

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: A way to bypass chrome warning ?

Clovis V - February 5, 2019, 5:59 am

Hi,

I'm looking for a method to bypass chrome warning when downloading a file.

In the past I was used to host my file in a trusted website providing a direct link and not distributing the samples, but I don't know such a website now.

If you have an idea..

I.M.P - February 5, 2019, 6:11 am

The best thing to do is get a bot to download the file a couple of times to remove the "This file is not commonly downloaded" warning, at least that seems like the best way feel free to correct me if I'm wrong on that.

But if the file is ever detected google will not let you download it without going to the downloads folder and clicking "Keep file anyways" some good ways of avoiding this are password protected .zip/.rar files :)

brainfix - February 5, 2019, 7:00 am

Password protect file, upload to google drive, create direct link on 3rd party websites such as: <https://www.wonderplugin.com/online-tools/google-drive-direct-link-generator/> and that should be fine. At least works for me thewild788 - February 5, 2019, 3:41 pm

I have the solution to your problem

Clovis V - February 5, 2019, 3:45 pm

(Feb 5, 2019 04:41 PM)thewild788 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have the solution to your problem
Well just tell me ?