Thread: Make deal disputes more visible in the marketplace

jobhip - March 6, 2019, 9:04 am

I got scammed for $100 because I failed to see that a member had a deal dispute open. (They had a deal dispute but no neg b rating.) What I would like to suggest is that below the b rating on every members marketplace posts, there also be a "deal disputes" counter too. Preferably clickable so you can see what deal disputes they have. I feel that this would be quite helpful for identifying scammers with perfect b ratings.

I gave them the - b rating. It wasn't there until after I got scammed...but they already had a dispute open.

In the page it tells you open disputes...and even links you to another page to show the deal disputes prior to the contract systems release.

Yes. I agree that that is there. What I believe though is that it should be easier to access...which is why I made this post.

Unless I'm missing the point of your thread, it literally already says when there are disputes open. Whether you choose to ignore them or not, it's on you. Hackforums should not be responsible for flashing the screen and making giant popups indicating that there is an open dispute.

Fine. I can tell that that majority is against this idea. Wasn't asking for big popups or anything, just a simple counter would help imo, but since you guys don't agree that this would be helpful- I will close the thread.
