Thread: How I'm Making 30-60% ROI a Month Completely Autopilot

mvmt - February 9, 2019, 12:00 pm

From my previous thread (<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5916100>), a lot of people showed interest in the platform I was investing with and wanted to know how they could do it themselves. I wanted to make a fresh thread with an update on my profits so far and give you a bit of info on how you guys can do the same.

This platform I'm invested in is called a MAM (multi-account manager). In short, I sign up with a broker and deposit funds and have a company trade my money for me in the forex market. This company that I use has a team of trading professionals that are working around the clock analyzing the markets and opening/closing trades. I started with only $500 in December and they ended the month with a 63.2% profit for December. During January, they finished the month with a 31.2% profit. For those who are familiar with the Forex market, returns like this are not out of the ordinary if you know what you are doing.

What makes this even better is that I literally don't do shit, my money works for me. I have an app on my phone where I can monitor all the trades each day, but it does not require anything from me since the company is doing all the trading. 100% autopilot income while I sleep, it doesn't get much better than that. This is not a sales pitch, I just want to be able to help some people out on here who would like to earn a passive income and also provide some inspiration.

Some screenshots of my profits:

$150 in 1 day:

Spoiler (Click to View)

December's results:

Spoiler (Click to View)

This week's results:

Spoiler (Click to View)

Now I don't wanna be that guy who brags about his profits and doesn't tell anyone else how he does it. If I can help just 1 person on here earn some passive income for themselves then I've done something right. So for those of you who are interested in investing, you can view the company's page here and apply for the MAM here: <https://plutusx.com/wealth-management/> - be sure to shoot me a PM if you are going to sign up or have already signed up. I'd love to chat with some others who are invested with their platform.

TO THE IDIOTS WHO DON'T KNOW HOW TO READ:

Several users seem to think this is an HYIP/ponzi scheme. I've explained this several times but I will do it again for those who don't understand the Forex market. Everything is handled through a licensed and internationally regulated brokerage. This is the exact same concept as stock market brokers like Fidelity, TD Ameritrade, etc. The brokerage simply has built-in software that allows companies to create a MAM (multi-account manager) where they can manage people's funds and make trades with it. All of the trades are in real-time and verifiable through the brokerage, making it physically impossible for anything illegitimate to occur. If you can't understand this concept, then just leave my thread.

The returns I have shown are NOT guaranteed, nor should they be expected. Markets will always fluctuate up and down, all I've simply done is share with you what I have experienced so far. Also I am not affiliated with the company so if you have questions, please contact them directly.

Update 2: The team just posted their February MAM update:

<https://plutusx.com/blog/mam-update/2019/february-mam/>

The company itself is also going public, read more info here if you are interested in it:

Sounds like HYIP, how do you trust such sites?

(Feb 9, 2019 01:38 PM)Ms-DOs Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sounds like HYIP, how do you trust such sites? Because your money isn't being held by some random company, it is through a licensed and reputable broker. You can also see all the trades on your account live, making it impossible for anything to be fabricated.

If you aren't familiar with the Forex market or how it works, think of this as a mutual fund. In a mutual fund, a company will invest your money into stocks through a licensed broker. This is the exact same concept, but instead of stocks it is foreign currencies/commodities.

Yeah, actually I don't have any experience about Forex and never trade it. But many HYIPs are also registered companies and that's why people trust them.

But the ROI is veery interesting and I would like to learn about that more for sure

It is physically impossible for this to be an HYIP because it is through a broker that is executing real trades on a real market.

So you invest the money and they trade it for you and you can monitor each move made?

mikezpro - February 11, 2019, 12:23 am

How exactly does this work, you invest let's say 500, they trade with it and make 500 profit at the end of the month. Do they deposit the profit in your bank or do they keep using it?

It was most likely because of the weekend, the broker should verify your account very soon.

Pretty much yeah, you can see all of their trades in live action along with your profit and everything.

After each trade is closed the profit is just added to your trading balance and you can make withdrawals anytime you want. If you don't make any withdrawals, your balance will just keep growing until you do.

