Thread: [\[\$110\] User Mon£y using false advertising! \(UID:123689\)](#)

Mr Relic - December 13, 2018, 10:20 am

Hello hackforums!

Basically I'm opening a DD against Mon£y (profile link below) due to him not at all delivering what was promised.

Profile: <https://hackforums.net/marketcp.php?action=profile&uid=123689>

The reason for me opening a dispute to our contract isn't necessarily that OP didn't deliver the software.

Yet the software that he did deliver was nowhere near what he advertised in the thread.

Thread: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5321276>

I paid the professional package AKA paid $110.

Contract: <https://hackforums.net/contracts.php?action=view&cid=18268>

In his thread he claims to be selling a .exe to .doc builder, which is very correct!

However he advertises a "silent doc builder/exploit" for a higher price. (the professional an corporate package).

The issue that I have with this is that I specifically asked for this silent addon to output a .DOC file.

When I received the software I was rather dissapointed to see that the silent addon does not output a .doc but a .vbs!

This is by no means a doc/exploit builder like he claims to be selling in the thread.

I myself could perfectly write a vbs script to retrieve a file and run it, basically everyone can do this.

It's absurd that he charges another 30-60 Dollars for this extra feature.

When he lists the features he does NOT mention at all that the silent addon essentially makes it so you're no longer buying a doc builder/exploit but instead buying an easy to write OVERPRICED vbs script.

Ofcourse actual silent exploits cost far more, I know that. Yet that does not mean that OP is allowed to practise false advertising here on the forum, does it?

In the contract that he made he mentioned that all terms listed in the thread are of effect, making me feel cheated when he delivers something completely different from what he sells in the thread.

By no means is false advertisement legal in real markets and I hope that's the same on this service and that actions will be taken.

If any admins or authorized personel want to go on teamviewer to see proof of how the software fails to do what it's advertised to do, PM me.

Thanks in advance!

Looks legit, many red flags on his sale thread tho. "bypass uac" , "silent" are keywords to look for if you want to avoid scams. Check if they provide a version or a CVE number along with these. By doing so you know which version of word kit is affected by those "silent" exploit.

Hi! thanks for your reply. He simply does not reply to any questions regarding the "silent add-on". Pretty sure he knows something is off and he's selling lies.

I don't know if he'll refund me but atleast get this man off of the marketplace.

Are you serious?

I explained EXACTLY how EVERY feature of the builder works before you made a payment. Oh look, what's this?

<https://imgur.com/9W3cTin>

Yep that's pretty clearly some proof.

I can't stand members like you, making me look bad when you're the one at fault. Then lying through your teeth to make me out as a 'scammer', it's an absolute joke. How much clearer could have I explained how it works, seriously?..

Oh and it's not $60 extra for the silent add-on, that's for the FUD crypter, so you clearly haven't even read the thread.

My product worked EXACTLY as described.

The way I see it, you need to still run the vbs that would launch the docx with your "macro" that is "silent". so you would need to send the Vbs right ? You claim it would be "spoofed" as doc id assume. A spoofed extension is easy to detect if that's the case, aka this isn't a real doc but a disguised vbs which is as bad as sending the vbs itself without any "spoof". Please correct me if I am wrong, also I have read throughout your whole sale thread and seen your ss.

Mr Relic - December 14, 2018, 3:48 am

Hello,

I'd prefer if you'd actually read the post before jumping into full defense.

I did not say you HAVE to pay $60 more for the silent addon, I said $30-$60 (referring to the packages), so please read before you answer.

Congrats, you have proof of answering one PM where you say it uses a VBS script, which could perfectly mean that it uses a built in VBS script.

Never did you once say, not in your thread and not in your PM's that the OUTPUT of the "silent-addon" would be a .vbs file named .doc, you'd have to be an actual 12 year old to think this is a .doc file.

Also thanks for the -3 rep sir, I truly do appreciate it, however that does not stop me from trying to get you off of this market for blatant false advertising.

After that PM (which was before payment, thus you were trying a bit harder with more frequent and friendly responses) I asked you 3 times why it outputs a .vbs and whether there was a fix for it and you truly did ignore those questions without an issue :)

And yes 0xBB, you're correct. The silent-addon is indeed just a vbs script which has to be opened. By not means is this anything close to a silent doc exploit.

Anymore proof? I'll gladly discuss it with you.

First of all he read my post wrong leading him to speculate that I said that paying $60 extra is obligatory to get the silent-addon, which I didn't say.

Ontop of that he went ahead and linked one PM from where he responded to me in a very vague fashion.

Not once did he clearly state that the OUTPUT of the builder would be a .vbs, since he's claiming on his thread it's a .exe to .DOC exploit, it's hard to take away something completely different from his PM.

I understand that you side with an upgraded member with far more rep but to anyone else reading this, look further than someone's HF profile and look at the facts. Especially him claiming it's "an absolute joke" without actually debunking any of the statements mentioned earlier.

Have a nice day fellas.

First off, this thread in and of itself is several months old. Second off, the thread that you just posted is from 2016. I would hardly consider that a trend.

Please take the time to check the dates of threads before posting next time.

This account is old but I have never given the program, I was waiting because I say it

If you did some research before buying the product you would have realized in no way does he sell any sort of silent doc exploit ? Yes it may seem a bit misleading, his idea of what a silent doc exploit might be a bit twisted from reality. Obviously this exploit is not good for practical spreading use, but for targeted exploiting it can still be helpful for users who don't want to spend the extra money to get a real silent or any current 0day / RCE exploits for sale in the market
