Thread: Cinema4D

Mister Slyther - January 14, 2019, 12:23 pm

A couple of years ago I used to use Cinema4D a lot. Almost every day.

I have today made the return to using it after I saw a very inspiring abstract and geometrical looking UI with 3d rendering of shapes and objects.

From now on, I will be making 3d abstracts and shapes to incorporate in some of my designs for practice purposes.

Man, I haven't used Cinema 4D since I've been making Minecraft YouTube Thumbnails with the skins lol.

Good old days.

Cinema4D is honestly amazing. You can use it any sort of context, gaming to making UI related things with it. Of course you can make animations too.

The possibilities are endless.

C4D is very useful when it comes to graphics. I remember using it daily back in the day, mostly for 3D lettering for some of my designs.

I remember using it to make my current Logo a few years ago with a mix of Photoshop fixing a few things

Jesus christ. I used to use cinema4d a couple years ago to make minecraft thumbnails for people and just for modelling and stuff. But this looks incredible. Trust me. You have a big future if you keep utilising this software. Its amazing!

Similar to many comments above, reminds me when I used it in combination for tagging years ago. The image looks good.
