

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Who else has done a DNA test?

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 2:18 pm

Out of curiosity, I decided to buy a DNA test to see exactly what I have in me. Has anyone else done this and what kind of results did you get? It's supposed to tell me the percentages of what areas of the world I have in me. It also will tell me if there are any matches like if someone else related to me did the test it would say "you have a insert percentage chance of being related to this person".

There's a lot of people that are worried about these tests and sending in your saliva but I don't see what they would do with it so I'm not worried about it. If they clone me I say ?

Lavish Living - November 30, 2018, 2:25 pm

my sister spent the $100 on this test so i know what i am from that and dont plan on ever doing one myself.

and yeah, the 23andme one keeps track of all the dna they tested and will literally tell you if you are related to someone, as long as you and them allowed your results to be public.

i know i troll you alot but true story, my step uncle did the test and found out he has a 36 year old half black grown ass man as a long lost son who lived/grew up in Texas, around the area where my step uncle was stationed when he served in the marines lmao.

ApexChill666 - November 30, 2018, 2:27 pm

23andme and ancestry both share your DNA with Law Enforcement.

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 2:28 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:25 PM)Lavish Living Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) my sister spent the $100 on this test so i know what i am from that and dont plan on ever doing one myself.

and yeah, the 23andme one keeps track of all the dna they tested and will literally tell you if you are related to someone, as long as you and them allowed your results to be public.

i know i troll you alot but true story, my step uncle did the test and found out he has a 36 year old half black grown ass man as a long lost son who lived/grew up in Texas, around the area where my step uncle was stationed when he served in the marines lmao.

Did you actually just give me a serious response? We have come a long way.

In all seriousness, I would honestly be so excited if I found out I have a long lost brother/sister out there. It's definitely possible haha.

(Nov 30, 2018 03:27 PM)ApexChill666 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 23andme and ancestry both share your DNA with Law Enforcement.

How do you know this?

I don't plan on becoming some international criminal or nothing so I don't really care. I doubt they can legally share your DNA without your permission though, that would be a big lawsuit.

ApexChill666 - November 30, 2018, 2:32 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:28 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Did you actually just give me a serious response? We have come a long way.

In all seriousness, I would honestly be so excited if I found out I have a long lost brother/sister out there. It's definitely possible haha.

How do you know this?

I don't plan on becoming some international criminal or nothing so I don't really care. I doubt they can legally share your DNA without your permission though, that would be a big lawsuit.

I watch a lot of hacker con videos where it was brought up.

Apart of you submitting your DNA you realase your control of it, literally spit into their lab. They then can respond to LE requests for 'name, =dna'

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 2:34 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:32 PM)ApexChill666 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I watch a lot of hacker con videos where it was brought up.

Apart of you submitting your DNA you realase your control of it, literally spit into their lab. They then can respond to LE requests for 'name, =dna'

"Ancestry will release basic subscriber information as defined in 18 USC § 2703©(2) about Ancestry users to law enforcement only in response to a valid trial, grand jury or administrative subpoena.

Ancestry will release additional account information or transactional information pertaining to an account (such as search terms, but not including the contents of communications) only in response to a court order issued pursuant to 18 USC § 2703(d).

Contents of communications and any data relating to the DNA of an Ancestry user will be released only pursuant to a valid search warrant from a government agency with proper jurisdiction.

If we receive a valid request under U.S. law to preserve records that constitute potentially relevant evidence in legal proceedings, we will preserve, but not disclose, a temporary snapshot of the relevant account records for 90 days pending service of valid legal process as described above."

It's not like everyones DNA is put into a law enforcement database but they will release results if it's a valid request for a court case.

ApexChill666 - November 30, 2018, 2:38 pm

FBI Federal DNA Database

'Oral sample'

'Mam its for national secrity'

or

'NSAd'

rekt

I would never do that.

Lavish Living - November 30, 2018, 2:39 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:32 PM)ApexChill666 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I watch a lot of hacker con videos where it was brought up.

Apart of you submitting your DNA you realase your control of it, literally spit into their lab. They then can respond to LE requests for 'name, =dna' that makes more sense, a subpeona for a SPECIFIC persons dna. but i dont think LE can just run anyones dna on the 23andme/ancestry dna databases... unless its in the TOS for the companies idk jesuschristisfake - November 30, 2018, 2:40 pm

<https://vitl.com/product/dna-test-kit>

Try it!

