This is insanely high.

What incentives a player to play on your website, vs a house site such as bustabit with a 1% edge?

Statistically over any X number of games, you guarantee them to lose 7.5%
Why donate an extra 6.5% free when nearly every popular trusted BTC gambling site is 1%?

Sorry, we are changing our FAQ now.

It is supposed to say pot fee, we are a PvP site we do not partake in the rounds.

7.5% is currently the lowest out of all jackpot sites similar to mine out at the moment and it is pretty standard when it comes to PvP games.

For example, Poker sites usually take between 5%-20% of buy ins and/or a rake fee.

Current sites on VGO take between 10-15% atm.

This also deters whales from coming in and sniping pots, we've had a few $100 pots already and some were asking what the fee was due to them wanting to deposit $1000 to just snipe pots. This currently ruins the experience for the other players however, when the site does grow we will be taking down the fee even further since there would be less of a need for it. It also adds a little to our marketing budget for when we do come out of beta ?

All the money will be reinvested back into the site anyway for now and when we do start to take profits, our fees will be lower.

A lot of inconsistencies here.

We're not talking about VGO, or Poker sites.

We're talking about Bitcoin gambling which is notorious for its low house edges.

There's no point to use your site, PVP experience or not, Vs a site with a long track record with a high enough BR, (Such as bustabit) who's house edge is 1%.

If you've got a $80 pot on your site and I deposit $20 to make it 100, My chances of winning are now 1 in 5

However with a 7.5% fee, that's horrible.

Bustabit I can just put $20 for a 5x and my chances are 1 in 5, with a 1% "fee" aka house edge.

Also, to your "whale sniping" argument.

This is completely arbitrary and if anything allows players to win more money, with the same proportionate % potential.

Discouraging against larger players is detrimental to your whole business model for this site, and I don't see who benefits from that.

However if I was looking to deposit $1000 to your site and do the same, it would be a HORRIBLE move given the 7.5% edge.

Horrible move to even gamble 1$ given the fees your site takes.

We are talking about PvP games here, you're talking about casinos. We are not a casino game so why are you comparing us to those. If you like PvC games you can go ahead and play on those sites.

My fee is normal and infact the lowest for PvP gambling sites irrespective of how you can deposit.

"However if I was looking to deposit $1000 to your site and do the same, it would be a HORRIBLE move given the 7.5% edge."

Seems like you had no issue doing that here... But let me guess "That was CSGO and this is BTC so it's different" when it is exactly the same game? Furthermore, the sites you deposited on have a greater fee last time I checked (even though they are all down) and they weren't even provably fair.

You were playing on CSGO Gambling sites in 2018 after the multiple proven scam accusations. Ok bud. Thank you for your suggestion and as I said previously, we will be decreasing the fee as player count increases.

CSGO Reaper was not a proven scam.

Just because there's accusations towards X industry, doesn't make all a scam. Nice logical fallacy used in attempt to get the higher ground here.

No one gives a shit if you're the "Lowest of PVP" Fact of the matter is, do the math, there's way better sites to play on BTC that have 1% house edges AKA fee.

I use the term house edge here even though it doesn't technically apply to your site, as mathematically it works out the same and therefore using them interchangeably makes no difference.

Also why does it matter if I played on CSGO reaper with their 5% edge or not?

Bitcoin is way different, you're not risking banned inventories like CSGO sites did daily, and non stop towards the end of that scene.

You don't have the same operation costs as CSGO gambling , who work through steams API and are constantly being put down by them.

Csgoreaper was provably fair as well, with a similar hashing system as all sites use. Also lower fees then your bullshit

I was involved in the BTS' on the CSGO scene heavily so I can answer all these questions for you easily.

So let's start with your first one:

"CSGO Reaper was not a proven scam.

Just because there's accusations towards X industry, doesn't make all a scam. Nice logical fallacy used in attempt to get the higher ground here."

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=iitEBP9uE8g>
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Mn5bw5dJAqo>

ALL sites in CSGO had a system that was not provably fair either so explain to me how you can without a doubt in your mind confirm that these people did not do what phantomlord got exposed for? You think phantomlord was the ONLY person in the scene who did that? I can guarantee to you at least 80% of sites did it but they just didn't get caught like PLord because they weren't stupid and in fact PLord only started doing it after learning it from a certain other person.

If you are truly denying that: CSGOLotto, CSGOHunt, CSGOREaper, CSGOShuffle, CSGODiamonds were not proven to be a scam you are just denying facts, and don't think it stops here the list goes on... Pretty much most sites screwed their players just because they could or to make YouTube videos look good for people to come play on their site.

"No one gives a shit if you're the "Lowest of PVP" Fact of the matter is, do the math, there's way better sites to play on BTC that have 1% house edges AKA fee."

