

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Gmail Recovery

Nychols - January 28, 2019, 3:16 pm

Does anyone know a good way to find a recovery email or phone number for gmail. Normally I can guess, or look it up on information sites, but I have one that has me stumped.

webdev77 - January 28, 2019, 3:18 pm

Check and see if the original email address has been leaked in databases that have made their way to the web and then check the lists for potential matches to what email you are looking for.

Nychols - January 28, 2019, 3:20 pm

(Jan 28, 2019 04:18 PM)webdev77 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Check and see if the original email address has been leaked in databases that have made their way to the web and then check the lists for potential matches to what email you are looking for.

Tried that. Person has a million emails and Phone numbers, but none match

It seems prime for some sort of scripting tool. When you search phone numbers and emails for "Forgot my Email" it just requires the email/phone and name. Doesnt trigger captcha. This is not my area of expertise however hf8888 - January 28, 2019, 7:11 pm

If the account's old enough it's possible they don't even have a recovery email or phone number associated with it.

Nychols - January 29, 2019, 5:13 pm

(Jan 28, 2019 08:11 PM)hf8888 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If the account's old enough it's possible they don't even have a recovery email or phone number associated with it.

No, They have a recovery email and phone. I have the email password. Gmail wants a confirmation when I log in. Text, call, enter the recovery phone or email. All I need to do is enter it.