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 2:42 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:38 PM)ApexChill666 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) FBI Federal DNA Database
'Oral sample'

'Mam its for national secrity'

or

'NSAd'

rekt

I would never do that.

If the FBI has a valid reason to ask for a sample of my DNA then I really fucked up and there's no place I can hide.

I'm not worried about it.

Lavish Living - November 30, 2018, 2:51 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:42 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If the FBI has a valid reason to ask for a sample of my DNA then I really fucked up and there's no place I can hide.

I'm not worried about it.

if you cant hide from the FBI and be put on the top 10 most wanted list.... you're a sad excuse of a criminal.

Mix - November 30, 2018, 3:16 pm

When i was younger I thought I was adopted and I would ask my parents all the time about it but when i got older I was tempted to get a dna test done but then my parents gave up and shown me my birth documents and I was like oh okay then and never spoke about that silly shit again, FYI I was like 14

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 3:18 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:51 PM)Lavish Living Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) if you cant hide from the FBI and be put on the top 10 most wanted list.... you're a sad excuse of a criminal.

Maybe I don't want to be a criminal and want to catch them ?

(Nov 30, 2018 04:16 PM)Mix3rz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When i was younger I thought I was adopted and I would ask my parents all the time about it but when i got older I was tempted to get a dna test done but then my parents gave up and shown me my birth documents and I was like oh okay then and never spoke about that silly shit again, FYI I was like 14

Haha, I would say the same thing when I was younger.

Mr. Robot - November 30, 2018, 3:20 pm

Yup i've done one.

Ram - November 30, 2018, 3:21 pm

Never tried it. Let me know how it goes lol I'm genuinely interested!

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 3:22 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:20 PM)Mr. Robot Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yup i've done one.

I know I have some Irish in me but I'm not sure about the rest.

Solid chance we could be brothers ;) ?

falkenburry - November 30, 2018, 3:23 pm

I'd like to do it honestly, but is it always 100%?

You're basically giving a company your DNA; which they keep in a database. I wouldn't trust it

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 3:25 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:23 PM)falkenburry Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd like to do it honestly, but is it always 100%?

You're basically giving a company your DNA; which they keep in a database. I wouldn't trust it I don't think anything is always 100% but I'm sure it's pretty accurate.

Honestly, what's the worst they could do with it?

Mr. Robot - November 30, 2018, 3:25 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:23 PM)falkenburry Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd like to do it honestly, but is it always 100%?

You're basically giving a company your DNA; which they keep in a database. I wouldn't trust it
You do realize all it takes is a family member doing one at some point to fuck you over if you ever do anything and leave DNA. Not only that but by putting it up an out there, if a family member of yours murders someone, they can possibly one day use this to track it back to them.

I say good.

wraxu - November 30, 2018, 3:44 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 03:27 PM)ApexChill666 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 23andme and ancestry both share your DNA with Law Enforcement.

<https://www.23andme.com/en-gb/transparency-report/>

Users data produced: 0 (total)

Mix - November 30, 2018, 3:56 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:18 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Haha, I would say the same thing when I was younger.

We all do silly and dumb shit when we are young but I think asking about adoption is hard for some parents I guess

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 3:58 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:56 PM)Mix3rz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We all do silly and dumb shit when we are young but I think asking about adoption is hard for some parents I guess

Well, if I was adopted or mixed up at birth I will find out with this test considering other family members have done it as well.

Mix - November 30, 2018, 3:59 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:58 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well, if I was adopted or mixed up at birth I will find out with this test considering other family members have done it as well.

With the test tho you could find out that all your life is a lie, and could effect you in serious ways.

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 4:01 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 04:59 PM)Mix3rz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) With the test tho you could find out that all your life is a lie, and could effect you in serious ways.

Would be crazy but I highly doubt it. It would definitely change your entire life though.

Omniscient - November 30, 2018, 5:27 pm

Quote:There's a lot of people that are worried about these tests and sending in your saliva but I don't see what they would do with it so I'm not worried about it.

I bought a kit and I was going to use it then started to read how it's being used in legal cases because a family member might have committed a crime in which their DNA is a close match to yours.

Personally I just think this gives me chills that the DNA you send in is not private at all. I think it's a big trap.

Quote:It's not like everyones DNA is put into a law enforcement database but they will release results if it's a valid request for a court case.

You could have a cousin that committed a crime and because you sent in DNA they will find him.

