Basically they want to setup poles that will give us 5G connections and that will produce shit loads of radiation which will cost birth defect and cancer etc

Playboy - February 11, 2019, 9:38 am

Yeah I do believe in radiation poisoning but unless you live next to a 5g pole, I don't see it effecting that many people. Could be wrong though. If I am, so be it I'm ready to doe baby.

AliceKlane - February 11, 2019, 9:50 am

Wow..

I did not knew about this.. The amount of radiation will actually be insane.. We are sacrificing lives for just a technology..

Bacardi Cola Lime - February 11, 2019, 10:46 am

I've read that this radiation stuff is pure bs. Don't believe anything you find on YouTube. The amount of produced radiation will be insignificant and in no chance will harm us.

Lynx - February 11, 2019, 10:47 am

They won't release it on that big of a scale without testing it a lot I assume.

We all already knew the dangers of cell radiation yet we get exposed to so much of it already. Just let us have 5g, also I could be wrong but this video seems like the fakest shit I have ever watched.

You realize that you have massive "poles" or towers in the sky that already hit you with the MHz you'll be hit with and it's completely harmless. Radiation requires a radioactive compound to be present. You clearly have no concept of PTP and ePMP's get outta here skiddie kiddo. I set this shit up and program it for a living.

You realize that 5G has been used by the military and intelligence communities 5 G means 5th generation and this is in respect to telecommunications. Overseas has been using 5G technology capable devices for quite some time and our military uses devices that exceed 50 GHZ which is well beyond 5G. You have no idea what you're talking about.

Google George Soros and get back to me on your opinions on media, pce 5G simply.mesns it's 5th generation of cellphone technology. Companies have to compete with T-Mobile has they acquired a MHz that actually gets through concrete buildings and metal structures and can deal with. RF reflection on buildings. Hence why a lot of old Shure mics and motrola radios have been phased out.

Body and air dielectric constant is big, so big portion of the radiation wont even be absorbed. Also on big frequencies the penetration depth is very small. If you were this worried about 5g killing people i'd suggest locking yourself inside to avoid sun radiation also.

Exactly, for smartphone use I can't tell the difference between my mobile network and my home fibre network which is over 200 megabits (I get like 20-30 on mobile). For example I forgot to use my home network and used my mobile and didn't even notice for like several hours. We don't need 5g yet

No shit? What did your comment try to point out, I'm confused? You are saying they have to release towers every 500ft that have been proven to scramble DNA just because of competition? No. 4G speeds are shit, but the increased speeds that come along with 5G are not needed. They could do a 5G rollout with much less towers and have lower speeds because in the end, nobody really needs 1gbps download and upload speed. You are a sheep bro. Done.

As for the other idiots that missed the post about how I actually climb towers and 5 G is already in place in many applications... You're dumb. Microwave radiation at this MHz and GHZ spectrum is so harmless. Cell phone towers have not been proven to "scramble DNA" BUT Chipotle was.

Fuck that if this harms animals and us indirectly. 4G is fairly enough for me for now evander - February 16, 2019, 10:20 am

5G is a serious problem. 4G is plenty for what we do, and it doesn't cause cancer. National leadership needs to force companies to be accountable for this technology, that it doesn't harm people.
