

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What attitudes does a Grey Hat / Black Hat hacker needs?

rangebound - February 9, 2019, 12:32 am

I am going to go straight talk with this. This is my first post in the forum and I really desire to become a grey hat hacker, I want to be able to take down websites, obtain passwords, learn to do program bots for (non-ethical) tasks.

I have read other people's posts on "How do I start hacking? I am a newiee" shit. From what I saw in the replies from does posts, you gotta say things kind of straight foward with whatever you want, no bullshit, therefore, can someone answer this questions?

Background info: know SQL, C, Python, front-end shit

1. Since this isn't the deep web and talking about unethical stuff most be kind of illigal, how unethical can my questions can actually be on the forum without breaking the rules?
2. Can someone just fing just say what is the correct order of what is it suggested to learn in hacking?
3. Is there any free content to learn hacking from scratch? If yes read #4
4. Where can I find learning content to start from scratch at hacking, (books, courses, PDFs, etc) FOR FREE?
5. Any teamspeak, Discord, Skype groups where is possible to talk a little more unethically??

Thank you to whoever doesnt reply with a salty comment, and actually help me and help others!

Mercury - February 9, 2019, 1:16 am

This site is loaded with e-books that can help you learn what you want to know. There's also a beginner hacking section where this thread probably should have been posted in the first place. Just browse the site and take it all in.

rangebound - February 9, 2019, 11:08 am

(Feb 9, 2019 02:16 AM)Raven Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This site is loaded with e-books that can help you learn what you want to know. There's also a beginner hacking section where this thread probably should have been posted in the first place. Just browse the site and take it all in.

Thank you, I found some useful stuff and some statements from experience folks trying to guy newies.

basicleech - February 9, 2019, 11:13 am im more into unethical shit my self. I suggest you browse the forums theres lots of useful info and in the end it depends on how you use the info.

also for #5 id love to start a discord server for this type of stuff.

CyberStrike - February 10, 2019, 12:09 pm

You forgot one major attitude or mindset you will need, that being "Prison is my life" and "I am prison." Currently these make no sense unless you have done time before, but they will make sense and apply them. This forum is a horrible place to talk about malicious acts, every researcher and company comes here to monitor posts they divide users into categories based upon content. For example let's say someone makes tutorials and is knowledgeable they are considered as a "Teacher" a resource which can teach a malicious actor TTP's. Different magazines come here and post articles with screenshots.

I personally don't think being malicious is a great thing, you can do the same thing and get paid for it.

sh4moon - February 10, 2019, 1:37 pm

gray hats don't have malicious intent. so sorry, but you're just black hat.

Asdethprime - February 10, 2019, 9:04 pm

There is no structure on how u learn hacking.

You also don't learn hacking as one thing. You learn technology , understand how it works , finds ways to make it do things it was not suppose to do ; for example get it to siphon someone emails without their approval and voila you are a hacker.

There is no fixed thing about hacking u learn.

Let's change that question slightly ?

I want to find new creative things I can do with my command prompt that VIRTUALLY NO ONE ELSE KNOWS ABOUT.

What should I learn and in what order ?

No one can answer that ; you are looking for something new; something unknown.

Just pick a technology ; web authentication perhaps and figure out how it really works. Where do u find materials , Internet.

I learned entirely based on google with no computer background ; so can u