The great thing about this is that the profits are compounding. You'll constantly be making profit (and sometimes losing), which means you'll have more capital available to make larger trades in the future which yield more profit. So not only is it completely passive income, but it's also compounding ?

Ok my brother got me into this trading last year, he was making gains so i deposited $500 to an indian bank account (i still have details) and he registered an account for me and i got an email from realfx company my username and password. Everything looked freaking legit af so my other friends also started depositing 500 each so the one who refer will get 100 dollars referral bonus.

i could see live trades and everything but before the payday the agent just fucking stopped responding. All the accounts on the trader app was minus balance (i had like $200 profit). just from our friend circle we lost like $20k total

The website was realfx or something and we were using metatrader 4, i still have -600 on my balance

I still have all the bank details,account infos and emails lol. What you think xd

Anything below $500 and your balance won't be high enough to have the required amount of margin for all of the trades they're making, so you won't get a lot of the trades they do.

That looks sketchy as fuck man, especially since you just sent your money to a random indian bank account? Always make sure the company is operating through a registered and licensed broker and make sure the company itself has good feedback from its investors.

The company I am using has an active Telegram community so it's fairly easy to get feedback from other people invested in the MAM. Not only that but I've been following this company for about a year now so I've had quite a bit of time to gauge them out lol

Is this good to do if you are a complete noobie in this sort of trading? seeings as someone else is doing it for you.

Bill Gates - February 14, 2019, 2:40 am it's not a sure-fire thing if they add this into the FAQ's, people should be aware they can end up with nothing.

"Please be advised that the markets are volatile and you have the risk to lose all of your investments while also being exposed to the upside returns."

Saying the above I might drop some money on it to check it out.

It's probably the best thing to do if you're a complete noob lol taking on the markets yourself when you know nothing is a great way to lose a lot of money.

No investment is a for-sure thing. That's why I started with only $500 to make sure this was actually going to do well, waited 2 months and now I'm starting to put in larger amounts of money since its doing well.

Absolutely. They aren't just laying around in the bank. I have been putting my savings in stocks for the past 5 years but I would be willing to put a portion of it on something more risky. Right now I'm hitting 5% profit in a month at best, which is almost the same as letting it rot in the bank to be fair. I'll register and think about it til the verification is cleared...

Forsure man, it's good to diversify your capital across all forms of risk. A Forex MAM is definitely on the riskier side but with a professional team handling your funds, it can be wildly profitable.

That doesn't make sense though. They're trading their own capital + the investors' capital and they take a % of the profits made from investors. Them getting rid of all the investors means less income for them.

Their main goal is to grow the fund as large as possible and keep it as profitable as possible, that's the only way they can increase their income. And besides that, the MAM is just one of the many financial services they'll be offering in the future

Trust me I was too, which is why I only started with $500 and watched very carefully before depositing more. They take 30% of your profits per month high-water-mark, which in laymen's terms means they're only taking a % of your profit if your total profit has surpassed the amount it was at the previous month. I've literally spent a year following this company to make sure they're competent enough to deliver on their promises and so far they have not disappointed.

The platform is through one of the most reputable broker's in the world (FXChoice), I personally have not withdrawn because I have no reason to but a few others that I know personally have withdrawn. It is impossible for this to be some sort of scam because they physically cannot touch your money, the worst thing they can do is just trade it poorly. You can deposit/withdraw anytime you want, the broker also provides several different deposit/withdraw methods including Bitcoin.

(Feb 18, 2019 12:44 PM)Yin Yang Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Do they handle all the tax documents you need? No that would be your own responsibility, however it wouldn't be hard to do considering you can export files of all your trades and they're simply filed as capital gains.

Jesus Christ... Please do not argue with me on something that you aren't even educated about. The fact that you think they have full access to the money just shows that you have no idea how a MAM works.

The MAM is set up through a licensed and regulated broker. The MAM owners only have trade-access to the funds, meaning they can make trades but they CANNOT withdraw or do anything else with the money other than TRADE, it is literally impossible. Please educate yourself before telling me I'm wrong and what I'm saying doesn't make sense, when in fact what you are saying makes no sense.

