If somebody comes to purchase this, and has no software such as Smoke or Azorult which you advertise to setup. Does this mean they have to acquire it before having it setup or will you provide?

So let me get this straight. You are charging money for botnet setup and then claim that you provide a cracked botnet but since you play the semantic of it being free incentive for customers, this leads me to not understand how is different from others. Is it just because of your knowledge on the topic or is there something else I am receiving that is tangible and worth me paying for?

So I guess my question before purchasing, is how is your service any different than all the other ones that got shunned by the community for advertising cracked / free botnets while offering to set them up at a charge? What else will I receive or is this all?

It is not clear to me or anybody that is what you sell ? Seems as though you advertise / market cracked botnets to engage users and then come back saying you are just selling hosting / domain but offer the rest for free on the side....

I came to this thread thinking possibly there was some private crack being sold so-to-speak and not just recompiled from already released free stuff, which is what lead to my confusion.

So I am paying $50 MINIMUM for Domain + Hosting is that what you mean?

The amount of bots it can handle is determined by not only latency, bandwidth, but also the software itself and how well it is developed to handle the packet mitigation. To answer your question, sure, I can link you several hosts that do this for $10 but that would be considered sales trashing, so I prefer to abstain from answering your question. I also don't want to bring other HF members in to this by linking their sales threads....Sorry, hope you understand why I can not answer that question as it's enticing to break the rules of the forum.

Regardless, thanks for attempting to respond to my questions, have a nice day and good luck with your sales.

thats not true at all cpu has everything to do with processing power..

Controllers such as Smoke Loader take up relatively a small amount of processing power, the processing power is least of your worries, even when you are talking in terms of 10k+ active connections. Dependent on the software, and how they mitigate the traffic will determine the amount of processing power used as per your example.

This sales thread is not the place for arguing semantics of packet handling, if you like we can take this to private conversation so we do not take away from your sales thread ?

I am unsure what you mean by "cpu has everything to do with processing power". Yes a CPU is a central processing unit. Of course it has everything to do with processing power :D Could you elaborate or rephrase what you meant here so I can better understand?

Quote:obviously have not been in this game for long enough
That is quite contradicting no?

So moral of story, your answer to my question is that for the $50 I would be paying, it is just for domain / web hosting. Then everything else you provide as free incentive to customers?

ive been doing this for 6 years. im just here for business.

i just want to make it clear to my customers that you have no clue what youre talking about, and giving them information on how botnets ACTUALLY work. When a user posts, it goes into the mysql database, in order to update the tables you need PROCESSING POWER, like a CPU. Therefore the more connections, the higher the cpu will work, as well as the network. So the better the hosting, the more bots you can hold.

Sir, I feel personally attacked, and as though you are trying to have a debate in which case sales threads are not used for debates and is breaking the rules. I simply came asking questions as an interested buyer, you gave me some bad customer support thus far. Trying to demonize or deter me in any way is not helpful to answering my questions or concerns as an extremely interested buyer :(

I will take my money elsewhere if you can not answer my questions in a professional, respectful manner. I done nothing to call you names, or offend you but have been told I am "wrong" as well "have no clue what you're talking about". This is pretty harsh considering I was just trying to ask some questions about your product / service.

Unless you got something nice to say, or going to answer my questions then I guess I'll go somewhere else, even though I really did want to purchase ?

The funnier part to me, is there's an abundance of YouTube videos with accurate guides to setup Smoke Loader and it's practically the simplest botnet to setup.

@OP are you going to respond to your deal dispute? :(This is very deterring from purchasing the service you offer here
