Dr. Einyel - March 6, 2019, 5:24 am

If you could select just ONE TV show or series as your favorite, what would it be?

I'd choose GOT obviously, but if we ignore GOT, I would choose Black Mirror.

ProgPredator - March 6, 2019, 1:07 pm

Best TV Series for me are NARCOS and CHAPO!

Bacardi Cola Lime - March 6, 2019, 2:00 pm

Hands down True Detective. Seasons 1 and 3 were the best things I've watched. Second come, side-by-side, Peaky Blinders and Taboo and then GoT.

Shark Tank was the best show I've ever seen,

The acting is hard to watch as are the effects. Other than that it's okay at best. Later seasons are better.

Stargate SG-1 and Stargate Atlantis will always be number one and two for me.

Arrow and Flash used to be very high, but honestly, a few lackluster seasons drops them down my list.

Breaking Bad is very high. Hated the show after the first episode, not my thing. Got bored and tried to rewatch it a year later, finished it with my girlfriend in a week or so.

Smallville will always have a soft spot for me, too. I know these choices jump around a bit.

I wish I had that kind of time still. Even when Netflix was at it's prime with just being a place for other peoples content, I'd binge watch anything I could find. Now it takes me forever to watch TV shows. Mostly because after work my brains shot. And my picky ass can't watch simplistic shows and complex ones are too much for my tired self to keep up with.

Oh I wish I had too. That was in a free weekend. I study medicine and work at the same time so that's one of the reasons I watch it in one sit, because I didn't knew when I would be able to spend some free time again ?

Breaking Bad. Season 1 is slow but as someone said, it ties the show very well later on. Season 4-5 are the bomb.

Also, Star Trek but I particularly liked Voyager the most, perhaps since is the first one I watched lol (and wouldn't mind to be assimilated by Seven of Nine tbh)

My wife really liked The Vampire Diaries. Being a supportive husband I watched it with her. But I preferred the Originals (it seemed more manly (besides the romance crap)). Not saying that I was a superfan of it.

I think next year when supernatural is cancelled after season 15 ends that one will count.

One thing I really enjoyed about Supernatural is they never really cared about being super PC and they never forced homosexuality or transgenderism on us. (Not saying that I am against either of them, but it seems like shows put more emphasis on who is gay or identifies as what rather than focus on the story.)

GoT to the moon. It's the only series that's stayed really epic for its entire duration. Except some good shows which ended up terrible in their new seasons like AMC's TWD and TVD to mention.

ohyesiagree - April 20, 2019, 11:37 am

Shark Tank was the best show I've ever seen, :)

Hahaha. Ok ok. Nice review ?

heatofficek78 - April 24, 2019, 1:56 pm

I would say that it is Power and Breaking bad, I don't think that GoT is better than breaking bad imo.

More less about a legal guy ex gang banger using his nighthclubs to launder money & working as a link that sells to every gang in the city.

There is no better series with a better story and moral as breaking bad.

Here's a list of my favourite tv shows so far, as far I can remember:

Fargo Season 3 - like the most engaging and artistic crime-drama tv shows I have ever seen (of course you gotta see season 1 and 2, but 3 is the best, the first 2 you kind of gotta endure)
Band of brothers - if you are into army stuff, one of the best
Avatar: The Last Airbender - if you like anime a bit or cartoons
True Detective: very well done

Black Mirror: sci-fi/futuristic

Love Death & Robots: I mean, I fell in love with it, every episode is different and are all very well done and amazing

Inside No. 9: Again, every episode is a different story, it keeps you captivated and it always has some kind of a twist

Hostile Planet: natural world and how animals thrive to survive in harsh environments (alongside these kind of documentaries, I also recommend Planet Earth)

Over the Garden Wall: cartoon-like, very short tv show, but awesome nevertheless

These are kind of categorized, I am currently watching The Blacklist because I really like the main character, but by far, from this list, I would recommend to anyone who haven't seen these yet:

Fargo (season 3, again, don't quit as season 2)

Love Death & Robots

Inside No. 9

And for those of you that liked Narcos and El Chapo, I recommend Gomorra - it is similar, but with Italian mafia