Quote:that makes more sense, a subpoena for a SPECIFIC persons dna. but i dont think LE can just run anyones dna on the 23andme/ancestry dna databases... unless its in the TOS for the companies idk

<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/just-beginning-using-dna-genealogy-crack-years-old-cold-cases-n892126>

PerfectStorm - November 30, 2018, 5:30 pm

I think If i ever do a dna test it be cause Im in some serious trouble... never.

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 5:35 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 06:27 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I bought a kit and I was going to use it then started to read how it's being used in legal cases because a family member might have committed a crime in which their DNA is a close match to yours.

Personally I just think this gives me chills that the DNA you send in is not private at all. I think it's a big trap.

You could have a cousin that committed a crime and because you sent in DNA they will find him.

<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/just-beginning-using-dna-genealogy-crack-years-old-cold-cases-n892126>

The only cousins I care about aren't criminals so if it's anyone else I wouldn't really care.

It is pretty messed up that it's not 100% private though, I don't like that.

(Nov 30, 2018 06:34 PM)lemmon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah I know its a bit tinfoil hat. But These labs own your DNA, after you give it to them, they can keep it forever. Although now it's impossible, who knows what they will be able to do in the future, I don't wanna be cloned fam

You wouldn't want to be cloned? I think it would be awesome.

Maybe they are collecting all our DNA and will alter it to make a better version of everyone, then they will send a plague to wipe out everyone who isn't a superhuman clone to create a better species of humans.

puts another layer on my tin foil hat

?ystem - November 30, 2018, 6:56 pm

I haven't done a DNA test personally. The thought has crossed my mind a couple of times over the years but it soon goes away. I know I'm Scandinavian, which is all I really need to know.

PerfectStorm - November 30, 2018, 7:03 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 06:35 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The only cousins I care about aren't criminals so if it's anyone else I wouldn't really care.

It is pretty messed up that it's not 100% private though, I don't like that.

You wouldn't want to be cloned? I think it would be awesome.

Maybe they are collecting all our DNA and will alter it to make a better version of everyone, then they will send a plague to wipe out everyone who isn't a superhuman clone to create a better species of humans.

puts another layer on my tin foil hat

Being cloned is just too creepy for me, imagine running into yourself? yikes.

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 7:07 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 08:03 PM)PerfectStorm Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Being cloned is just too creepy for me, imagine running into yourself? yikes.

If I had a long lost twin I would honestly be so excited.

PerfectStorm - November 30, 2018, 7:08 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 08:07 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If I had a long lost twin I would honestly be so excited. I would be petrified If I had one. ?

Crypt - November 30, 2018, 7:13 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 08:08 PM)PerfectStorm Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I would be petrified If I had one. ?
You're going to accidentally bump into them at the grocery store like in the movies and look at each other like ?

Mr. Robot - November 30, 2018, 7:14 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 06:27 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I bought a kit and I was going to use it then started to read how it's being used in legal cases because a family member might have committed a crime in which their DNA is a close match to yours.

Personally I just think this gives me chills that the DNA you send in is not private at all. I think it's a big trap.

You could have a cousin that committed a crime and because you sent in DNA they will find him.

<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/just-beginning-using-dna-genealogy-crack-years-old-cold-cases-n892126>

This is why I participated. I don't want to be involved in a case where I could be harboring a fugitive.

PerfectStorm - November 30, 2018, 7:16 pm

(Nov 30, 2018 08:13 PM)Canny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're going to accidentally bump into them at the grocery store like in the movies and look at each other like ?

Like for real, I would turn around and run out of the store without my groceries.

Blogger - December 1, 2018, 1:14 am

I've always wanted to try one. I've looked into 23&me since it breaks down the regions better.

DOG - December 1, 2018, 1:43 am

<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/23andme-is-terrifying-but-not-for-the-reasons-the-fda-thinks/>

One of google founder created 23andme and much more you can read about it. It's a no for me.

pms - December 1, 2018, 4:17 am

I dont dare to take these tests, feel like they are saving all my info somewhere.

Carl Elias - December 4, 2018, 12:49 am

I have done one before. Almost every single test company will have in their TOS that "your DNA becomes the property of [COMPANY NAME HERE]" or something similar to that. Now it doesn't mean the physical DNA is theirs, but the results of the test remain theirs, and some do keep the DNA samples in their storage to retest if they get new methods of testing.

I found it a little creepy at first giving out my DNA to some company, but after awhile it went away a little.

-Ty