The only way this company can make money is if they trade successfully and turn a profit.

Mvmt recommended this broker about a month ago and I have been using it ever since. I'll leave a screenshot below with my profits, and I don't think I need to say anything more. I'd be more than happy to answer any questions if people are curious about it.

Big deposit. Did you put in all at once? Then yolo it? or overtime? You said you've been with them for only a month, is it literally that simple? Best ways to approach, looking to expand my investments. 30% is something im deff interested in.

I put around $900 in at first, then a YOLO with like 6k. I've been using them for a month and I've literally not had to do anything. The returns are crazy. Working out well thus far.

This "sounds too good to be true" but somewhat feels very true. I've always wanted a Forex account that "copies" professional trader but never did research on it. I know it exists and I guess I just found a good one. So you know what, I just made an account. Waiting to be verified. I'll deposit $500. Worse that can happen is I lose $500. No big deal. Worth trying. Thanks for sharing I'll keep you updated on my results/situation.

Having more capital = higher profit in terms of $$ but the ROI will remain the same due to their risk strategy.

Just a quick question. I'm looking to set up an account using the same broker you use, did you set up a classic MT4 account to start? This is all a bit alien to me but being a college student and on part time hours this looks very enticing.

Gym 4 The Mind - February 26, 2019, 4:41 am

I don't want to be negative, but I thought I would just say this.

30%-60% is not a normal number for the forex market, there are months where you can make more than that, even weeks where you double your account but that's not all the time.

Those are some crazy numbers, I do Forex myself, I took a course, I'm in 2 different companies related to forex.

Imagine this, real professional traders who have a lot of money, let's say a small number, 1 million dollars, might be a big number to us but to real people that have been doing this for a living for years and years it's nothing, so now imagine 30%-60% of that every month. That's crazy.

If you really did some research you'd see even 10% every month is quite a lot, but it's around about the average for a real professional trader.

Never the less, you've made 90% of your bankroll already, I would suggest you take another 10%, take out your initial investment and then from there onwards everything you get isn't profit and each month you take out your profits.

That's my advice anyway, but either way that's some nice returns! Congratulations.

First of all, I'm not claiming that the 30-60% monthly returns are gonna be guaranteed each month. There will always be downfalls in the market, that's inevitable. To everyone interested in this suspicious website :

- Do your OWN research, vouches here are usually FAKE ! a lot of people are exchanging vouches on a daily basis

- 60% per month is more than suspicious, if you invest 10 000\$ and constantly reinvest your profit, you will make $10\,000 \times 1.60^{12} = 2.8$ millions \$!!!! By investing 10 000\$,you will make 2.8 millions \$ within just one year !!!!!!!!!!!

Seriously, do your own research or invest only what can you afford to lose, this website is probably a HYIP /PONZI

Please fuck off from my thread if you're gonna post bullshit like this. Use your head and read the other posts so you can actually understand what the fuck you're talking about. This is not some random website you are investing in, everything is done through INTERNATIONALLY LICENSED AND REGULATED BROKERS. Nothing is guaranteed in investment, ever. Posts on here are not "vouches" as this is not something I'm selling/advertising, I'm simply sharing an investment I made and the returns I've gotten so far (which are not guaranteed btw).

You can join a Telegram on this website with over 1000+ people in it all the ability to talk on it, no one has said one bad thing about it, I've talked with a lot of people from there, and there hasn't been a month since it started which the MAM hasn't ended in profit, and the average per month is 29% ROI. The MAM takes 40% cut of all profits (you have to make money for them to make money) so on average you receive about 15% ROI per month after fees.

How did you work out 2.8m from $10,000 investment lmao? Even at 60%, here's a break down

When retarded people are exposed, they change your popularity :)

To everyone : This website is a PONZI SCHEME and OP (and his ALT fours4) are making money when you sign up in this website

If you lose money,you can sue OP and sent him to jail, don't forget that I'm done here, I showed to this retarded kid who is the boss

I've never done something like this before, but I'm going to give it a shot. Waiting on FXChoice approval... Wish me luck.

