Thanks, this is awesome. :)

I want to start building a bot network of my own, so I'm looking for a good (spelled 'free' for the time being) RAT and a safe DDNS.

I can go with this RAT, any suggestions on a DDNS?

Thanks again. :D

NYANxCAT - December 10, 2018, 12:22 am

With all respect, You shouldn't use this software as your main RAT.

With less than 5 minutes, I discovered so many issues.

But this "code below" is the main issue.

Code StreamReader reader = new StreamReader(client.GetStream());
    //StartParsingThread(reader.ReadLine());
    Parse(reader.ReadLine());
    client.GetStream().BeginRead(new byte[] { 0 }, 0, 0, Read, null);

Maybe in my free-time will modify it for hf members. I can make more stable and less lag/thread blocking. I can't say that I will do it but maybe I will.

I've found that you just have to do the liscensesteps again everytime it fails (wich is every other day) then you get acces to a rat that doesn't really work properly (at least it didn't for me) but if you do want to try it some more just repeat the guide.

I'm not trash-talking or disrespect your work but if you don't see the problem then I guess there is nothing to talk about.

I never claimed I had it. I said I know someone who does. I stated it was possible that golden eye was based off LL since they, despite being different colors, imo have similar themes and the exact same contextmenustrip.

Design doesn't mean shit, I sure can make my own carbonated beverage and use a similar design to Coca Cola, but it's not going to taste like Coca Cola, it'd probably taste terrible because I don't know how to make carbonated beverages.

As the seller of goldeneye rat, I can assure you that it is not a clone of any other rat. It was coded from scratch in c# .net
