

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: RyanAir

aggh465ddd - February 20, 2019, 9:13 am

Just purchased 8 plane tickets for under £45 for a weekend of trips in March.

Ryan Air fare finder is incredible!

Mix - February 20, 2019, 9:41 am

Wtf thats so cheap is that both ways or one way tickets?

Pyro - February 20, 2019, 9:59 am

(Feb 20, 2019 10:13 AM)Podcast Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just purchased 8 plane tickets for under £45 for a weekend of trips in March.

Ryan Air fare finder is incredible!

U bought em online on their site or via retailer ?

flavoral - February 20, 2019, 10:02 am

Ryan Air is cheap af, but if you haven't tried before, it's also a metal box with wings. Just hope the bathrooms are working lol, last time i went on it only 1 bathroom was working in the whole airplane.

Black Hat - February 20, 2019, 10:05 am

Ryanair damaged my laptop several years ago, they told me it was to large to go in the cabin and that it had to go in the hold so I asked them to be careful told them it was very expensive and when I arrived in back to the UK my laptop was fucked it started as just a small crack in the corner of the plastic but quickly damaged the integrity of the rest of the plastic parts around it.

Bacardi Cola Lime - February 20, 2019, 10:15 am

Did you make sure you can carry a luggage bag with you? Last time I picked cheap tickets from RyanAir, luggage carriage was not included in the price.

GrandpaSherman - February 20, 2019, 10:19 am

RyanAir does a lot to cut costs. I'm sure you're not going to be landing at a main airport because RyanAir likes to use smaller airports with cheaper tarmac fees.

Good on you though I never understood paying so much for a plane ticket unless its a long ass flight - hope you don't fall out of the sky

aggh465ddd - February 20, 2019, 10:28 am

For those asking I normally just take a backpack as carry on so I skip luggage fees. Also if you want some too Google Ryan Air fare finder.

Dope - February 20, 2019, 10:52 am

Yeah, you pay for what you get, don't forget about that. If u got complications, my man, you're lost. I guess you already know that most people end up spending a lot of money for the extra luggage/for the suitcase being overweight so be careul about that. Also don't forget that the "new rule" in RyanAir is that only priority/the first I think 60? 30? maybe 90? people get to take their small suitcase in the airplane with them. The rest has to put it inbetween regular suitcases (so then they have to wait in the baggage claim thing), so don't put anything fragile in there if you get in that scenario and also don't get a connecting flight.. Been there. Oh and also... one time I was fortunate enough to fly with ryanair when it was "strike" time for all the flights. Missed 2 flights because of that bullshit. ?

Besides that it's pretty cool I mean.. It's nice to see that it's not hard to travel nowadays, and "regular" people can also afford it. Have a safe flight!

PARAZORA - February 20, 2019, 4:44 pm

I hope your destination is max 2hrs lol, Ryanair is a pain the ass. You get literally what you pay for. Just try to fall asleep lol ;-)

Slankey™ - February 20, 2019, 5:14 pm

They have some of the shittiest customer service.

ririki - February 20, 2019, 5:59 pm

I saw them too, was about to book some tickets but I left not doing that.

Where are you going? Is it far from your country? They actually offered me price around $30-40 / 1 person.

Your flights are cheaper than that.

I used them only once for small flight and it was acceptable.

StevesTrolls - February 21, 2019, 1:28 pm

Far from the best service, but definitely one of the best airlines for value for money. Half of their cheaper flights cost less than a return bus ticket to the next town for me!

Occasionally they have some amazing deals go through some of the comparison sites. I saw return flights from the UK to Gothenburg for 99p each way s few weeks back.