Thread: Federal prison issued sandisk sportsclip mp3 pla

Cutta22 - December 14, 2018, 4:00 pm

The federal prison allows inmates to o purchase sandisk sportsclip mp3 players that has some type of block on it for as long as they are incarcerated. Once they are released, the company that owns the players charge them money to unlock the player for outside use

I need to know how to unlock it so I can put music on it

VoIPv2 - December 14, 2018, 6:35 pm

How can a MP3 player determine if you are in prison or not?

NERO - December 14, 2018, 7:42 pm

It doesn't...

It uses a locked down version of the software in which many features are restricted, Inmates spend about a buck fifty on each track some inmates end up spending like $3k on songs whilst incarcerated as such when they are released they can send off their mp3 player to Sandisk with their inmate number and release documents and like a $25 fee then they will load on the normal deinstitutionalised version and the now released inmate will be able to download the songs off their mp3 and load them on their phones etc etc...

buy a phone like the rest of the world and stream all your music...

Solodolo555 - January 5, 2019, 3:37 am

There is money to be made if someone can figure a way to bypass the security firmware on the SanDisk Sports clip mp3 player using a cell phone.

Johnsmith.d.p.r - March 28, 2019, 8:59 pm

SOLVED!!!! Get an "on the go" capable phone. Get an OTG adapter. Get an app from wherever you like called OTG Disk Explorer Pro. The one with a purple usb thumb drive for an icon. It $2.99 on the play store but Google the apk. Plug in the player. Select mp3 files a few at a time. Push the download button. Wait for it to finish and say charging b4 you disconnect. Hold center button to do reset on device. Player will still revalidate no problem. FTF from FPC _____!

P.S. Don't forget to remove album art using a tag editor app or it will show up on the screen. Anything you download can NOT be removed using this app. Don't transfer folders just mp3 files. If your player crashes you can still use the scan function at Trulincs. It usually fixes it. Remember you asked the question on a public forum and I answered so now its free for everyone. Enjoy.

Well done bro, very nice of u. If anybody forgot to remove album arts. U can still remove them and use the same files to replace the ones u did not. It will removes the old files. Right now Im trying to find the right app which allow u to delete songs on that god damn MP3. And anyone know how to crack this MP3 by upgrade firmware? I ve tried many different ways but none work. I heard someone said he about to able to crack it and also put the name on like the BOP one how do i put music on after it fail the first time. i see a download folder, then it want load again. next queation has anyone figured out how to delete music after its been added or if i re-add the music after i forgot to remove cover art, will it double the music or replace the files? help me.out

Johnsmith.d.p.r - September 19, 2019, 5:46 pm

They got my jack! Lost 41 days gct and six months store phone and visits plus a $500 fine. Oh well you gotta pay to play. Hope yet all enjoying the music.

Some mp3s will only allow download one time. Been told that scanning at the trulinks two days in a row without hooking it up to a phone will fix it sometimes. Can't delete files yet but you can remove album art if you download the same music file sans artwork a second time. Mp3s mp4s flac audio all work great. The camp I'm at don't sell the SanDisk anymore so if your joint still has them... Buy them up.

Terry Anno - September 23, 2019, 5:49 am

If you have the older version 1.07 then you need an app called "my playlist creator" to make an m3u file & it works with most all music formats. Put the music on your sdcard and open app, set the root directory to mint/external, then select music hit termite next page hit generate give write permission and you good. I'm in ca prison done thousands of songs and made a lot of money

Johnsmith.d.p.r - December 3, 2019, 9:34 pm

So I've had this idea that having a rooted phone and running termux with root access might allow us better control of these mp3's. This may be out of reach to most of us but I have a plan. If your phone is running Android 7 or older you may be able to root with an app. I'm on 9.0 so no luck there. I need a PC to root so I'm thinking maybe I could use one of the WYSE thin clients up at education. If I could get it to boot from USB I may be able to create a bootable USB drive from my phone with adb/fastboot and root from there. It all depends on accessing the bios. If I pull it off I'm a boss. If not then I'll get shipped.

Did you figure out how to revalidate without the connecting to the computer? Thats very important. I heard it has something to do with shortening out the memory or something but that sounds dangerous there must be a better software related way.

The 1.0 version software only allow you to download music once. Gives that error when you connect it again. Have to load all the music the first time. If you have a phone with root access you can access the MP3.

Not sure how he had it done. I hired a company to add features but they couldn't do it because they couldn't get the source code. Found an apk editor that let me make some changes but won't open the dex file that contains the Java file.

Once the unit starts freezing you have to stop putting my music or the folder will crash.

No one else is doing this here besides me. There's only about 30 mp3s here so not a lot going on. I've only tried 3 and 2 of them ended up getting corrupted download folders. Probably gonna order a rooted phone and see if I can find an app that will work better.

Bryant Bryantk - January 29, 2020, 6:10 pm

Not sure if anyone else has had this at their institution yet, but there is an update for your mp3 now that wipes all music that you put on with a phone. The new software also comes up with error messages on the mp3 if you try to put music on with a phone like everyone has been doing where I'm at.

Only solution now is to figure out how to root these things.. I have 2 days before mine needs revalidated. My homie here had his rooted at the last spot, he is able to put an sd card into his and put music on that way. So it is possible, he just doesn't know how the guy did it.

The Amazing Sinner - January 29, 2020, 6:12 pm

Getting it unlocked usually involves sending it in to the contractor BOP has set up and paying a fee to unlock it so you can add your own music to it.

P.S. Don't forget to remove album art using a tag editor app or it will show up on the screen. Anything you download can NOT be removed using this app. Don't transfer folders just mp3 files. If your player crashes you can still use the scan function at Trulincs. It usually fixes it. Remember you asked the question on a public forum and I answered so now its free for everyone. Enjoy.

They have the new 1.14 firmware update for the mp3 players now. Once your revalidation ends, and you plug it in the computer, it forces a firmware update and strips you mp3 of any songs not bought through corrlinks. My questions are: A- Otg Pro will no longer allow you to add music to ur mp3 player after the firmware update..is a new app that will allow me to do so? And B- I hear that there is a way to shorten then board on the Mp3 player by bridging the positive side of the battery to one of the resisters on the side of the memory chip, just dont know which one. Can someone help with that? There is cash involved if one could help in anyway. Thanks in advance.

I knew how to do the shortening the battery/memory, but that takes about 60 days before it "revalidates" with 195 or more days. I can't go that long without music.

Would u plz teach me how to do the shortening of thr board? I will pay if necessary.. bizzle0028 at gmail dot com

Someone here said if you short out the capacitor closest to the audio jack (looking down at mp3 with back cover off - the capacitor directly to the right of the end of audio jack) with any ground, this will reboot mp3. Once this happens you need to turn player off then wait 90 days with player off.

We were told 60 days at first, but tried that twice, no results. Did the 90 days turned on and now have over 1100 days remaining. I didn't lose any of my previously downloaded songs. I still have version 1.09. And the player obviously had already expired before trying this.

I also replaced a usp female jack on someone else's player, the guy was on restriction so he couldn't use his player so he threw it into the back of his locker. 4 months later when he was off his restriction, he turned his player on and it said 1147 days left!!

I did not short anything out.

I believe you possibly don't have to short anything out but just leave off for 90 days?

I'm trying this out on one where the guy went home and I bought his player for parts. We will see in 90 days. Sucks we got to wait so long just to see if it works, but hell I have 30+ years left anyway.

Hope we can all figure this out and share for free, it's us against them. Greed is what got most of us in here.