The team just posted their February MAM update:
<https://plutusx.com/blog/mam-update/2019/february-mam/>

They company itself is also going public, read more info here if you are interested in it:

So...OP you've claimed that this exchange is fully licensed and regulated - do you mind posting some proof of that fact?

I only ask because on their Legal Page they literally say:

Quote:PlutusX LLC is not an SEC-registered investment advisor but have filed a Form D. To be announced.

Also, for everyone else, here is the Linkedin of the founder/CEO - does that really look like someone you want to trust hundreds of thousands if not millions of dollars to? Dude is still in college and looks like he should still be in highschool

I don't know how many times I have to say this. The MAM is handled through a licensed and regulated brokerage. You are not investing into a website that is owned by PlutusX, therefore they have no real control over your funds except for trading.

The brokerage is called FXChoice.

FX Choice Limited is authorised and regulated by the IFSC (Licence number: IFSC/60/191/TS/18)
FX Choice Limited registration number: 105,968

And judging someone's reliability from their looks might be one of the dumbest things I've seen on this forum. Everyone should take the time to do their due diligence and research the company before bringing more bullshit to my thread. I'm simply sharing an opportunity and the results I've received so far, if you can't have a logical conversation then please just stay off my thread. I gain nothing from sharing this with people, so I don't have time to argue with people who don't even understand what I'm talking about.

Another update: March is already off to a great start

Ok, so I won't judge by how they look I'll judge by what they say.

First: I'm looking at their CMO's (Patrick Benske) website - he says he's been featured in the Wall Street Journal, Yahoo Finance, and on Bloomberg - there are no articles on any of those platforms about him

Second: They couldn't even properly link to their CFO's linkedin page even though he has a Linkedin Profile

I'm not saying these guys are going to intentionally defraud you, but do you really want to be putting your money in the hands of people this careless, sloppy, and misleading?

These guys literally fucked up twice on this graph

- a) they used the same colors for both companies
- b) they said "Balance" instead of "Return"
- c) The graph doesn't make sense - if the competitor's return is still positive, how can their equity have gone down?

Holy shit, I'm not even going to take the time to respond to this LOL

I guess it makes sense that the only people nitpicking at my thread are those who can't properly read graphs or even comprehend how a MAM works.

Lol yeah sure some "professionals" are trading your 500 bucks instead of making millions of millions with their unreal results.

Stay away from ponzi schemes.

(Feb 9, 2019 03:42 PM)mvmt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It is physically impossible for this to be an HYIP because it is through a broker that is executing real trades on a real market.

"Physically impossible" Sound like Bitconneect!

This is a ponzi scheme you can see that from their own site its just like every other ponzi site, they promise unreal returns and it rusn until they will ran out of bigger fools.

Why do you think some company wants you to make money instead of making it themselves. Wake up!

(Feb 14, 2019 03:12 PM)DrDoof Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Absolutely. They aren't just laying around in the bank. I have been putting my savings in stocks for the past 5 years but I would be willing to put a portion of it on something more risky. Right now I'm hitting 5% profit in a month at best, which is almost the same as letting it rot in the bank to be fair. I'll register and think about it til the verification is cleared...

You must be really fucking stupid to think that 5% per month is same as rotting in the bank. Are you trolling? People are looking for 5-10% return per year and you say you get that per month.

I cant believe you are shilling this nonsense when you havent made a dime.

You never cashed out...

"I personally have not withdrawn because I have no reason to but a few others that I know personally have withdrawn. It is impossible for this to be some sort of scam because they physically cannot touch your money, the worst thing they can do is just trade it poorly."

I swear to god I'm being trolled lmao you guys have made yourselves look like complete idiots, congrats.

"Just look at the website." if you looked at the website, you would see that it's a legitimate company and they do not solicit deposits through their own website nor do they promise any returns. This is the most retarded argument I've ever had.

If there's one thing I've learned on this forum, HF idiots can't be reasoned with.
