Thread: Where to denounce a thread that should be closed?

Dr. Einyel - March 12, 2019, 5:32 pm

Many times I've read some threads where the author is literally baned (or inactive since a long long time ago, but I supposed this is a different case), and people just continues asking for what they were offering on OP.

Example: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5927380&page=2>

Questions:

1. Is it helpful for staff if we let them know about these cases or are they still open threads for a reason?
2. If the answer is yes, Is there a section to denounce those threads?
3. If the answer is yes, are we in that section?

The thread you linked has already been reported.
In the future you can report threads that are dead by OP being closed.

What do you mean by "denounce"? Just report it and move on?

You cannot report posts older than 48 hours. (Don't know why.)

Where should I report????

PMing always the same staff sounds anoying.

Edit: Not anoying for me, but for the staff I choose to write.
