Thread: QUASAR VS windows 7 microsoft security essentials

CHRISDSASA - March 9, 2019, 2:13 pm

I have problems trying to run my client on a windows 7 with microsoft security essentials
I have tried whitelisting it, put exeptions on the install direct (appdata/roaming/subdir/client.exe), and even disabled the real time protection thing and i still dont get a connection to my server quasar.

I havent tried a crypter because i thought since i had full control over the client machine i could just whitelist quasar in the AV.

Am i missing something?

You probably set up the connection wrong.

I can't, that may be it.

Im a little confuse tho do i have to open the port as tcp or udp? and also if i check the option "try UPnP" in quasar i dont need to do anything on the clients pc right?

Update: I did not have my ports open, is there a way to use this without opening any of my ports?
because i dont have access to my router settings (Its a shared wifi with my neighbor).
