

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Documentaries are books for dumb people.

Black Hat - February 21, 2019, 9:51 pm

We have a narrator telling us what's happening.

With a pretty picture.

Each segment is a page.

Each part is a chapter.

?

LonelyLegend - February 21, 2019, 9:52 pm

this happen to be about riyu?

Black Hat - February 21, 2019, 9:52 pm

(Feb 21, 2019 10:52 PM)LonelyLegend Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) this happen to be about riyu?

Stop saying mean things about intellectually challenged people, it's not nice.

? Heisenberg ? - February 25, 2019, 2:57 am lol that's mean. I love documentaries that challenge my straight forward thinking.

Effexion - February 25, 2019, 3:00 am

I beg to differ. I'm an avid reader and come from a family of bookworms and writers but I still enjoy a documentary. Yes, a book lets you paint your own pictures but why would you want to do that? You're watching a documentary for solid facts and the ACTUAL picture.

The same goes for fiction too. I love reading a good thriller but sometimes I prefer to kick back and watch something. It's nothing to do with intelligence.

timmydy - March 5, 2019, 2:13 pm

I love documentaries and love books. There are good documentaries and bad documentaries.