Thread: Lets say someone hands you \$1000, what is the first thing that comes to mind?

swavy - February 23, 2019, 7:40 pm

What is the first thing that comes to mind, in terms of like what am I going to do with this.

Are you going to buy a gucci hoodie or are you going to invest it in something?

Also I can see the ignorant 13 year olds now "bro $1000 isn't shit I make 542k every 47 seconds on autopilot" completely irrelevant. The amount of money isn't relevant at all. Think of it as someone handing you a million rather than $1000 if you're too rich to accept $1000.

I'm just kinda curious on the outlook you guys have when it comes to receiving money. My entire life I've always looked at a money as an avenue to make more money, I rarely buy things that won't make me money.

Honestly I would probably splurge it. I'm a broke college student so as soon as I get this tax refund I'm splurging lol, wby?

Porn - February 23, 2019, 7:42 pm

I would probably just bank it, I'm not rich at all but nothing I need worth $1000 currently.

swavy - February 23, 2019, 7:43 pm

If you're broke why wouldn't you use the money to make more money. Idk just makes no sense to me.

SnuggleKittens - February 23, 2019, 7:44 pm

buy some weed and bank the rest? it helps, but it's not a lot.

Exactly lol, I'd be very grateful if someone just randomly sent me $1000 but its not life changing at all.

RamenField - February 23, 2019, 7:45 pm

That he or she wants my bootyhole.

i mean i guess that's right, and i'm not saying i'm completely broke lol i have a job however after car insurance, phone bill and loan payments i dont have that much left, so that extra boost of money i would choose to buy things for myself that i enjoy, idk thats just my opinion.

?ystem - February 23, 2019, 7:47 pm

Firstly, I'd thank the person, then I'd get a little suspicious. If all goes well then I immediately put it in the bank for savings.

CyberError - February 23, 2019, 7:48 pm

I'll save it for now as i dont want to spend money now until I get my career shine

Meow - February 23, 2019, 7:48 pm

I'd invest it. There is no real reason why I would put it in my savings account as it'll just sit there. The easiest way to make money is by investing in something (and for that you need money), so.. yeah.

HOMODIN - February 23, 2019, 7:49 pm

First thing that comes in mind for me is... "hmm...what bills should I pay first off...?"

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

sorry for the huge pic

SnuggleKittens - February 23, 2019, 7:56 pm

what? I never said I was too good. It's $1000, id take it and say thank you - but I'm not going to blow it all on cocaine and hookers. The question was what comes to mind...

Bluffer - February 23, 2019, 8:01 pm

Invest it in cryptos would be good

swavy - February 23, 2019, 8:03 pm

boost - February 23, 2019, 8:06 pm

With a rack, I'd probs just throw it into crypto. With a mili, I'd create an ecom store probably and figure out what else I could do.

Mercury - February 23, 2019, 8:08 pm

I would think to myself, "More savings".

GiraffeBear - February 23, 2019, 8:49 pm

Put it in my savings account or spend it on something with a guaranteed return.

Kamina - February 23, 2019, 8:59 pm

Probably buy some much needed food and buy something nice for my dog and I.

??????????Michael Kors - February 23, 2019, 9:18 pm

Pikachu - February 24, 2019, 12:28 am

Ill save some of it towards a new car and use the other part of the money to help out my family with groceries, bills, etc.

Mr. Robot - February 24, 2019, 1:36 am

Continue investing into my game.

You are bloody wrong, it just depends on what you invest on, as of the topic, i will pay to get invited in Cybergents and the rest will be invested in crypto

Dope - February 24, 2019, 1:41 am

I'd take it, and keep going. No need to buy something super expensive straightaway.

BadBoy - February 24, 2019, 2:06 am

I'd just put it in my bank account and use it for something I might need later on.

6577657534735 - February 24, 2019, 3:58 am

If someone handed me $1,000 I'd think they're trying to scam me in some way. But if it ended up being legitimate I'd invest all of it, since I won't need it to survive and I invest all non-essential spending money and never hold USD because it's a bad investment.

Most likely on S&P 500 index funds.

Slankey™ - February 24, 2019, 5:04 am

Time to pay next months rent and maybe the credit card

TCP - February 24, 2019, 5:11 am

Investing into projects or withdrawing to save it for myself

SIM-3257834 - February 24, 2019, 5:51 am

I'd put it on my car loan, I'm down to the low 3ks now.

RNM Group - February 24, 2019, 5:53 am

Nasty things, gonna invest them in some escort probably.

Yeah I didn't think about this. I agree, stocks would be a pretty good place to put available funds into.

Invest into something to earn more money later.

fryguy2 - February 24, 2019, 9:15 am

Could split it four ways and invest in various things.

ireama - February 24, 2019, 9:17 am

I'd save it for when I really need it, sometimes we spend on things we really don't need/isn't beneficial.

ASLR - February 24, 2019, 9:21 am

30% to savings account,

Stash away my next car insurance payment,
The rest would go into a mutual fund

Gym 4 The Mind - February 24, 2019, 11:33 am

I like your question and I like your way of thinking.

“Give a broke man $1,000 he comes back with a new iPhone.

Give a rich man $1,000 he comes back with $10,000”

I would 100% find something to invest in the forex market, invested some money on a course and now applying what I learnt.

Black Hat - February 24, 2019, 1:47 pm

Probably just keep hold of it till i need to spend it, I don't really have things I want to own.

Idiotian - March 7, 2019, 10:27 am

Give 200 for my parents to go on holiday, and 500 for a new pc, and then save the rest.

intras3c - March 7, 2019, 1:29 pm

Too small amount of money to even think of anything I would do with it.

Yin Yang - March 7, 2019, 1:33 pm

A milli would be nice Bank roll in savings

Gold? - March 7, 2019, 1:46 pm

I could do one of two: save, or invest. I can easily start an illegal shop with it.
