Thread: [\[VB.NET\] \[SOURCE CODE\] SQLi Reaper v1.0 | SQLi Scanner](#)

Zaprex - January 20, 2019, 3:26 am

Recently been working on a simple SQLi scanner using a basic dictionary of known simple sql error queries. This uses simple functions from webbrowsers, nothing too advanced but still gets the job done.

You can query through the following engines with this scanner: Google (tells you if you have been ip blocked), Bing, DuckDuckGo.

Feel free to fix a slight error, the error is that sometimes when you start the reaper it grabs urls but gets stuck on the first url.

I CANT POST PHOTOS BECAUSE OF MY LEVEL! Sorry!

Here is the download link to the source: www68.zippyshare.com/v/beY4va43/file.html

Looks clean (no malicious stuff in the code or project files). You put some effort in to this, good job. I'd recommend naming your forms to avoid default names though. I would also recommend urlencoding your dork query when you "navigate" the search engine.

looks good i fuck with it let me know whats goood

chipp - July 27, 2020, 8:08 pm

@OP: have you re-upload it?

Pawnhub - August 11, 2020, 12:23 am

I like it. I see you made a copy of gr3n0x exploit scanner and did a good job. Nice work. Used to be one of my favorite tools back in the day.

I myself was going to remake it to teach a friend about requests and sql injection rfi etc but we didnt follow through.
