Not sure if i'm missing something but why would you buy a $30 code for $6 when you could buy 2x $15 codes for $4 if they're stackable

Purchased a code to try and get a pair of jeans for the waifu. Will report back once I get and redeem the code.

Got the code, placed an order.

What JFK should tell you is, you log into an account that has the rewards on it. However, when you place an order, since you're logged into that account, it does send an email to the email address on file...

Will have to update you and let you know if it refunds/cancels or what else. JFK, just know that this is me placing trust in you broski.

You don't need to sign in to order, you can just apply the promo code at checkout.

If you want to use in store, you must login on the American Eagle app.

eightz - January 6, 2019, 2:30 pm

So if I want to use more than $30 in store, do I need to log into several accounts or?

HexOhm - January 6, 2019, 5:04 pm

If only you had something like this for Harley Davidson jeans lol

I believe what you can try to do in store is just login to the app, and screenshot the bar code to scan.

If you have an iPhone, I'd recommend adding them to your Apple Wallet, and just scan them that way if you want to use more than $30 in store.

Afaik even if you choose slowest shipping it won't get canceled. I ordered from somebody else and my order came in. I assume they both have the same method.