"Also why does it matter if I played on CSGO reaper with their 5% edge or not?"

We are targeting players who would like to play vs other players over vs a casino. I'm sure you can relate why since you did it too! ? Why not go play on the totally provably fair site CSGODiamond which had, I believe a 1-2% house edge and do the exact same thing which is coinflip instead of go on CSGOHunt / CSGOREaper and coinflip other people with much less "odds" of winning bro! It's only mathematics..

"Bitcoin is way different, you're not risking banned inventories like CSGO sites did daily, and non stop towards the end of that scene.

You don't have the same operation costs as CSGO gambling , who work through steams API and are constantly being put down by them."

Didn't know it cost money to create a new steam account ? or code something to trade between their steam bots into OPSkins/BitSkins. Where was these intense operational costs in 2016 which was prime for CSGO? Why were they charging 10% fees averagely back then even when steam was pretty much supporting the scene by allowing pro's to be sponsored by them...

"Csgoreaper was provably fair as well, with a similar hashing system as all sites use. Also lower fees then your bullshit"

It was totally provably fair that you could get the winning ticket as soon as the new round started. And just like you said yourself, ALL sites had the same so ALL sites had the winning ticket before the round ended? ?

Also their fees were 8% I believe prime CSGO too, and only reduced it after steam put out C&D orders.

Neither. I've seen the vids on Reaper and it's mostly filled with anecdotal evidence and nothing actual hard or convicting.

I lost a lot of money with reaper, I've won a lot at times but overall lost.

My point still stands regardless if I played on CSGO gambling sites or not.

Why play on "BTCArena.gg" when Bustabit offers a 1% house edge, has a proven track record with trusted owners, and every game is provably fair to the point he'd only fuck over investors (daniel) in the event he "cheated".

House edge and fee aren't the same thing, however when doing the math they work out the same statistically so I'll use both interchangeably.

Your BTCArena site offers 7.5% house edge / fee, Bustabit offers 1%.

Based on the numbers alone, it makes -> 0 <- sense to gamble on BTCArena.gg

Also, Lets point out the logical fallacies everyone are using here.

Both ambiguity, anecdotal claims, and using a tu quoque in your argument.

GG, GI with your site, I'm not bumping this thread any further for you. ?

Could be, that has nothing to do with my argument towards OP Though.

My point stands

Why gamble on 7.5% fee / house edge site, when there's dozens of other sites which have been up for years, that offer 1% fee / house edge

The same reason you played on reaper instead of diamond?

Why play on CSGOReaper with 5% fees when you could of went on diamonds and had lower house edge?

Almost sounds like you work for them, anecdotal evidence lmao.

You speak about anecdotal evidence but you say "I won a lot and lost a lot so I assure you it's not a scam site!"

Enough with the dramatics.

I've just heard it from word of mouth and in several servers.

Of course this is an anecdotal claim but nonetheless it's of enough substance to worth the mention.

Given the code isn't audited by any third party and your hashing system isn't a created in a chain, in which every hash can be verified by the previous game's hash,

It's not Provably fair enough to the extent for a PVP site as such.

The method you are doing only independence of the player joining, not the player creating.

The gentleman who sent 40 bots to my server to "react" and enter it, was irritated and didn't read the rules @ new accounts. (Can't have the "Hey I'm new to Discord")

I genuinely don't intend to sales trash, however I'm extremely skeptical of any Gambling site, especially newer ones, as the practices in the BTC Gambling community done by some of the larger sites even are a horrible look for the community in general.

1% fee on all pvp coinflips?

Way too high. Should be <0.1%...

Those aren't scam accusations, there was a giveaway ran in my Discord server,

With all the winners besides two being sent there money (Bots)

The gentleman who sent 40 bots to my server to "react" and enter it, was irritated and didn't read the rules @ new accounts. (Can't have the "Hey I'm new to Discord")

Last conversation we had you weren't even aware of the CSGO Gambling sites scamming, and had no idea how they weren't even provably fair since you tried to claim they "100% were fair". Now you want to come here and sales trash, please spare me your apologies as all I see coming out of you is immaturity. You come here with baseless accusations and hide behind the excuse that "someone told me it weren't secure" without doing your own research. Sounds like a great gambling site owner that I can trust my money with!

It took multiple dice sites to really cement their position in the crypto market which is also the same with the CSGO gambling scene too and instead of working with each other to get the game out there for crypto users which will be beneficial to us both, you are here trying to sales trash and do it on your own when you are seeking 25 BTC for 50% equity lol.

Good luck with your site.

Received the 75$ credit from the contest. My first time to win ever! Still trying to figure out how to not burn my credit and win a lot. In depth review will follow once get to learn everything in the site.

Thanks a lot for the give away!
