

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Man oh man, when you learn what a blizzard really means

Scriph - February 25, 2019, 12:42 am

Winter storm, blowing snow? That's just that. When the blizzard warnings appear- well that my friends, is when the weather is bad enough for 1/4 of your state to pull all plows off the road, for safety issues, and adding tow bans on top of it - and dot saying that emergency services would not risk going out on the road to save your stupid ass.

And roads closed. Because they are blocked. By snow drifts that dot won't plow until the morning, because of safety concerns. At some point, nebraska had a fucking interstate shut down. And that shit is usually avoided at all costs.

Essentially, if you drive anywhere, and you get stuck or crash-well, as a local weather agency once said - make sure you write your social on your forehead so we can tag you when we dig out your body.

Cocaine - February 25, 2019, 12:44 am

I live in Massachusetts. This happens a billion times a year.

Scriph - February 25, 2019, 12:50 am

(Feb 25, 2019 01:43 AM)php Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live in the south I don't deal with that shit except once or twice a year or two.

It doesn't happen a lot here to this extent, but bad road conditions happen. Usually not to the extent that all services have been banned or removed from the roads, and you are considered to be on your own, and you probably won't make it anywhere (Feb 25, 2019 01:44 AM)Xanax Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live in Massachusetts. This happens a billion times a year.

Iowa. It doesn't get this extreme usually, but it freezing rained for half a day, over slightly melted compact snow, snowed a bunch, then wind picked up, and now, -30 wind chills keeping the ice on the road, but also blowing snow so you can't see, and creating loose snow over deep ice.

It essentially perfected the conditions needed to make a road impassable and unclearable.

Cocaine - February 25, 2019, 12:56 am

(Feb 25, 2019 01:50 AM)Scriph Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It doesn't happen a lot here to this extent, but bad road conditions happen. Usually not to the extent that all services have been banned or removed from the roads, and you are considered to be on your own, and you probably won't make it anywhere

Iowa. It doesn't get this extreme usually, but it freezing rained for half a day, over slightly melted compact snow, snowed a bunch, then wind picked up, and now, -30 wind chills keeping the ice on the road, but also blowing snow so you can't see, and creating loose snow over deep ice.

It essentially perfected the conditions needed to make a road impassable and unclearable. We are getting the wind right now as well as some icy and snowy road conditions. Nothing really bad though.

Cocaine - February 25, 2019, 12:59 am

(Feb 25, 2019 01:57 AM)php Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I just went to Chipotle in my shorts. Man how I miss the days I lived in Phoenix. Seriously, fuck you. I can't even smoke without freezing my fucking balls off.

Cocaine - February 25, 2019, 1:01 am

(Feb 25, 2019 02:00 AM)php Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Cartridges are the bomb I can medicate from the safety of my own home without it smelling. My ran out :(. One good thing about this state is legal pot <3, dispensary within spitting distance of my house too it's beautiful.

Bill Gates - February 25, 2019, 1:02 am

The UK gets about 3" of snow and completely shuts down. lol We place more importance on naming our gritters "gritty mc grit face", rather than actually prepare better for snow.

it's nice here though dry warm and unusual for February.

Mercury - February 25, 2019, 3:25 am

The title of your thread made me absurdly hungry for a DQ Blizzard. The snow's been awful where I live this year too. I can't wait for it to be over.

Mac Miller - February 25, 2019, 3:53 am

I live in East Canada, it's everyday bro.