Thread: My first attempt at a Wolf Double exposure effect

Anima - December 9, 2018, 12:36 pm

I'm a huge fan of double exposure effects so wanted to give it a try with a wolf

Let me know what you think of my first attempt at it :)

Current edit:

Version 1:

Thanks buddy =D

Double exposure effects look so cool if done right, might try more in the future

You definitely should mate, your work is amazing.

I really like this, very beautiful color blending between the forest and the wolf though I would have preferred if the upper right edges weren't visible and the wolf's borders simply end with the trees

Was also thinking this but kept for the birds, going to have a play about tomorrow and change it up. Maybe have a nicer background on it Looks awesome! I thought the top part blended pretty great!

Effexion - December 10, 2018, 1:52 am

Looking good, man. Keep it up!

CyberError - December 10, 2018, 1:56 am look preety sick tbh , the top part of wold is really dope , but later on the body it look little unprofessional

Bacardi Cola Lime - December 10, 2018, 3:55 am

It looks good mate! There could be some improvements on the blending but really cool overall. I would really love to see a black and white version of this.

Cød3ing - December 10, 2018, 3:57 am not bad at all, that actually looks pretty awesome

As requested, i've done a few different versions of it black and white:

All black and white:

I agree, the lightness at the bottom looked quite bad, also moved it off the plain white background

Black and white with colored eyes is nice man! Good job

try increase levels/curves on the wolf

That's sooooo awesome. Do you do it in photoshop or illustrator???

Pirate - December 10, 2018, 9:51 am wow! I like it!

at the first glance it looked really cool and after few seconds of staring the exposure in the top ( trees ) looks like it is lessening the height of the actual wolf..i dont know what edit could fix this but just what I thought.. would love to see the next update as this is just an attempt u mentioned. x)

EDIT : just saw the birds on the picture so it should be considered as the highest border on the image.. hmm it looks candid now great!

I'll take that as a compliment?

Really loving the double exposure effect at the moment :3

DAMN SON!

Looks amazing, keep up with the amazing work.

You could've put some birds flying around or a pack on the woods as well.

cr347ive - December 11, 2018, 9:06 pm

You have a cool idea and you did a solid job masking and blending the wolf with forest. Personally I do not dig the background and I'm not a big fan of the render (wolf) quality on the bottom side of the picture as the fur looks kinda weird on that background and is a bit blurry looking so it doesnt really blend in. Wolf itself seems a bit chopped off in a way and just pasted there because background is quite empty and too bright for this render so I would either increase opacity of the textures or put new ones that will blend in better with current composition. Not bad at all for a first attempt. Looking forward to see more of your work. Keep on posting puddy. :)

Th3Dippo - December 12, 2018, 5:25 pm

I liked Version 1 and Version of the blued eye .. keep going buddy

Ziro - December 13, 2018, 2:03 am

There is fade on the forest whereas not on the wolf, if you were to match those, it'd look pretty cool, not gonna lie.

PerfectStorm - December 13, 2018, 2:10 am

Good job boiii looks pretty good
