords and physical keys are different.

You can pay a locksmith to open your door, you can't pay someone to magically recover your random password - the chances are remote.

The only easy way is the Google.

Try to restore it. You can check out this link
