Segwit2x Bitcoin fork actually in the shit:

<https://coinmarketcap.com/currencies/segwit2x/>

It was at $2200 a year ago, now $0,0005

There're 2 possibilities (Let's say you invest $100 in it)

-You have 200K Coins and it reach $100 in bull market, you have 20M$.

-That ends as a scam and you lose $100.

I'll take the risk ?

They changed of website: <http://b2x-segwit.com/>

Zamper - December 25, 2018, 7:07 am

Its safer to invest in an safe coin and not an useless fork, lot of coins will die and only will survive a few, this one is already dying.

Yes, but more risk = more reward if it goes well ?

I get what you mean, high risk but low investment needed but like the post above, it's dead and highly likely to be revived again. Might put that 100$ investment in some other coin.

In my oppinion a coin that reached that high price and dropped so much will never reach that highs anymore

The hype about it is gone long time ago I suppose swavy - December 25, 2018, 1:51 pm

Why do you think it dropped so much?

You're better off buying 1sat coins and hoping a single investor will pump the coin.

Plus all bitcoin forks are scams.

Option A

1. Buy up some cheap shit crypto
2. Post about it on public forums, start some chatter
3. Wait for some poor fool(s) to buy in and raise the price slightly
4. Sell your holdings for more than they're worth

Option B

1. Remember that you have some old shit crypto that you want to get rid of but has no trade volume
2. Start sell orders on the most prominent exchange for your coin
3. Post about it on public forums, start some chatter
4. Wait for some poor fool(s) to buy in, buying you out
