Thread: INTX Botnet is open source LiteHTTP "with added features"

Zettabit - December 16, 2018, 4:18 pm

Thread in question: INTX HTTP BOTNET | ADVANCED REMOTE SYSTEM | RECOVER BROWSERS | BOTKILLER | And MORE...

User in question: Shad0Byte

Why are you making this thread?

Another member brought to my attention this thread, and advised me to take a look at it. Upon reading the thread, looking at the screenshots, and comparing the features of my bot, and INTX, they appear to be almost the exact same thing. The only "differences" between INTX and LiteHTTP is his "browser recovery" (which can easily be found on Google and C+P'd), "auto-profit system", firewall bypass (again, probably C+P'd from Google), and anti-debug / emulation.

Now, I'd like to share our conversation via PM. This is our entire conversation. I have not left out anything, as I have nothing to hide:

Now, let's compare panel screenshots just to further prove that 99% of it is my code:

The create task page is exactly similar, I just do not have a screenshot of my bot panel at the moment.

If you remember right, didn't he say he tried to modify the panel to make them as different as possible? They look extremely similar if you ask me.

If he's not afraid to C+P my panel and make some slight changes, I wouldn't put it past him to C+P the bot base as well and just add a couple things on top and call it his "nearly recoded from scratch" bot.

does it really matter? isn't it all C# shitware?

i was skimming through your thread (y'know to see what sort of stupid stuff i'd find) and saw one of your screenshots describe a feature, "knock interval" -- i paused and thought maybe its marketing fluff but then i remembered we're on hf; it screams "this guy hasn't ever shipped production grade software" and that's just based on the terminology you're using to describe the shitware you're distributing.

btw its called a poll event.

Good catch... So what do you mean by "Another member brought to my attention" OP? Apparently you helped change it...

Looks like y'all had a bad deal or something??

Edit: Nevermind here's OP calling him out on using his source.

Someone PM'd me about his sales thread, because I hadn't seen it until he told me about it. It's not that we had a bad deal, I called him out on blatantly using my source and all he could do was change the thread to 'give me credit' (which was his edit). I already told him that's not what I care about, it's the fact that it seems like he's completely using my code base and selling it, which I mentioned in my thread about the bot.

You're not wrong, but this originates from people google translating Russian botnet related threads and seeing it translated to 'knock' (as do a couple popular Russian words). This is just a trend that's been around for longer than I have that isn't worth arguing.

Why the fuck do you trying to sound smart when in reality you are stupid as a pole. Who the fuck cares what is it called, it could be called "Cod3ing suck dicks in his free time" or "Cod3ing tryin to sound smart so he write shit on forums".

The point is, he is making profit from someone else work and scamming unsuspecting HF forum users for money when they can get it for free. Its besides the point that both of them are shit, well LiteHTTP is more of an educational tool than a malware and should not be used as malware because it sucks hard when you put it in the wild.

This forum wasn't always filled with a bunch of retards (bar yourself if you want to revisit your old threads ?), we used to have some fairly decent members who created unique tools that actually did what they claimed they would do. No false advertising(unlike your early crypters), developers actually had a good skill set(unlike maskPE), and the tools actually worked(unlike xrome booter).

The accused is still selling the bot, just paid for a sticky too. They also said that it's just a panel and a bin. So that just makes it more sus.
